Penn State's Ugliest Men Parade Through Snow, Cold

By BARB BUDNICK

Through snow, rain, and cold weather the Ugly Man parade marched down Pollock road last night with a blare of horns and a hoard of nightmarish men grimacing at the crowd.

A small but stalwart crowd turned out for the parade, which might have been the inspiration for a Frankenstein horror film. There were ugly men with square heads, no heads, and heads in their hands, while others seemed to be dug from the grave.

The three winning floats picked by judges last night be-

Most Residents Are Cooperative In Housing Survey

Most residents contacted in the University Christian Association housing survey are cooperating and are willing to fill out the survey questionnaires, according to Joyce Cox, survey committee chairman.

At a meeting the representatives of the UCA, Hillel, Alpha Phi Omega, national service fraternity, and various student religious groups held last night three representatives were present to discuss progress and problems of the survey. The difficulty in locating home owners to present them with questionnaires was one problem brought up by the representatives.

The purpose of the survey, which will continue until April 30, is to determine how many residents are willing to rent rooms to foreign students and American Negroes. Lists of these rooms will be available to students who have difficulty in obtaining rooms.

Bogus Vendors Sell Magazines To Fraternities

Fraternities who bought magazine subscriptions from the Union Distribution Co. last week will be able to get their magazines, although the salesmen who sold them were no longer affiliated with that company.

Donald Reidenbaugh, executive secretary of Interfraternity Council, which issued IFC vendors permits to the two last Tuesday, said yesterday that the company is bonded and will make good on any subscriptions sold.

Fraternities bought what Reidenbaugh estimated as "a couple of hundred dollars worth of subscriptions" from two crippled men who said they were representing the Union Distribution Co. of New York City.

Reidenbaugh said the men told him they intended to give part of their profits to the Crippled Children's Society. He added that they said that they already had obtained a vendors permit from the State College Chamber of Commerce and only needed an IFC permit.

Complaints from several fraternities prompted an investigation which revealed that the salesman had obtained no permit from the local Chamber of Commerce. Police were then notified of the presence of the men, but they had already left town.

The next day Reidenbaugh said he wired the New York office and asked about the two men. It was then that IFC learned that the men had been dismissed and were using old company receipts to sell magazine subscriptions on their own.

retary, and Norman Hedding, junior in business administration from Pittsburgh, was nominated for treasurer.

Nominations may be made by any member of the AIM Board of Governors, or a student may nominate himself by presenting a petition to the board of governors signed by 300 independent men. A student must have a 2.0 All-University average. Only fifth or sixth semester men may run for president.

Living Plan on Agenda

In addition to elections, the controversial community living plan sponsored by AIM will be aired again.

The plan calls for men and women, although living in separate units, to eat and mix together in recreational programs.

Bruce Lieske, AIM president, said last night a letter from Ohio State University would be read at the AIM meeting. He termed the letter "very encouraging." According to the letter, a community living plan, similar to the one backed by AIM, is now in effect at Ohio State University. The letter said that when the plan was instituted it received much criticism, but now the plan has "worked out tremendously."

Situation Paralleled

Lieske said this closely parallels the situation at the University, where the plan has been both jeered and cheered.

William B. Crafts, assistant to the dean of men, told AIM last week that he favored the plan, but many details had to be worked out before it could be instituted at the University.

Improves Relations

Crafts said he felt the plan was a natural relationship between men and women, and is the only "genuine" way the University can improve customs, manners, mores, and other traits of students.

Also on the AIM agenda is the approval of a $300 appropriation for students who attended the National Independent Students Association Conference in Texas, and the appointment of a new AIM Judicial chairman.

Tribunal Applications

Tribunal application blanks are available at the Hetzel Union desk for juniors and seniors with a 2.3 All-University average.

Applications are due by 5 p.m. Monday at the Hetzel Union desk.

Indictment On Lorch Is Dropped

A contempt of Congress indictment against Dr. Lee Lorch, former assistant professor of mathematics at the University, was dismissed last Friday in Dayton, Ohio.

While at the University in 1950, Dr. Lorch, now a professor at Fisk University, was the subject of an academic liberties issue which attained national scope.

His contract was terminated by the board of trustees without official reason after he participated in anti-discrimination activities in the Stuyvesant Town housing project in New York City.

Physicist Albert Einstein sent letters of protest to Adrian O. Morse, then University provost, the late James Milholland, president of the trustees, and Dr. Milton S. Eisenhower, president of the University. The Progressive Party protested the dismissal, and The New York Times commented adversely on the situation.

Dr. Lorch received the federal indictment for refusing to answer questions in September of 1954 before the House Committee on Un-American Activities, according to yesterday's Centre Daily Times. No reason was given for dropping the indictment.

Morse, on behalf of the Trustees, questioned Dr. Lorch about his sub-letting an apartment in the housing project to a Negro family and asked if he was a member of the Communist party.

Dr. Lorch refused to answer the second question because he said he considered it irrelevant to academic freedom.

'Froth' to Parody 'Playboy' Humor In Issue Today

Editorial on page four

Froth's new issue which goes on sale today, is titled 'Playgirl' and is a parody of a humor magazine which is read in many college circles.

According to Sanford Lichtenstein, business manager of Froth, this will be its biggest issue, meaning more old jokes to bore the student body.

Lichtenstein would not divulge the identity of the Froth girl of the month but word from usually reliable sources says it's a 6 foot, 1½ inch male. Oh well . . .

'Playgirl' will be on sale at the Corner Room, the booth in front of Grange, the M1 bulletin board, Waring Hall, and the Hetzel Union desk.

Conflicts Are Due By Noon Saturday

Russia Urges Peace Between Israel, Arabs

MOSCOW, April 17 (AP)—The Soviet Union today urged Israel and the Arab states to settle their conflict and offered to join other nations seeking peaceful solution of unsettled problems in the Middle East.

At the same time, it pledged support of a UN program "to find ways and means of strengthening peace in the area of Palestine."

The declaration by the Soviet Foreign Ministry appeared through dash any Arab hopes for auto-Israel, although it denounced interference in Arab internal affairs and "the notorious Baghdad Pact" sponsored by the West and unpopular in most Arab states.

Release of this statement on the eve of an official visit to Britain by Soviet Premier Nikolai Bulganin and Communist party Secretary Nikita Khrushchev indicated the Soviet leaders are ready—perhaps eager—to discuss the Middle East crisis with British leaders.

Another Announcement Issued As Bulganin and Khrushchev neared British shores, First Deputy Premier Anastas I. Mikoyan issued another announcement bound to find some welcome in the West—that the international organization of Communist parties, the Cominform, had been dissolved.

The Foreign Ministry statement on the Middle East praised "the actions of Britain and France which facilitated the solution of the urgent Near East problems by recognizing the independence and sovereignty" of Middle Eastern states. It spoke glowingly of the "principles of peaceful cooperation" adopted by the Asian-African conference at Bandung, Indonesia, last year.

No Mention of U.S.

But it made no mention of the United States.

Soon after the statement's release at a hastily summoned news conference, Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov told reporters at a Syrian embassy Independence Day reception that he thought it would serve as the basis for discussion in London. Molotov said the Soviet Union would agree to work with other nations for Middle East peace either in the United Nations or in separate meetings.
