Blood Drive Exceeds Goal; 541 Pints Collected in 2 Days

A grand total of 541 pints of blood were collected in the two-day Red Cross blood drive. This breaks last spring's donation total of 449 pints and exceeds by 41 the goal for this drive. Two-hundred and seventy-five pints were collected Tuesday and 266 more pints were added yesterday.

The name of the fraternity donating the most blood, thereby winning a trophy awarded by Phi Delta Theta, was not released last night.

Police Fingerprint Members of SAE During Inquiry

State College police were scheduled to fingerprint members of Sigma Alpha Epsilon fraternity last night in an attempt to solve the $1200 burglary of the house sometime Monday morning.

Police said yesterday they did not expect a member of the house to be guilty of the burglary but are attempting to eliminate the prints of members from those taken after the burglary.

Meanwhile, police have been checking for stolen articles which may turn up. Several articles have already been recovered, but police refused to comment further.

About $1200 in cash and personal items were stolen from the second-floor rooms of the fraternity sometime Sunday morning while most members were sleeping on the third floor.

Police believe entry was gained through a first-floor dining room window.

The campus drive was considered an "outstanding success" by Red Cross workers. The bloodmobile that came up from Johnstown was kept so busy during the day with an unprecedented amount of walk-in donors that near closing time at 4 p.m. all bottles for the collection were exhausted. A few students were reported unable to donate.

155 Walk-in Yesterday
One-hundred and fifty-five walk-ins, mostly students, offered their blood yesterday. Altogether 293 students, faculty and townspeople appeared to give blood, this included 138 who pledged to donate before hand. In the two-day drive, 585 people offered to donate blood. Of these 44 were rejected after an examination by nurses and doctors from the University Hospital and Johnstown center.

Loren Tukey, assistant professor of pomology at the University and chairman of the blood committee of the State College Red Cross, expressed his gratitude to the students and faculty who "made the drive an outstanding success."

Blood Sent to Johnstown
The blood donated was shipped yesterday to the Johnstown Red Cross center where it will be.

Delaware Students Reported Painters Of Nittany Lion

Four pledges of Phi Sigma Epsilon fraternity at the University of Delaware were reported yesterday by Dean of Men Frank J. Simes to have been the painters of the Nittany Lion on April 8.

The University of Delaware has sent a check for $47.25 to cover the cleansing of the Lion, which was completely covered with multi-colored paint.

The fraternity was placed on social probation for the remainder of the semester and disciplinary probation until Feb. 1, 1957. It was also fined $50 in costs for the removal of the paint. No action was taken against the students, since they were acting under instructions issued by the fraternity.

Simes said the students had shown a list of the pledge duties to be accomplished at the University to a townsman while they were up here. They also had mentioned they were from Delaware.

Through the townsman's information, the dean of men's office decided to contact the University of Delaware.

Residents Hold Interviews for 33

Anne Cain, Charlotte Fink, Ruth Kronenwetter, Jean McMahon, and Joan Ziegler were selected as finalists from 33 entrants in the Miss Penn State queen contest by 15 townspeople last night.

The judges held short informal interviews with each of the 33 entrants. They selected the finalists according to a point system with the five finalists having the highest scores. The points were awarded on the basis of carriage, poise, grooming, speech, and attractiveness, according to Elizabeth Rogers, coronation chairman.

Winner to Be Chosen
Miss Penn State will be selected from among the five finalists at the coronation at 7 p.m. Monday at Recreation Hall.

A celebrity will crown the queen; however, the coronation committee has not disclosed who the celebrity will be.

Miss Cain is sponsored by Kappa Alpha Theta and Chi Phi. She is a junior in applied arts from Unionville.

Miss Fink, sponsored by Delta Gamma and Sigma Alpha Epsilon, is a senior in secondary education from Philadelphia.

Delta Chi Is Sponsor
Sponsored by Delta Chi, Miss Kronenwetter is a senior in physical education from Emporium.

Miss McMahon is sponsored by Kappa Kappa Gamma and Alpha Sigma Phi. She is a junior in physical education from Williamsport.

Alpha Rho Chi sponsored Miss Ziegler, who is a senior in elementary education from Pittsburgh.

15 Townspeople Judge
The 15 townspeople who acted as judges for the preliminaries are Mrs. Robert Breon, Jr., and Robert Breon, Jr., owner of the Penn State Photo Shop; Jack Harper, owner of Jack Harper's

Cabinet to Hear Town Affairs Report Tonight

A report from the Joint Committee on Town Affairs will be included in the reports to be heard tonight by All-University Cabinet.

The report, which will be given by All-University President Robert Bahrenburg, former chairman of this committee, will include a recommendation to have a stoplight put in at the corner of Locust lane and College avenue.

Bahrenburg said that he is trying to get permission to go before the Borough Council to inquire about the possibilities of a stoplight or of having a policeman stationed at that corner during the rush hours.

The report will also cover the movies and the recent check of State College houses by local firemen.

Another prospective act by the committee will be getting permission from Ralph Nielsen, manager of the Cathaum theatre, to write to Warner Brothers and inquire about a plan to install air-conditioning in the movie houses.

Plea Made to Senate On Fraternity Probation

Robert Bullock, retiring president of the Interfraternity Council, and Daniel Land, president elect, appeared before the Senate Committee on Student Affairs yesterday in a plea for leniency on behalf of the three fraternities the committee placed on social probation.

The fraternities, Delta Tau Delta, Pi Kappa Phi, and Pi Lambda Phi, were placed on social probation for the remainder of the semester two weeks ago after falling below the 2.00 average required by the University for graduation.

Wilmer E. Kenworthy, director of student affairs, said no further action on the case was taken at yesterday's meeting.

Acting as spokesman for the three fraternities, Bullock asked the committee to modify the strict social probation as the fraternities involved had, on their own accord, taken measures to better the scholarship in the house before they were placed on probation.

The fraternities had depledged members with unsatisfactory averages, curtailed weekend parties, rigidly enforced quiet hours, and raised the average required for pledging, Bullock said. The committee said the social probation was placed on the fraternities as a constructive measure so the planned activities of the fraternity would not interfere with the time of the individual members of the fraternity.

During his appearance before the committee, Bullock asked that the three fraternities be allowed to participate in intramural athletics, hold Spring Weekend house activities, have Mother's Day celebrations in the house, and take part in rushing.

The committee clarified the last two points of Bullock's proposal, pointing out that in the original notification of social probation from the dean of men's office, the fraternities were informed they could have parents and guests in the house for Mother's Day. The fraternities are also allowed to take part in rushing activities, as it is not considered a social function.

State Primaries Split

PHILADELPHIA, April 25 (AP)—Both major parties detected encouragement in Tuesday's Pennsylvania presidential preference voting in which President Eisenhower ran up an edge close to 300,000 over Adlai Stevenson.

Even Sen. Estes Kefauver of Tennessee, who received 37,357

Democratic write-in votes without campaigning, expressed pleasure over the support given him. Sen. William F. Knowland of California, whose name appeared on the GOP ballot against his wishes, received 43,080 votes.

Sixty Pennsylvania aspirants for the U.S. House of Representatives were nominated in Tuesday's primary election to battle it out for the state's 30 seats in November.

Those who will try to succeed Rep. Karl C. King in next fall's balloting are John P. Fullam, Democrat, and Willard S. Curtin, Republican. Both are Bucks County attorneys.

One former congressman, S. Walter Stauffer, York Republican, won out in a 4-way contest.

Rep. James M. Quigley, Camp Hill Democrat, will face Stauffer in November. Quigley, an attorney, was nominated without opposition.

One contest involving an incumbent that attracted attention was in the 24th Crawford-Erie-Mercer district. Rep. Carroll D. Kearns, Farrell, defeated Wilmer W. Waterhouse, a Corry state assemblyman, for the GOP nomination. Kearns will be opposed by William D. Thomas, Sharon Democrat, next fall. Thomas won in a 4-way contest.

One of the last U.S. House contests to be reported was in the 25th Beaver-Butler-Lawrence District. With complete unofficial returns from the district's 305 precincts, Sidney L. Lockley had 18,165 and Raymond Chapman 17,836. The Democratic incumbent, Frank M. Clark of Bessemer, was nominated without opposition.

In a race involving the upper house in Washington, U.S. Sen. James H. Duff of Carnegie won the Republican senatorial nomination in a walk.

Opposing Duff in the November election will be Joseph S. Clarino, who won the Democratic nomination without opposition.
