

Champ Presents Match Finalists—

By PAT O'NEILL

Fifteen games of chess and nine games of checkers, two of them being played blindfolded, were simultaneously carried on by Newell Banks, blindfold checker champion of the world. He played 23 opponents last night in the Hetzel Union card room.

Banks, with thinning white hair and a slight nervous twitch, moved calmly about from table to table, making a separate move at each one. The tables formed a semi-circle, with many interested spectators watching.

Banks is noted for the speed of his decisions, making an average of about one move per second.

The feat is nothing new for Banks, however. He has traveled over one million miles and played about 600,000 checkers and chess games in the past 45 years. During this time he has played over eighty thousand blindfold games.

Uses Visual Calculation

Banks explained that he does not actually wear a covering over his eyes in blindfold games. He simply does not look at the board. Instead he is given a verbal picture of what the checker board is like and where the checkers are. Then he must figure out his moves through visual calculation.

Banks very seldom loses. He once had a string of over 14 thousand wins in eight years. The winning streak was finally broken when Banks lost in a blindfold checker game.

Banks served in the army in World War I, and was in Paris when the Treaty of Versailles was signed. He continued to play chess on his own during this time.

Trying to Promote Chess

At present Banks is trying to promote an Intercollegiate National Championship for chess and checkers. He feels his tour has increased interest in the two games.

Banks has convinced the city of St. Petersburg, Florida, to sponsor chess and checker tournaments and instruction in the city schools. Over 1300 students have enrolled in the courses.

Banks hopes that someday the United States will be able to beat Russia in chess. He feels that if enough interest is created in the game, this will be accomplished.

Speaking of the chess players at the University, Banks said that one of the best teams in the country is on campus.

Lagey Will Speak On 'Greenwich'

Dr. Joseph Lagey, assistant professor of sociology, will speak on "Greenwich Village Revisited," at a meeting of the sociology club at 7:30 tonight in 216 Hetzel Union.

Dr. Lagey's speech will cover the recent movement of people into and out of Greenwich village and their reasons for moving. He will also compare the people who live there now with the people who used to live there.

WDFM Staffs to Meet

The promotion and publicity staff of station WDFM will meet at 7:30 tonight in 307 Sparks.

processed and typed. Among the hospitals served with the blood is Centre County Hospital in Bellefonte.

Most blood transfusions involving University students are done in Bellefonte.

Two students who gave blood during the drive had done so seven previous times. Robert N. Edwards, senior in electrical engineering from Altoona, and Bruce Large, senior in dairy science from Reading, gave their eighth Red Cross blood pint.

Cabinet--

Cabinet will also hear a report from a representative of the National Student Association on possible improvements for next year's Campus Chest.

The report will be based on ideas heard at the NSA Regional Convention at Philadelphia where University delegates heard ideas about ways to run a Campus Chest from students at other colleges and universities.
