

NSA Meet Acclaimed 'Successful'

By JUDY HARKISON

The National Student Association Pennsylvania-West Virginia regional assembly on campus last weekend was termed "extremely successful" by the 115 student leaders who attended.

The students, representing 28 colleges and universities, collaborated in the Hetzel Union building Friday, Saturday, and Sunday in workshop discussions and caucuses and heard speeches of NSA officials.

"The interest, cooperation, and enthusiasm shown by student leaders was an indication of the success of the assembly," Barbara Hendel, assembly coordinator, said.

"This meet, as well as many other phases of NSA, has provided student leaders with practical knowledge and skill which they can use to improve their colleges and to make their own student governments more effective and respected," she continued.

Schools Not Affiliated

Eleven of the schools represented were not affiliated with NSA but participated in the assembly in order to see the group in action.

These schools showed great interest and enthusiasm. Miss Hendel said and most of them are planning to join NSA.

Stephen H. Fuller, assistant professor of business administration, Harvard University, gave the keynote address Saturday morning.

Speaking on communication among students, he said that decision must rest on knowledge of the facts by students and administration, not just opinion.

McCracken Speaks

Richard Murphy, NSA president in 1952-53, spoke at the banquet Saturday night in the Hetzel Union dining room. His topic was "The History of NSA, and the Purpose of NSA."

Charles McCracken, dean of men of Allegheny College, was

Ziegler Crowned Miss Penn State

By BARB BUDNICK

Joan Ziegler was crowned Miss Penn State last night by President Milton S. Eisenhower before an estimated crowd of 2500.

President Eisenhower was assisted by Pamala Ulrich, Miss Pennsylvania, who was one of the eight judges for the ceremonies.

Miss Ziegler is a senior in secondary education from Pittsburgh and was sponsored by Alpha Rho Chi. She is a member of Kappa Kappa Gamma, the woman's chorus, and Thespians. Her hobbies are swimming, music and golf.

The four other finalists in the Miss Penn State contest were Anne Cain, junior in applied arts from Unionville, sponsored by Kappa Alpha Theta and Chi Phi; Charlotte Fink, senior in secondary education from Philadelphia, sponsored by Delta Gamma and Sigma Alpha Epsilon.

Ruth Kronenwetter, senior in physical education from Emporium, sponsored by Delta Chi; and Jean McMahon, junior in physical education from Williamsport, sponsored by Kappa Kappa Gamma and Alpha Sigma Phi.

Escorted to Stage

Miss Ziegler was escorted to the stage to be crowned by Louis Fryman, master of ceremonies. She wore a white chiffon, waltz length gown under a blue velvet and white fur wrap.

The 33 entrants in the Miss Penn State contest formed an honor arch through which Miss Ziegler went up to the stage.

Judging the finalists, besides Miss Pennsylvania, were Dr. Grace M. Henderson, dean of the College of Home Economics; Dr. Ben Euwema, dean of the College of the Liberal Arts; Dr. Lyman E. Jackson, dean of the College of Agriculture; Dr. Ossian R. MacKenzie, dean of the College of Business Administration; Dr. Elbert F. Osborn, dean of the College of Mineral Industries; Ernest B. McCoy, dean of the College of Physical Education and Athletics; and Dr. Clarence I. Noll, assistant dean of the College of Chemistry and Physics.

Miss Penn State will receive a trophy for her title in addition to 15 Spring Week points toward her overall trophy. Finalists will receive eight Spring Week points.

Expensive Expansion Plans Set

By JUDY HARKISON

President Milton S. Eisenhower said yesterday that approximately $100 million will be invested in the University within the next 14 years in order to accommodate the great predicted increase of students.

Speaking before the Faculty Luncheon Club, he explained that "in 14 years we are planning to expand the graduate enrollment by 100 per cent and the undergraduate enrollment by 50 per cent."

Dr. Eisenhower said he has found that alumni have "a degree of nostalgia" and want the University to remain unchanged. They question the necessity and wisdom of growth, he said.

Must Provide Education

The University, however, has no choice but to provide education for a vast number at low cost, he continued, and added that "we are a servant of the people, not ourselves."

"It is incumbent on all connected with the University that it expands to meet the demand as far as resources permit," he explained.

The quality of education must first be maintained, he warned, and the University should reserve the jurisdiction to place limitations on the growth.

Present Plan Maximum

Dr. Eisenhower said that the present expansion plan is the maximum that can be done with the available resources.

The University will receive over

Ike Advises Aid Changes Will Hurt Policy

WASHINGTON, April 30 (AP) — President Dwight D. Eisenhower advised Congress today that tampering with his foreign aid program would "gravely endanger" national security and upset foreign policy.

Eisenhower's views were relayed to the Senate Foreign Relations Committee by Secretary of State John Foster Dulles, along with Dulles' own recommendations to keep the program rolling as part of "a national insurance policy" against "a serious and evident threat from the Soviet Communists."

The doubleheader appeal immediately ran into needling from Sen. J. William Fulbright (D-Ark) and a threat of a sizable cut. Fulbright told Dulles he can't vote for a 40 per cent hike in the foreign aid authorization in the face of what he said is constant propaganda from the Republicans about "peace and prosperity."

"If we have peace," Fulbright said, "then there is no excuse for increasing this program by 40 per cent. If we don't have peace, then

Fantasies in Store At Carnival Tonight

Greeks and Indies, turning stranger than fiction, will dance, parade, and sing tonight in the fantasies of the Spring Week carnival.

The carnival, consisting of 39 show booths, ticket booths, concessions and rides will open at 6:30 p.m. The booths will be held at the south-east corner of the golf course.

The theme for this year's carnival, Show and Song Titles, will be carried through by the 39 show booths in three divisions: true presentation (close adherence to original show or song), parody, and original.

All booth areas will be marked off in line and signs will indicate to which group the area belongs.

Food Stands

There will be food stands with soft drinks and food to be sold by Home Delivery Pizzeria, Sally's Sandwich Shop, Nittany Deli and the Pepsi Cola Company.

A merry-go-round, flying saucer, and two ferris wheels will be the rides provided.

All show booths will be subject

Late Hours Granted To Coeds for Carnival

Women students will receive late permissions for the carnival tonight.

Coeds must be back in the dorms by 11:15, according to Daisy Zimmerman, president of Women's Student Government Association.

Each carnival group may submit a list of six women who will receive midnight permissions so they may help in dismantling carnival booths.

1st Student-Faculty Show Headed by Variety Acts

Variety acts ranging from phonetic punctuation to a faculty dixieland band highlighted the first Faculty-Student Variety Show at Recreation Hall last night.

The show preceded the coronation of Miss Penn State.

The show stopper by audience acclamation was a phonetic pronunciation by Rita Brown.

The act, popularized by comedian Victor Borge, had the audience in stitches. Miss Brown, after a scholarly entrance on the stage, proceeded to read a piece of writing by "John Sebastian Shakespeare," using vocal sounds for the customary punctuation marks.

The show opened with accordionists Zigmund Bogucki and Donald Dolecki playing "Darktown Strutters Ball," "Pent House Serenade," and "Five Foot Two."

Water Suspended in Air

William Shields, billed as the "Wizard of KDR," then proceeded to suspend water in air. Shields filled a glass with water, turned it upside down, and presto! No water fell out. While on the liquid binge, Shields pulled a student from the audience, punctured his elbow with an ice pick, and pumped water from the student's arm.

The show had its share of vocalists with Joan McKenzie, Joseph Bohart, and James Shea representing the students and Virgil
