

Hendel Receives Position As NSA Regional Head

Barbara Hendel, University National Student Association special arrangements chairman, was elected regional chairman for the Pennsylvania and West Virginia region at a regional business meeting Sunday morning.

Lawrence McCabe, junior in arts and letters from Uniontown, was elected vice president of international affairs at the meeting.

Other students elected to regional offices are not students at the University. They are Dorothy Devine from Chatham College, vice president of student affairs; Joseph Razzano from Dickinson College, vice president of student government; and Ida Cooper from West Virginia University, vice president of educational affairs.

Experts Were Advisers

Six experts on the subject of "Why, Where, and How of Student Leadership" worked as advisers for the workshops of the convention which started Friday afternoon and ended Sunday afternoon. The discussions and decisions of student problems were carried on in the workshops.

The experts who served as resource people for the discussions are Stephen Fuller, assistant professor of business administration at Harvard Graduate School; Richard Winters, dean of students at Franklin and Marshall College; Christine Royer, professor at Dickinson; Charles McCracken, dean of men at Allegheny College and a member of the National Advisory Board of NSA; William Cooper, professor at Allegheny; and Wilmer E. Kenworthy, director of student affairs at the University.

Twenty-eight schools attended the convention. The number of delegates varied according to the size of the school. From the 28 schools, 115 students attended the meetings.

The schools are: Albright College, Alliance College, Allegheny, Bethany College, Bucknell University, Beaver College, Chatham, Cedar Crest College, Dickinson, Franklin and Marshall, Geneva College, Glenville State College, Harcum Junior College, Keystone Junior College, Lincoln University, Lycoming College, Marshall College, Marywood College, Mount Mercy College, the University, Rosemont College, Seton Hill College, Sheperd College, Temple University, University of Pennsylvania, Ursinus College, West Virginia, and West Virginia Wesleyan College.

Expansion—

(Continued from page one) 10,000 applications of admittance from qualified persons this fall, he said, but under the circumstances, is able to accept only 3000 students on campus.

The excess college prospects go west to find the doors closed because there the institutions are growing even more rapidly, he continued. They cannot accept out-of-state students, he said, when their own demand has yet to be met.

Sophomore to Fill Presidential Post Of Delta Sigma Pi

Richard Doyle, sophomore in business administration, has been elected president of Delta Sigma Pi, men's business fraternity.

The other officers are Harry Brown, sophomore in business administration from Pittsburgh, senior vice president; Adams DiDomenic, sophomore in business administration from Clifton Heights, vice president; George Hankins, junior in business administration from Latrobe, secretary; John Price, sophomore in business administration from Stroudsburg, treasurer.

Education Group To Meet Tonight

The monthly meeting of the Association of Childhood Education will be held at 7 tonight in Atherton lounge instead tomorrow. The date of the meeting has been changed because of the Spring Week activities.

David Faust, sophomore in education from Bloomsburg, will give a report May 8 on the National ACE convention which he attended for five days in Washington, D.C. A send-off for seniors in education also will be held.

University To Arbitrate With Patrol

A hearing on the grievance filed by Campus Patrol's night staff against the University for removing firearms from the patrolmen will be held soon, according to a University spokesman.

The protest was presented to Walter H. Wiegand, director of Physical Plant, under which the patrol operates, Thursday by David Peters, the patrol steward.

The protest is the result of an assault on Patrolman Frederick N. Hite by two students during a burglary at Beaver Field April 5. This was one day after the University ordered the patrol to disarm.

Peters to Meet With Bosses

Under the rules for conducting a first hearing on a grievance, Peters would meet with his immediate supervisor and the next highest supervisor.

If no agreement can be reached at the first hearing, Peters and all supervisors concerned would meet with a University official, the rules state.

During these meetings Peters would be allowed to have other employes of his own choosing with him at the arbitrating table.

Another Meeting Next

If no agreement is reached during these meetings, another meeting would have to be held with the vice president of the University or his designate also attending the meeting.

The last step provided by the rules is referral of the grievance to a three-man board consisting of a University representative, the employe or his designate, and a neutral representative agreeable to both parties concerned.

Hite, the patrol's night sergeant, was slugged in the face while attempting to arrest two student burglars. The students have been suspended from the University.

X-Ray Unit Checks 437 on First Day

The mobile X-ray unit operated by the Bureau of Tuberculosis Control of the Pennsylvania Board of Health in Harrisburg is in its second day of operation after taking 437 X-rays yesterday.

The unit, which offers free chest X-rays to students, staff members, and borough residents, will conclude its work tomorrow. Situated in front of the infirmary at Pollock and Shortlidge roads, the unit is open from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. and from 2 to 6 p.m.

The X-rays are primarily for seniors, but all others are welcome to receive them, according to Dr. Herbert R. Glenn, director of the University Health Service.

'Hatters,' He-Men Compete Tomorrow

The Mad-Hatters parade and He-Man contest will be held at 6:30 p.m. tomorrow night at Beaver Field.

In the event of rain, the Mad Hatters parade will be held tonight in Schwab auditorium. Judith Burns, chairman of the parade, said that participants and bands must be in position by 5:45 p.m.

Also, if it rains, the He-Man contest will be held in Schwab auditorium.

He-Man Contestants

Thirteen men will compete for the title of He-Man by participating in the bench press, the 220-yard dash, and the running broad jump. Entrants will also compete in a physique contest and an original name and costume parade which will precede the finals. Members of the groups sponsoring the finalists may work with the contestants in the parade.

The theme for the Mad Hatters parade is Book Titles and the hats will be judged in three divisions, artistic, comic and original. Only two entries from each collective group may be entered and hats must be of a size to fit into the door of Schwab auditorium, in case of rain.

Contest Winners

The winner of the Mad Hatters parade will receive 25 Spring Week points.

In the He-Man contest, each finalist will receive 3 points toward Spring Week. The winner will receive 12; second place winner, 10; third place, 8; and fourth place, 6.

Local Chapter Gains State Phi Mu Award

The University chapter of Phi Mu sorority has won the Phi Mu achievement award for the fourth consecutive year.

The award is presented to the outstanding chapter of the sorority in Pennsylvania each year.

The award was presented during the Phi Mu State Day, held in Harrisburg April 7.

BusAd Council Names Group

Committee appointments were announced last Monday at the first meeting of the newly elected Business Administration Student Council.

Those appointed to the board of meeting control were Saylor Fultz, chairman; Patricia Murphy, and Paul DeJeu. Members named to the pre-registration committee were William Nelson, chairman; Gerald Tolson, and Harry Newman.

A committee consisting of Jack Valentine, chairman; Dorothy Darlington, Janet Ours, and Jack Halpern was appointed to make plans for a freshman-faculty mixer to be held in the Fall.

The council also approved a motion to give the editor of the BizAd Bulletin a permanent seat on the council. The motion was passed by a two-third vote, but must be voted on again at the next meeting.

Two Freshmen Awarded Scholarships by Panhel

Two freshmen women have been awarded $85 scholarships by the Panhellenic Council, according to Barbara Nicholls, council president. The scholarship recipients are Barbara Simon, freshman in education from Douglasville, and Esther Pressel, freshman in applied arts from Loysburg.

The scholarships were awarded on the basis of scholastic achievement, activities, and need.
