

McDonald Chosen 1956 Dairy Queen

Martha McDonald was selected Dairy Queen last night by the Dairy Science Club members.

Miss McDonald is a senior in home economics extension from Shippensburg and was sponsored by Phi Mu. After hearing of her victory she commented, "It's just wonderful and I am very proud to be Queen."

The two other finalists in the Dairy Queen Contest were Patsy Ann Paxton, sophomore in art education from Mechanicsburg, sponsored by Zeta Tau Alpha; and Barbara Albeck, sophomore in applied arts from Duncannon, sponsored by Sigma Sigma Sigma. Karen Bixler, sophomore in home economics from Wrightstown, sponsored by Gamma Phi Beta, was also chosen as a finalist in the annual contest but if chosen queen would not have been able to appear at the Dairy Exposition on May 12 since she is a member of May Court.

The Dairy Science Club is holding its 31st annual exposition and the selected queen will preside over the show which is to be held at the Livestock Pavilion from noon to 5 p.m. May 12. She will be officially crowned "Penn State Dairy Queen, 1956" at this time.

This is the second time Miss McDonald has been a queen. She previously was Pennsylvania's apple queen.

Before the judges for the contest voted for their choice, the three finalists were interviewed by Gil Porter, professor of Dairy Science. Porter asked Miss McDonald what could be gained from being a "queen." She replied that when she was apple queen she had the honor of meeting many personalities which included the Secretary of Agriculture.

When asked about her future, Miss McDonald said, "I plan to work in the farm areas and see just what makes rural people tick."

Two Lion Statues Displayed at Store

Two lion statues which formerly graced the pillars at the main entrance to the University on College avenue are now in display at O. W. Houts and Sons store on Buckhout avenue.

Orlanda Houts purchased the lions in 1943 after they were destined to be melted down as scrap. The bengals stood at the entrance to his store until a disastrous fire last year destroyed the store and scorched the statues.

The lions were refinished and placed on exhibition again earlier this week.

Frosh Coeds To Pick Rooms For Next Year

Second semester women will register for rooms for next year at 1 p.m. tomorrow in Thompson Hall recreation room.

Applications will be taken in alphabetical order. If two women wish to room together, they will be taken on the letter of whom ever has the initial nearest A.

Women who requested single rooms on their preliminary housing blanks have had singles reserved for them. However, these women should check their room assignments at the same time.

Women who cannot register tomorrow should go to the dean of women's office starting Monday.

The reason registration is scheduled for tomorrow is because the dean of women's office has met opposition in the past when they tried to have registration during the week, according to Edith H. Anderson, of the dean of women's office.

She also said that any other weekend in the future would be too busy for women students.

Correction

The correct time for the horse show given by the Penn State Riding Club will be 9 a.m. and 1 p.m., tomorrow and Sunday.

'Players' to Use Renovated Stage

Schwab Auditorium's new stage, a modern affair built along the lines of the Elizabethan stage at Stratford, Ontario, will receive its first public workout in the Players' production, "An Inspector Calls," to be held May 10.

The new stage, according to Kelly Yeaton, associate professor of dramatics, represents a "direct attack on the sight and sound problems of Schwab Auditorium which have been hindering Players designers and technicians ever since it was first used for plays."

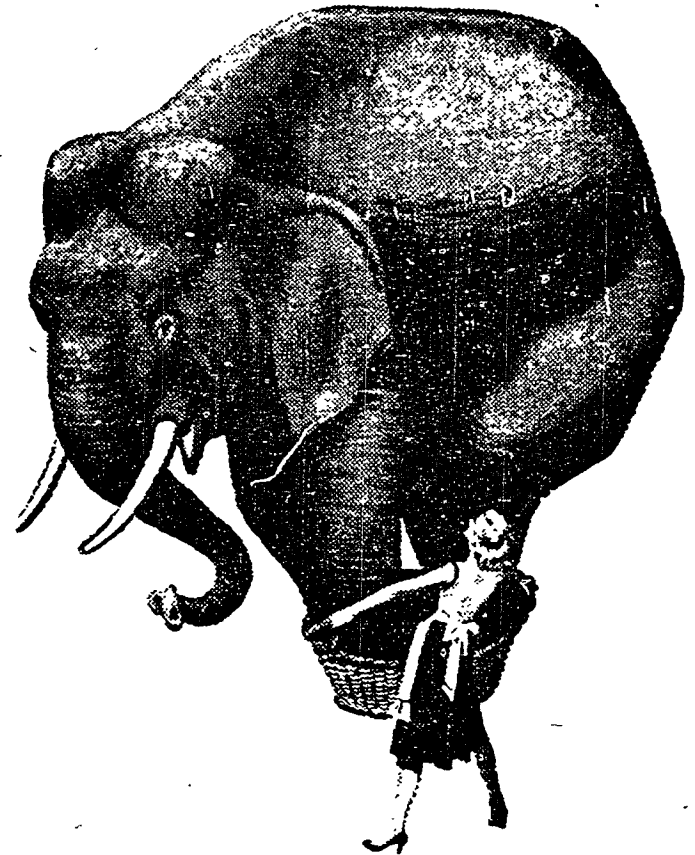

About one-seventeenth of U.S. gross national product is produced on farms.
