Collegian Drama Critic Pinned—By Black Magic

It isn't safe to be a drama critic these days.

Players' production of "An Inspector Calls" received an unfavorable writeup in yesterday's Daily Collegian, and, as usual, there were moanings and groanings.

However, two students on campus are using a different approach. Walking out of Willard Hall yesterday, one of the students pulled out a doll and started sticking pins and razor blades into it.

Evidently, the student was following an old Indian (Near East) tradition.

Apparently, the student's black magic powers weren't working. Ted Serrill, editorial director and drama critic of The Daily Collegian, said yesterday "I don't feel nuthin'."

Dancers —

-In 1926, May Day was held on Holmes Field, but it was moved to Front Campus the next year. It remained there until 1949 when construction forced it to return temporarily to Holmes Field again.

Holmes Field was not only used for the program itself, but for the now obsolete May Day breakfast. Freshman and sophomore women called for their big sisters at 7:15 a.m. to eat around a bonfire built on the field.

May Day --

Day tea will be held in each of the dormitory lounges from 2 to 3 p.m.

General chairman for the May Day ceremony is Margaret Forster and faculty advisor is Miss Helen Sittig, assistant dean of women. The event is sponsored by WSGA.
