

Choir, Orchestra To Present Concert

The Chapel Choir and Symphony Orchestra will present Mozart's "Great Mass in C Minor" at 8.15 p.m. tomorrow in Schwab auditorium.

The concert, honoring the Mozart bicentennial, is the ninth of the yearly concerts sponsored jointly by the University Chapel and the department of music.

Chapel Choir, composed of 102 members directed by Willa C. Taylor, will be assisted by 35 members of the Symphony Orchestra directed by Theodore Karhan, associate professor of music and music education.

Soloists to Appear
Soloists appearing with the University groups are Sylvia Stahlman, soprano; Jean Sanders, mezzo-soprano; Richard Casilly, tenor; and Raymond Brown, baritone.

Brown, assistant professor of music, was the baritone soloist at two previous Spring concerts, and Miss Sanders sang in the 1954 performance of Mendelssohn's "Elijah."

Two Make Debut at University
Casilly, a member of the New York City Opera, and Miss Stahlman, have recently returned from operatic engagements in Europe. They will be heard for the first time on the University campus.

No admission will be charged for the concert, but an offering to help defray expenses will be taken during the intermission. This voluntary offering is used for concert expenses that are not covered by the University subsidy allotted to the Choir.

The production details for the concert were handled by the Choir officers of the current year and the newly elected officers for next year.

Grandma--

is out of it too . . . Drinking habits of Penn Staters are changing thanks to the long lines in the Lion's Den. We used to drink coffee in the morning and Cokes in the afternoon. But the coffee line is so long in the morning that we drink Cokes then and the Coke line is so long in the afternoon that we drink coffee then. Oh, well . . .

Last week a little mixup happened with the picture appearing in this column. Half of the papers had sports editor Fran Fanucci's picture while the other half had the ugly one . . .
