what I say and go ahead with former plans on whether to see or not see a production. The height of silliness has been evidenced to me many times. This is when a person decides not to go to a show he really knows nothing about just because a reviewer pans it.

Such reasoning requires no explanation.

A final point. As often happens in the outside world, if someone finds he constantly agrees or disagrees with a critic after seeing shows, he may reach the point when he can decide whether to see a production on only the written viewpoint of the written reviewer. This could easily happen at Penn State. More power to the individual who can work under this method.

All in all, this reviewer believes his role as critic is no different from that of any other critic.

It could be disappointing to be so ordinary.

OVERTURE COMPOSER, C. Hugo Grimm studies "Pennsylvania, an Overture for Orchestra." The composition will be presented for the first time at 3 p.m. tomorrow in Schwab Auditorium at the Symphony Orchestra concert.
