

Dorms to Be Ready For Summer Use

By PAT EVANS

When June rolls around and students begin packing up for summer vacation the dormitories must be readied for the new avalanche of residents who will be staying at the University for summer sessions or conferences.

The more use made of the residence halls during the summer, the less regular students will have to be charged for housing, according to Otto E. Mueller, director of housing.

Nye Elected President of UCA Board

Edwin P. Nye, associate professor of mechanical engineering, was elected president of the University Christian Association Board of Directors at its annual meeting Saturday night.

He succeeds Dr. Russell B. Dickerson, associate dean of the College of Agriculture.

The board approved a $26,710 budget, an increase of $2400 over last year. The new budget provides for an additional secretary in the Christian Association office and for more extensive expenditures by the U.C.A. staff.

Other Officers Elected

Other officers elected by the 59-member board were Paul H. Margolf, professor of poultry husbandry, vice president; Dr. Emory J. Brown, associate professor of rural sociology, secretary; and McDonald Heebner Jr., administrative assistant in the department of engineering research, treasurer.

Elected to round out the board's executive committee were Ralph E. Armington, assistant professor of electrical engineering; Dr. Gordon H. Pritham, professor of physiological chemistry; and The Rev. William L. Slee, of Tyrone.

Rev. Helmich Speaks

The board of directors heard The Rev. Hartland H. Helmich, national director of the department of campus Christian life of the Evangelical and Reformed Church, speak on "The Church and the University."

The Rev. Lester L. Dobyns, retiring executive director of U.C.A., delivered the annual report from the staff, saying he was "most pleased" with the association's progress during the past year.

The Rev. Hal Leiper, associate director, presented copies of "The Young Church in Action," by J. B. Phillips, to graduating seniors.

3 Profs Granted Research Money By Runyon Fund

Dr. Robert F. Gentry, Dr. Howard W. Dunne, and Dr. M. Frank Mallette have been granted funds for cancer research amounting to $15,400 by the Damon Runyon Memorial Fund in New York, N.Y.

Dunne, professor of veterinary science, and Gentry, associate professor of veterinary science, together were awarded $9,500, to spend in research on lymphoid tumors, a cancer of virus origin appearing in chickens. Using embryonated chicken eggs and tissue cultures, the two hope to develop diagnostic techniques, and possibly a vaccine for immunizing the birds.

Mallette, associate professor of agricultural and biological chemistry, has received $5,900 for a study of the synthesis of enzymes, which he hopes in turn will yield valuable information on the nature of malignancy.

'Relations' Club Elects Cash New President

Emma Cash, senior in education from Pottsville, has been elected president of the International Relations Club for the coming year.

Other new officers are Lawrence McCabe, junior in arts and letters from Uniontown, vice president; David Terrill, junior in arts and letters from Stroudsburg, secretary; and Frank Farrell, sophomore in arts and letters from Aldan, treasurer.

Vyse Named NSA Delegate By LA Council

Katherine Vyse, sophomore in arts and letters from Winnitka, Illinois, was chosen as the Liberal Arts Student Council representative to this year's National Student Association National Congress last night at a meeting of the Council.

Thursday night All-University Cabinet unanimously passed a motion allowing the NSA committee to choose additional delegates from Cabinet groups to attend the NSA National Convention this summer.

Miss Vyse will go as an observer and will not be able to vote.

The Council passed a motion naming Sussanah Newlin, junior in arts and letters from Tyrone, as next year's editor of Lantern. Dick Schriger, president of the Council, thanked Virginia Hudgins, this year's editor of Lantern, for her fine job.

The financial report was read, showing that the Council had $260.55 left from this year's expenses.

Virgilio Volpe, junior in arts and letters from Norristown, gave a report on the LA Student Council Scholarship. He said that the results have been poor, with only one application turned in.

Jay Feldstein, freshman in arts and letters from Elizabeth, gave a report on the Faculty Evaluation program. He said that the Administrative Committee, composed of deans and heads of departments in the College of Liberal Arts, would help the Council with its faculty evaluation program.

AIM Judicial Board

The Association of Independent Men Judicial Board of Review will hear two cases at 8:30 tonight in 213 Hetzel Union.

It will be the board's last meeting this semester.

AM Station WPSC Discontinued in 1932

By KIP NEWLIN

All-University Cabinet's recommendation last week to install a student AM radio station marks the 25th year since the ending of its predecessor.

The first AM station, WPSC, was forced to discontinue broadcasting when it was unable to meet the equipment specifications of the Federal Radio Commission in 1932 and was unable to obtain sufficient funds.

24 Will Attend UCA Seminar

Twenty students and four other persons will take part in the European Seminar conducted this summer by the University Christian Association.

They will study the present political and religious situation in western Europe.

The six-week itinerary includes England, France, Germany, Switzerland, and the Netherlands. The group will meet with outstanding political, educational, and religious leaders in London, Bonn, Berlin, Geneva, and Paris.

Dr. Frederick R. Matson, professor of archaeology, and the Reverend Robert B. Starbuck, associate director of UCA, are the directors of the seminar.

The 19 student-members of the seminar are Sarah Bringman, Patricia Brown, Carol Davidson, Barbara Grest, Marjorie Harris, Dianne Herold, Elizabeth Hobe, Delite Hoopes, Nancy Horst, Carol Keplinger, Barbara Kulp, Joseph McIlroy, Forney Miller, Esther Pressel, Roberta Sankey, Carl Saperstein, Ruth Stafford, Keith Vansant, and Barbara Wragg.

Mrs. Roberta Conner of State College and Mrs. Jo Starbuck of State College, who do not attend the University, will accompany the students on their European tour.

The station was set up by two professors in 1909. A course of study was arranged but work was confined to code transmission.

License Granted
One of the first experimental licenses was granted the station by the government in 1912 and it was assigned the call letters 8XE.

Formal classes were introduced, but the station no sooner became well-established than it was closed for the war and the equipment was sealed.

Station 8XE was reopened for experimental work in 1919. Gilbert Crossley, assistant professor of electrical engineering, was employed as an undergraduate in 1920 to take charge of actual operations. He built the first crude transmitter in 1921 from equipment valued at $1000 which had been donated by the Pittsburgh alumni that spring.

Call Letters Issued
With the new transmitter, the station was licensed for 500 watts with a wave length of 360 meters. The call letters, WPAB, which had been issued to it, were changed upon request in 1922 to WPSC.

WPSC held its first broadcast in April 1923, but programs were infrequent because of insufficient funds. Seven hundred dollars was allowed by college authorities in the summer of 1926 for the installation of underground lines and the rebuilding of the transmitter.

Budget Allotted
The first regular budget allotment of $2000 was granted in June, 1927, and used for the third transmitter, designed by Crossley. In October, 1927, it was placed in operation. Between 1927 and 1929, WPSC operated approximately three hours per week.

Its license was renewed for full time in March, 1927, shared with the state police station at Harrisburg in June, 1927, reduced to daytime only in November, 1928, and revoked for not complying with the Federal Radio Commission amateur regulations in May, 1930.

After a hearing had been held, WPSC's license was renewed. However, equipment to meet Commission's specifications would have cost $20,000 and maintenance for one year, $10,000.

Station WPSC continued to function on an extended schedule after the executive committee of the College decided necessary funds were not available. Broadcasting eight hours a week, programs continued until the last day of the license, June 22, 1932.

However, since relatively few students from the summer sessions are housed in the dormitories, conference groups are heavily relied upon to help carry the burden of operation costs during the regular academic school year.

John Fishburn, University conference coordinator, cited these approximate figures: of a total of almost 6900 students who were enrolled for the summer sessions last summer only 1750 lived in the dormitories.

99 Conferences Scheduled
He also said that 99 conferences are scheduled to be held at the University this summer. Approximately 13,800 of the 21,600 delegates will be staying in the residence halls.

The conclaves with the largest numbers of delegates who will be living in the dormitories include the Future Homemakers of America, 1200; Future Farmers of America, 1700; alumni institute and class reunion period, 1000; and 4-H Club, 1150.

Dormitories in Use
Dormitories in use during the summer will be Hamilton, McKee, Thompson, Waring, McAllister, Grange, and Woman's Building. Certain areas are set aside for summer session students and others for delegates, according to Fishburn.

These buildings will be thoroughly cleaned after the regular students have left in preparation for the summer residents.

Fishburn added that a great deal of good will is built up toward the University by the many conferences held here.

Joseph Rohrbaugh, junior in labor-management relations from Spring Grove, has been awarded first prize in the colored slide contest, sponsored by the Penn State Camera Club.

Second place went to Lawrence Matthews, junior in journalism from Malvern; and third-place winner was John Stellmack, research assistant at the petroleum research laboratory from Lewisport. Stellmack and David Seay, junior in liberal arts from Woodside Park, received honorable mention.

Judges for the contest were Robert Beese, photographer from the College of Agriculture; Mrs. Harry Miller, resident of State College; and Leslie Greenhill, associate director of the Instructional Research Program.

Dance to Clear Rec Hall Area

Student and other drivers have been asked by the dean of men's office to remove cars from the Recreation Hall parking area by 5:15 p.m. Thursday for the West Halls street dance which will be held in front of Rec Hall from 5:15 until dark.

The "Bermuda Fling," as the dance is called, will be held immediately after a mixed dinner in the West Halls dining rooms.

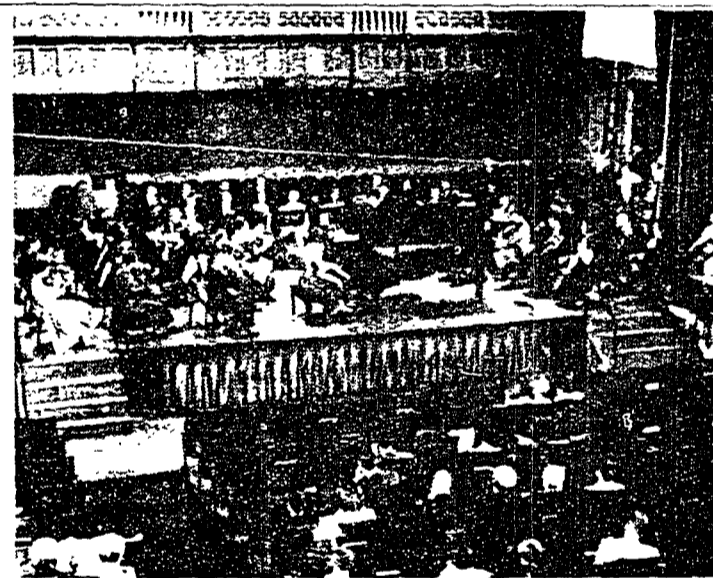

Flyers will be placed on car windshields parked in the Rec Hall area to remind drivers to remove their cars.

Director to Write Article

Albert Christ-Janer, director of the School of the Arts, has been commissioned to write the Encyclopaedia Britannica's "Drawing" article. The current piece will be his sixth for that publication.

Froth Keys Obtainable

Outgoing Froth directors may pick up their gold keys at the Hetzel-Union desk, according to Sanford Lichtenstein, outgoing business manager.
