

Counseling Aids Students In Preparing for Studies

As a result of the advice given by the Division of Counseling, used for the first time this year, students are and will be better qualified for college-level study, Dr. Robert G. Bernreuter, director of the service, said Monday.

The division began its job this year by conducting a testing and counseling service for interested freshmen. The cost was $17.50 per person. Eleven hundred and twelve students accepted the service, and although only five per cent were expected to bring their parents, 80% did.

Westminster To Officiate At Chapel

Student members of the Westminster Foundation will officiate at worship services at 8:10 a.m. today in the Helen Eakin Eisenhower Meditation Chapel.

The basic fourth worship service is open to students of all faiths. Three such services are conducted by various religious foundations under the auspices of the University Christian Association on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday of each week in the Meditation Chapel.

Students from the Roger William Fellowship participated in yesterday's service.

The Evangelical United Brethren Student Fellowship is responsible for Thursday's service.

In addition to morning worship services, a Vesper Service is conducted at 4:30 p.m. Thursdays in the tradition of the religious group responsible for the service.

The vesper tomorrow will be delivered by the Society of Friends, and next week, by students of the Methodist faith.

The Rev. Hal Leiper, Protestant chaplain to the University and Worship Commission adviser, encourages students of all-faiths to attend. He said "This (the services) is a rare privilege for Christians and all others who seek to know and to experience the life of the whole church."

Christ-Janer's Job Gets Helpful Boost

By BARB MARTINO

It is not at all unlikely that this morning Dr. Albert Christ-Janer, head of the department of fine arts, turned on his bedside lamp to jot down a new idea on how to further culture and fine arts at the University. He is this engrossed in his job.

After six months as head of the School of Fine Arts, Dr. Christ-Janer believes he has been paid the highest honor a teacher could receive.

Two students, both young painters, visited him in hopes of establishing larger extra class activities in fine arts.

Eager and Willing
They were eager and willing to do the job themselves in order to further develop activities in fine arts for their own enjoyment and education as well as for the enjoyment and education of anyone interested on campus.

"This," said Dr. Christ-Janer, "is a reassuring step in the right direction, for an interest in culture and fine arts must be 'student centered' to be successfully developed."

As part of the crusade to bring more culture to Penn State, Dr. Christ-Janer and his associates hope to increase concert and recital offerings, and to bring to the campus symphonies, ballets, choirs, unusual string combinations, and solo performers.

Offerings to Increase
According to tentative plans, there will be an increase in the size of library offerings—books dealing with the arts, record collections, and other visual material.

There is a movement to bring new visual material constantly (Continued on page eight)

WHY CAN'T IT JUST DIE PEACEFULLY?

SOME friends, mainly Collegian ad staff, have convinced us that our weekly column called "O.K. Joe?" is actually read by those of you who are now wasting time reading this. So, it looks like we'll have to exhume it.

THE term "O.K. Joe?" is merely a bit of plagiarism from Yank, a W.W. II overseas magazine, which used the caption underneath an over curvaceous female.

EACH June, we will send a girl to Bermuda. Carol Schmitzer of AXO won the honor this past June. Selection is made from a hatful of names by Collegian Staff. These names are those of any co-ed whose name or portrait appears in this column. Any names scattered in this column usually come from having seen the girl at a sorority or fraternity party we aimed our camera at.

THE purpose of this column is not so much to divert your extra greenbacks to an investment in a fine portrait as it is to expound mightily and lustily on small matters and small people.

MODESTLY, we'd like to state that we have been and still are turning down girls every day for H.C.Q.* portraits. It's simply our conviction that a good portrait must be hand crafted and not rushed thru in a few days. Unless it's a re-order from our files, we need from two to three weeks to complete a portrait. Those of you who might like to have us make a portrait may do well to arrange for a portrait sitting NOW if you feel that some group will ask you to represent them in the next contest.

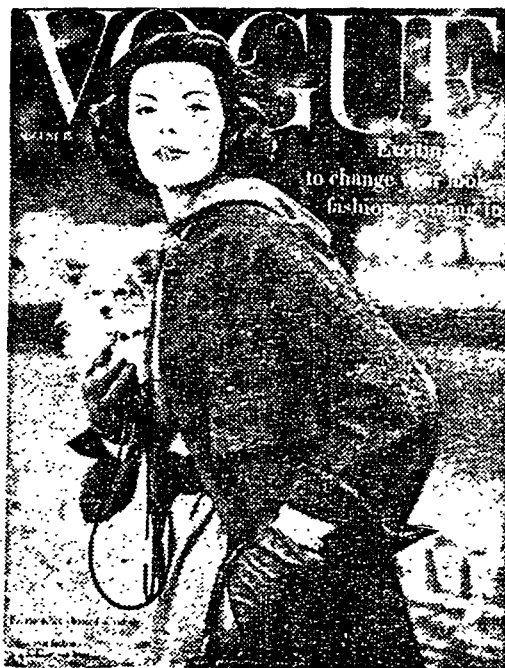

IF time permitted it, our first O.K. Joe picture would be that of the lovely Miss Ruth Nissen.

THE best Xmas portraits are NEVER made in December and rarely in November. Believe us—we know.
