Tug-of-War at Rally Last Look May End Customs

Freshman Customs will officially end tonight if the freshmen win the annual tug-of-war with the sophomore class scheduled for 7:30 p.m. in front of Recreation Hall.

The class winning the contest will receive the "tug-of-war" trophy on display today in the bulletin board at the Mall. The junior class, last year's winner, currently possess the trophy.

Half-Holiday Sought At Later Date

The Chemistry-Physics Student Council last night unanimously recommended that a half-holiday be held later in the football season.

The council took this action because the members believed the students are entitled to a half-holiday since All-University Cabinet recommended last year that a half-holiday be included on the University calendar.

Additional Proposal
This action, explained Joseph Eberly, council president, was in addition to the specific recommendation by Cabinet for a Penn game half-holiday, which was turned down Monday by a committee composed of the deans of the colleges.

The council suggested the Syracuse game for the half-holiday. This game was recommended because the members felt it is the most easily accessible of the away games other than the Penn game.

In other business, the president gave a report on the orientation program, which the council sponsored for the freshman during orientation week.

Appointments Made
Persons appointed to committees were Thomas Wellington, chairman, Patrick Gallagher, and Marlyn King, Newsletter editor nomination committee; Edwin Henrie, chairman, David Griswold, Robert Manning, and Fredric Miller, elections committee.

It was announced at the meeting that the Chemistry and Physics Newsletter is under the process of reorganization. Students of the college interested in writing for the editorial staff have been requested to notify Thomas Wellington.

Army Ticket Sale To Begin Today

Tickets for the Army game on Oct. 3, go on sale at 8 this morning at the ticket office on the second floor of Recreation Hall.

The sale of tickets for this Saturday's Penn game will be discontinued at 11 this morning.

The Army game is one of the two away games at which the Blue Band will perform. The other is the Pitt game.

BusAd Mixer Postponed

The Business Administration Student Council mixer, previously scheduled for tonight, has been postponed because of the football rally.

The mixer will be held at 7 p.m. Wednesday in Waring Lounge.

Saturday Deadline To Add Courses

Saturday will be the last day students may add courses to their present schedule.

The deadline for dropping courses will be Oct. 13.

Students wishing to add or drop courses may obtain a drop-add slip from their faculty adviser. The adviser will explain the procedure.

A fee of $2 will be made for adding and dropping courses unless the University is at fault.

The battle will serve as a finale to the Penn-Penn State pep rally slated to start at 7 with a giant motorcade. After the motorcade winds its way up to Rec Hall, head football coach Charles (Rip) Engle and team captain Sam Valentine will address the group.

Cheerleaders Present
Cheerleaders will lead the group in songs and cheers, accompanied by the Air Force Reserve Officers Training Corps Pep Band.

The rally is being sponsored by Androcles, junior men's hat society, and Chimes, junior women's hat society.

The Freshman Customs Board has asked freshmen attending the rally to wear dinks. Any freshman man may participate in the tug-of-war. The only stipulations are that he must be wearing a dink and have his matriculation card with him.

Sophomore Team
Sophomores of various fraternities will comprise the upperclass team.

Frank J. Simes, dean of men, and Harold W. Perkins, assistant dean of men, will serve as judges for the rope-pulling contest.

Members of hat societies and sophomore women were especially asked to enforce customs today, which will probably be the last day of this year's program.

Members of the Customs Board including Katherine Dickson and George Wills, co-chairmen, and Sally McCoy, Heather Lohrentz, Sandra Guskus, Patricia O'Neill, Samuel Moyer, Alvin Clemens, Dana Harrison, George Sifter, Jo Fulton, and Robert Segal, will be allowed to enforce customs today for the first time.

Enforcement by Board
During the other days of the program, these students, as members of the Freshman Customs Board, were not allowed to enforce customs or turn in names of violators.

Three violators who appeared before the board last night during its last session were instructed to attend the pep rally as their (Continued on page eight)

Seven Student Violators Fined by Traffic Court

Seven students were assessed a total of $16 in fines at traffic court Monday night.

Parking violations accounted for $14 of the fines. Failure to report within one school day following a summons resulted in a $2 fine.

Two cases were dismissed by the court.

Today's Forecast-- Rainy Morning, Clear Afternoon

Possible rain this morning and a clear afternoon are forecast for today.

Hurricane Flossy, slowly moving up the East coast and out to sea, will be responsible for any rain. The storm may bring winds from the northeast and ranging from 15 to 20 miles per hour.

Decreasing cloudiness throughout the day is expected. Temperatures are to hit a high of 75 degrees this afternoon and drop to 45 during tonight.

Yesterday's high was 68 degrees.

A low of 45 degrees was recorded at 6 a.m.

According to the University weather station, the present weather situation indicates a clear and warmer day for Saturday's Penn game in Philadelphia.

Cabinet to Discuss Better Government

Recommendations from the student encampment workshop report, "Making student government more effective," will be discussed by All-University Cabinet at 7:30 tonight in 203 Hetzel Union.

A request to grant Town Independent Men a seat on Cabinet is one of the recommendations. It was submitted at encampment by James Tipton, TIM president.

At the present time 6000 men are represented by the president of the Association of Independent Men. This total far outweighs the

NSA Policy Viewed by Eng Council

The Engineering and Architecture Student Council last night discussed the allegation that the National Student Association has subversive leanings.

After receiving a report from Lawrence J. Perez Jr., sophomore in Engineering Science from State College, the council's representative at the National Student Association Conference in August, a council representative asked Perez about the provisions of the NSA constitution concerning members who belong to subversive organizations.

Perez said that this subversive question was one of concern to many members at the conference. He said in his interpretation of the policy of the NSA, it did not deny membership in its organization just because the person belongs to organizations advocating the violent overthrow of the government.

Perez made two recommendations to the council. He recommended that as long as the University is a member of NSA the Engineering and Architecture Student Council should send a representative to NSA national conferences.

He also recommended that the council set up a liaison between itself and the NSA organization on campus.

In other business, Alton Kendall, sophomore in engineering from Reading, was appointed co-editor of the Engineering Newsletter.

The council approved a committee report on the establishment of the Engineering and Architecture Student Council Scholarships. There will be two scholarships provided for $140 each to two sophomores in the college.

Dr. Marin to Lecture

Dr. Joseph Marin, professor and head of the department of engineering mechanics, will speak at the Engineering Mechanics seminar at 1:10 p.m. today in 203 Engineering "A."

His topic will be "Mechanics of Creep."

representation of other Cabinet seats.

If TIM would win a Cabinet post, it would represent about 3800 men, thus dividing the responsibility of the AIM seat.

Council Affects Students

Concerning another phase of student presentation, the report suggests that State College town council, when considering a problem directly affecting a student organization, invite a member of the respective group to attend and contribute to the meeting.

Also included in the report is a suggestion to establish a Cabinet public relations standing committee to coordinate student government information.

Consult NSA

Through this group, the report reads, the National Student Association should be consulted to gather ideas from other campuses regarding student-faculty relations. Cabinet issues, it says, should be presented to students by a representative of Cabinet expressing the group's views through The Daily Collegian.

In addition to the encampment report, Cabinet will hear a report on the Student Handbook. This will be presented by Lawrence Jacobson, editor.

Pre-Registration Meets Approval

The Business Administration Student Council has unanimously supported with one recommendation the pre-registration of seventh and eighth semester Business students conducted this semester.

The council recommended Monday that course cards be given to seniors when they pre-register in Sparks Building instead of waiting until the student register at Recreation Hall.

The council also voted to delay Career Day until the second, third, or fourth Tuesday of the Spring semester because of the unavailability of distinguished speakers during the national elections in November.

DIR Director to Attend Farmhouse Conclave

Dr. H. K. Wilson, director of the Division of Intermediate Registration, is attending the national conclave of Farmhouse fraternity this week at the University of Missouri.

Dr. Wilson is national vice president of the social fraternity, which has chapters in 16 schools.

Selective Service

Men 18 years old may register for selective service with Sara E. Case in the dean of men's office.

Students registering at the University will be transferred to their home boards.

Integration Blamed for Sex Problems

WASHINGTON, Sept. 26 (AP)

—A group of women school teachers told House investigators today that racial integration in Washington schools was followed by an increase in sex problems, some of which they declined to detail in public.

Dr. Regis Boyle, a teacher at Eastern High School, said that in the first year of integration "we felt that the girls were being man-handled in the corridors in a manner that was not uplifting."

Cities Editorial

She said the school newspaper ran an editorial with "hands off" as its theme. Both white and Negro girls were involved in the situation, she added.

Other witnesses testified about the circulation of obscene stories among girl students and the finding in a school yard of girls' dresses and "even worse than that."

Witnesses Praised

Rep. John Bell Williams (D-Miss.), a member of the special House subcommittee investigating integration problems here, commended the witnesses for a presentation of what he termed "candid facts."

He praised one witness for speaking up, as he put, "in spite of pressures . . . being imposed by various organizations outside the school."

Group Not Named

Williams did not specify any organization by name. The National Association for the Advancement of Colored People has contended repeatedly that the subcommittee, composed largely of Southerners, is trying to show that school integration isn't working.

Washington schools were integrated in the fall of 1954, shortly after the Supreme Court ruled that public school segregation is unconstitutional.

Inquiry Lauded

The subcommittee's inquiry was praised today by Chairman McMillan (D-SC) of the parent House District of Columbia Committee. He sent subcommittee Chairman James C. Davis (D-Ga.) a telegram congratulating his group and its counsel, William Gerber of Nashville, Tenn.

Rep. Wier (D-Minn) had asked as a member of the parent committee that McMillan call a meeting to consider halting the investigation. Wier accused Gerber of a "disgraceful performance."
