

Upperclass Coeds Elect Unit Heads

Coeds in Simmons, McElwain, Atherton, and Grange dormitories elected unit officers Monday night.

One contest ended in a tie and a re-vote was held last night.

The presidents of each unit will serve in the Women's Student Government Association House of Representatives.

Social Site For Frosh Investigated

With freshmen minors banned from drinking at fraternities, West Halls Council is seeking to provide a social center in Waring Lounge for freshmen.

Tentative plans include parties and dancing in the lounge every Friday and Saturday night. A band or combo may be present.

The Council Monday night discussed having more mixed dinners this year, followed by dances in Waring Lounge.

Bowling League Discussed
A co-ed bowling league was discussed as something new in the field of recreation. The league would be composed of six or eight teams and would be completely independent of the Intramural setup. A trophy may be awarded.

Robert Blank and Kurt Barenstocker were appointed temporary representatives-at-large to the Association of Independent Men until elections are held to fill the posts.

Committee Posts Open
Men interested in serving on elections, housing, constitutional, or other committees may apply through their unit president.

The Council will meet at 7 p.m. Monday in McKee Lounge.

WSGA Names 15 Candidates

Fifteen coeds have been selected by the Women's Student Government Association screening board as candidates for Freshman Senator.

They are:
Nancy Simpson, Susan Mickey, Geraldine Hartman, Cynthia Talbert, Marilyn Druschel, Loretta Ryzinski, Gretchen Van Kirk, Barbara Jacques, Susan Borchers, Josephine Rider, Nancy Bollenbacher, Anne Bickel, Nancy Clark, Judith Stock, and Mary Heinze.

These coeds may have their pictures taken before 1 p.m. Thursday at the Penn State Photo Shop. The charge will be 75 cents.

The candidates will meet at 8:05 p.m. Sunday in Thompson Hall lounge. The will be granted late permissions to tour the freshmen dormitories and be presented at the respective unit meetings.

16 Devote Summer To Welfare Work

By PAULA MILLER

To some people, the summer means three months of sunshine and relaxation at the seashore, but the Rev. Richard W. Nutt, Methodist Chaplain to the University, and 15 members of the Methodist Student Movement spent their summers distributing sunshine to the tenement areas of the Washington, D.C., Community Service Project.

These 15 students from nine different states and the Rev. Nutt willingly gave up six of their summer weeks to participate in the Washington Community Service Project. Each participant paid for his own transportation both ways and each paid a $25 activity fee.

During the six weeks the people of the Washington area wondered at the achievements of the 16 workers. Some of their activities included working on the house-painting project and making play areas out of spots once covered with rubbish. They also taught vacation Bible school in a Negro Methodist Church. With the people of the Mount Vernon Place Methodist Church, they ran an afternoon playground for small children.

In the evenings the workers took a house-to-house religious survey in two different areas. In addition, they attended social welfare seminars two evenings a week at their headquarters, a residence owned by the Mount Vernon Place Church.

For the $25 fee each member of the work camp received board and lodging and educational bus trips to Williamsburg and historic points in and around the District of Columbia. The Board of Missions of the Methodist Church contributed $1000 for expenses, and the Methodist Board of Education, $400.

The student participants were all college students or graduates coming from the University of Texas, Southern Methodist University, the University of Redlands, Depauw University, Illinois Wesleyan, Iowa University and others.

This is not the first year of the work camp. Projects such as this one in the Washington area have been going on for the past 15 years, under the Methodist Student Movement.

Ruth Nissen

Delta Gamma

WE thought you might like to see a portrait of Miss Nissen whom we made mention of last week.

AS with other girls whose portrait or whose name is mentioned in this column, Ruth is eligible to win our annual holiday in Bermuda.

PARTY pictures in color? Yes, it will finally be a reality within the next six to eight weeks.

SINCE we'll have more time to devote to sorority composites this year than ever before* we have reason to believe that Alpha Xi Delta, our first sorority, will receive the best composite we've ever made.

FOR you men who intend to enter your girl in the next contest, you might do well in having her portrait made now. And while you're at it, have it made where photography is still an art.

*we won't be doing fraternity composites until next year.
