

Leadership Course Revamped for Frosh

The Leadership Training Program, designed this year for freshmen, will begin Oct. 17 and continue every Wednesday night during the next eight weeks.

The program includes instruction in parliamentary procedure, the role of a student leader, committee organization, public relations, and activities planning.

Registration will begin Monday at the Hetzel Union desk. Although the program is primarily for freshmen, upperclass students may also enroll.

The first meeting will begin at 6:30 p.m. and subsequent meetings at 7 p.m. All will be conducted in the Hetzel Union Auditorium.

To Receive Certificates

At the end of the eight weeks, students completing the program will receive certificates, a printed summary of the course, and a booklet published by the National Student Association, "A Guide to Parliamentary Procedure."

Students will not receive academic credits. A certificate will not be given if there are more than two absences, and all students must have written excuses for any absence.

"Why Student Leadership" will be the introductory topic at the first meeting. A top University official will explain the link between the administration and the student leader.

The second meeting will be devoted to activities and the structure of student government, administration, and definition and explanation of Cabinet committees.

"The Red Tape Special," or how to work with publicity, obtain requisitions, schedule meeting rooms, etc., will be discussed at the third meeting by a panel including George L. Donovan, Director of Associated Student Activities, Wilmer E. Kenworthy, Director of Student Affairs, and three students.

Brown to Speak

Dr. Emory Brown, associate professor of rural sociology, at the fourth meeting will explain how to conduct committees and demonstrate, with mock committee meetings, how "not to do it."

Joseph F. O'Brien, professor of public speaking, will discuss parliamentary procedure during the fifth and sixth meetings.

At the final meeting, further information on activities will be given. Students enrolled in the program may request specific topics to be considered.

McGeary Says Tax Main State Problem

By DICK FISHER

Dr. M. Nelson McGeary, professor of political science, said Tuesday night that four big problems, including enough revenue and how to raise it, loom before the General Assembly in its next session.

Dr. McGeary, in a speech before the Intercollegiate Conference on Government, said the other three problems were the low debt limit, a Civil Service system, and the question of absentee ballots.

Even though Governor Leader was elected on a platform of no sales tax, he said, there was a deficit of approximately $4 million in the treasury.

Sales Tax Passed

Since a graduated income tax, which he termed the only fair type of income tax, is unconstitutional in Pennsylvania. For this season, he said, a sales tax was passed anyway.

Dr. McGeary suggested passing a constitutional amendment permitting a graduated income tax. Another acute problem, he said, is posed by the low debt limits allowed by the present state constitution, which he said prohibits the state from exceeding $1 million. With a state budget of about $8 billion this limit is "ridiculously low," Dr. McGeary said.

State Establishes Authorities

The state circumvents this law by establishing state authorities such as the turnpike authority, which can borrow large sums of money, he said.

Legislative steps of increasing the debt limit should be taken, he said.

Also sure to be an issue, in his opinion, is the lack of a Civil Service system for three-quarters of the state's employees.

"In Pennsylvania we are in a serious condition concerning professional and technical employees. Since there is no future through the patronage system now in effect, capable men will not take state jobs," he said.

Restricted Absentee Ballots

Pennsylvania has no absentee ballot system except for servicemen or hospitalized veterans, he said. To enable such individuals as students or businessmen away from home to vote, he suggested the passing of a constitutional amendment.

Dr. McGeary's talk was to give member a background of state politics for an IGG convention. His suggestions, he said, were merely one of a number of possible solutions to the problems.

Ticket Sale For Concert To Continue

The membership campaign of the Community Concert Association is expected to close within the next two days if the ticket sales continue at the present rate, according to Harold Welch, head of the Association.

Student sales have been much heavier this year than ever before, according to David McKinley, president of the local association. No figures have been made available.

Fraternities, sororities, and other organizations have been buying several tickets for the series. Members of the groups who wish to attend the individual concerts can then divide the use of the tickets.

Series tickets are selling for $7 and the goal is determined by the seating capacity in Schwab Auditorium where the concerts will be presented. Memberships will not be available after the campaign closes.

Tickets may be purchased at the campaign headquarters in the lobby of the Hetzel Union Building or from volunteer solicitors in the residence halls.

Concerts already scheduled include the Westminster Choir, the Pittsburgh Symphony Orchestra, and Eileen Farrell, soprano. It is expected that one or two additional concerts will be arranged after the close of the campaign.

You didn't?—Well, don't worry, Ethel has just the perfect epilogue to a wonderful time, in the form of Handcraft greeting cards. One of them has a suave, sophisticated cat with the caption, "It's been purr-fect," or else the one with "Martinis do that to me!", would be just right.

Did you have a "slight" disagreement—"Lover come back to me," will fill the bill, or "I said I'm sorry." These are just a few of the literally millions of sizes, shapes, and styles. Ranging in price from ten to fifty cents, (for extra special ones), they are very economical and will fit any occasion from births to birthdays or from weddings to bon voyages.

... and more cards

Why not go to Ethel's now, instead of at the last minute. Take your time and look over a positively enjoyable week—all the unique patterns and a box. For that personal touch why not have your name printed on them? In Ethel's Christmas card shop there are original and complete catalogues of these cards. Pick out a few of them and order now. Don't wait 'til the night before Christmas.

Baubles, Bangles... Does that new sport dress need just the right touch, a glittering pin or earrings? What about last year's black wool? Copper, brass or pewter are just what you need. Ethel has a full selection of the latest, most exotic metal jewelry imaginable. From a single pin to a bracelet overflowing with foreign coins, the right "finishing touch" is there for you. At prices from $1.65. P.S. Copper and Loden Green look beautiful together.
