

Larsen Hurls Perfect Game

Yanks Top Bums, 2-0; Lead, 3-2

NEW YORK, Oct. 8 (AP)—Don Larsen, 27, a tall temperamental New York Yankee right-hander, pitched the first perfect game in World Series history today and beat Brooklyn's Sal Maglie 2-0. The triumph gave the Yanks a 3-2 edge after five games.

Retiring 27 successive Dodgers while 64,519 fans nibbled at their finger nails, Larsen drew an ear-splitting ovation as he whipped a third called strike past pinch-hitter Dale Mitchell for the final out.

Not since Charley Robertson of the Chicago White Sox mowed down Detroit for a perfect game, April 30, 1922, in a regular season American League game had a major league pitcher gone nine full innings without allowing a batsman to reach first base. In all the history of major league baseball only six pitchers have hurled perfect games.

When catcher Yogi Berra grabbed that final strike he rushed to meet Larsen near the first base line and grabbed him in a bunny hug, completely leaving the ground in his joyous leap. The entire Yankee club gathered around the big 6-4 pitcher as he ploughed through a mass of humanity toward the dugout.

Only once did Larsen reach the count of three balls on a batter and that was Pee Wee Reese, who became a strikeout victim in the first inning. In all Larsen struck out seven, five of them on a called final strike.

An erratic in-and-outer last year after he was acquired from Baltimore in an 18-man swap during the winter, Larsen was shunted to the Denver farm in midseason of 1955. He closed with a rush after his recall but lost his lone series start at Brooklyn.

Larsen changed his style midway in the 1956 season, shifting to a no-windup delivery that paid off with four September victories. In the second game of the current series he was yanked by Manager Casey Stengel in the second inning although he led 6-1 with the bases full and two out. The Yanks eventually lost that game 13-8.

The big fellow was hot from the very start, striking out Junior Gilliam and Reese, the first two men he faced. He had four of his strike outs at the end of three innings, mixing his breaking stuff with an occasional fast ball.

As Larsen came down the stretch, passing Herb Pennock's 1927 record of retiring 22 men in succession, the stands became alive. When he went into (Continued on page nine)

Small Colleges Said Important

President Eric A. Walker last night pressed for more junior colleges and community colleges as the only means for the state and nation to meet growing educational needs.

In his first speech as president of the University, at the dedication of a new building for the York center, Dr. Walker declared, according to the Associated Press: "With the rising pressure of demand for more and better education . . . it will not be possible for our great universities and the colleges of the Commonwealth to meet our needs unless we can put more dependence on the support of our communities in the development of local facilities—junior colleges, community colleges—for higher education."

Total Enrollment Climbs to 16,045

The final enrollment figure for the fall semester has climbed to an all-time high of 16,045.

This is an increase of 45 over the 16,000 figure that C. O. Williams, dean of admissions and registrar, predicted at the close of registration Sept. 15.

Last year the final total was 15,352.

Williams also said that 13,147 students are enrolled on the main campus this semester as compared to 12,653 a year ago. Of these 10,036 are men and 3,111 are women. The total also includes 11,876 full-time students, 1,271 part-time students, 266 special students and 1,482 graduate students.

Last year there were 9,697 men and 2,956 women on campus, thus making an increase this year of 339 men and 155 women.

The total number of men enrolled on both the main campus and at its centers is 12,497 as compared with 12,019 enrolled last year. There is a total enrollment of 3,548 women as compared to 3,333 last year.

At the centers there are 1,460 freshman students, 731 sophomores, and 20 juniors enrolled in the four-year program. There are also 1,323 students taking the two-year associate degree program and 115 forestry students at the Mont Alto Center.

The total number enrolled at the centers is 13,649 as compared with 2,594, the figure for last year. Of last year's total enrollment at the centers 2,217 were men and 377 were women.

Grid Tickets Now on Sale

A limited amount of tickets for the Ohio State game, Oct. 20, will go on sale 8 a.m. tomorrow at the ticket window, 238 Recreation Hall.

Edward M. Czeka, ticket manager, said the advance tickets for the contest were used to fill applications, and only a small rush order for students could be obtained.

Sales have neared the 85,000 sellout capacity at Columbus. Because of the pre-game sellout, tickets will be on sale this week only.

Tickets for the Holy Cross game this Saturday can still be obtained in the lower East stands, around the 10-yard line.

CBS-TV will cover the game on the National Collegiate Athletic Association regional hookup.

Two University students and two former students were injured in an automobile accident early Saturday in Tyrone.

Carleton Jones, sophomore in physical education from Philadelphia, driver of the car, and Richard Winston, senior in arts and letters from Philadelphia, were hurt when their car crashed into two houses.

The two former students were Shirley Davis and Jeanne Ripley, both of Philadelphia.

Class Board Supports High Court

The Junior Class Advisory Board voted last night to go on record as being in favor of retaining the Supreme Court.

The action was taken when board members suggested the advisory board take a stand on the student encampment recommendations to the All-University Cabinet that "because of its lack of purpose, the Supreme Court should be eliminated, with its functions being performed by Cabinet."

Cabinet Postpones Action Cabinet decided last week to postpone any action on the court's banishment until Oct. 16.

Robert Nurock moved that the board favor the retention of the court. Nurock said the court did not lack function as the functions and purposes of the court were listed in the All-University Student Government Constitution.

Check Value Seen Byron LaVan said he was in favor of retaining the court as a check and balance on Cabinet. He also said that an important purpose of student government was to give student training in a democratic government, therefore it was important to follow the pattern of national government with a legislative and judicial system. Fire Inspection To Be Resumed Inspection of State College homes and fraternity houses for fire hazards, which started last spring, is picking up now after a summer layoff.

Alpha Fire Chief Tom Sauers said crews were due to resume inspections of fraternities and rooming houses this week.

Although there are only a few of these remaining to be done, Sauers said that inspection of private homes will not begin at this time. He said that it was just too much for the volunteer inspectors to handle.

He said that letters will be sent to all the owners of buildings inspected. The letters will contain findings of the inspection team and recommend changes for fire safety.

BX Money Available

This is the last week that the University Book Exchange will be returning money for sold books. Students may pick up their money between 1:30 and 4:30 p.m.

Cold Weather To Hit Campus

The mercury today is expected to climb to the low fifties from near-freezing temperatures this morning.

Tonight may be much colder, with cloudiness persisting and a possibility of snow.

The University weather station warned that a cold front which was to move into the area last night may bring with it clouds, the possibility of snow, sprinkles of rain, and cold winds.

The snow, however, would be found only in the higher points surrounding University Park, according to the weather station.

The weather station's forecast said cold winds this afternoon would keep the temperature down.

Suez Crisis Continues

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y., Oct. 8 (AP)—Egypt and the Soviet Union today turned down the British-French plan for ending the Suez crisis. They countered with their own proposals for UN-sponsored negotiations to operate the canal under a system of cooperation.

Mahmoud Fawzi, Egypt's foreign minister, told the Security Council that he would vote against the British-French plan if he were a Council member. He was quickly seconded by Soviet Foreign Minister Dmitri T. Shepilov, who served notice Moscow would not approve the Western proposals based on decisions for international operation of the Suez Canal.

Making his first major speech in the Council, Shepilov said a negotiating group could be made up of Egypt, Britain, France, India, the Soviet Union and the United States. He said Yugoslavia and Iran or Indonesia and Sweden could be added if the Council wanted a larger committee.

Shepilov said this group should be instructed to work out a satisfactory agreement on the settlement of the problem. He said it also should write a convention to replace the Constantinople convention of 1888 on the Suez and could prepare a world conference to approve the new treaty.

New Convention "The new convention could take into account the spirit of our time, the just interests of Egypt and the interests of users of the canal," Shepilov said.

Applause burst out from Arab and Soviet sections of the Council gallery after the speeches by Shepilov and Fawzi.

Western delegates glumly said "No comment" but indicated they will not withdraw the British-French plan contained in a resolution put before the Council last Friday by Selwyn Lloyd, British foreign secretary, and Christian Pineau, French foreign minister. It is based on the London conference decisions calling for international operation of the canal and asking Egypt to cooperate with a new Suez Canal Users Association.

Dulles To Speak

Secretary of State Dulles, who doddled frequently as he listened to Shepilov and Fawzi, is slated to speak tomorrow and may give the first Western reaction. Dulles has been criticized in Britain and France for not going along to the hilt with Lloyd and Pineau.
