

Sorauf Says Clark Will Win; State Trend Favors Democrats

By LARRY JACOBSON
(One of a series)

Aided by an alleged switchover to the Democratic Party in Pennsylvania, Joseph S. Clark, Democratic nominee for state senator, will win during the November election, Dr. Francis J. Sorauf, instructor in political science, predicts.

Sorauf said he thought the biggest single factor in a Clark victory would be what he termed a "long-run change to the Democratic Party" in the state.

"For many years the state Republicans kept economics out of the picture," Sorauf said. Recently, he explained, the GOP has let the economic factor into campaigns "and when it comes to that, a big percentage of the voters vote Democratic."

Classifies Voters

In Sorauf's opinion, when the time comes for the "haves" and "have-nots" to divide, the great majority of "haves" vote Republican, and vice versa. Naturally, he said, most people could be classified as "have-nots."

The prediction was made without equivocation.

Clark will beat Duff even if Democratic presidential nominee Adlai E. Stevenson doesn't carry Pennsylvania, Sorauf said. But, he added, a Clark win would be much easier if Stevenson carries the state, although Clark will probably get more votes than Stevenson in either case.

Sorauf said Clark's prediction win is congruous with the personalities of the two candidates. He described the Democratic nominee as a man of "considerable ability with real intelligence." Then too, Sorauf said, Clark's record as mayor of Philadelphia is "highly commendable."

"I do not mean to infer that Duff is not an intelligent person," he said, "but to me, he (Duff) is just another senator." Sorauf called Duff's record "undistinguished—like a typical liberal medium Republican." He has shown no leadership in sponsoring bills, Sorauf added.

Says Duff Indifferent

This indifferent attitude is displayed in Duff's campaign this year, Sorauf explained. Of course, he said the GOP senator has never been a hard campaigner, and Duff probably did not want to run again this year. "But since Ike (President Dwight D. Eisenhower) is running again, Duff probably conceded to run once more, he said.

Although Clark is conducting a harder campaign and getting more attention from the newspapers, Sorauf discounted two campaign charges—one by Duff and Clark—as having no substance.

Charges Are False

"Clark's charges about Duff's absenteeism in roll call votes is a false issue," the young instructor explained. A roll call record is not a good way of telling how much a senator is interested in his job, he said. "Most senators have better things to do with their time, and may be in committees or doing extra work," he said.

Many roll call votes are on minor issues and the senator knows this, he said. Thus, senators don't waste their time at these sessions.

On the other hand, he countered Duff's charges that Clark is a leftist. "Duff is making the charge because Clark is interested in the ADA (Americans for Democratic Action)," Sorauf said. The group may be slightly leftist, he said, but basically it's a homing ground for New Deal and Fair Deal Democrats.

Panhel Council to Meet

Panhellenic Council will meet at 6:30 tonight in 203 Hetzel Union.

Committee reports are due and informal rushing regulations will be clarified.

WSGA Judicial to Meet

The Women's Student Government Association Judicial Board will meet at 5 p.m. today in 212 Hetzel Union.

Rushing Starts; Open House Sets Keynote

Informal rushing for upperclasswomen will officially begin today with open house in all sorority suites.

Open house will be held from 1 to 5 p.m. and 6:30 to 8 p.m. today, tomorrow, and Thursday.

Each sorority may be revisited during the three-day period as many times as the rushee desires. Maps showing the location of the suites will be given rushees in the dormitory lounges. Rushees are required to wear their official Panhellenic Council name tags.

Sigma Delta Tau, Phi Sigma Sigma, and Alpha Epsilon Phi will not hold open house Tuesday and Thursday.

Only coeds who registered for rushing in the office of the dean of women will be allowed to rush. Registration closed yesterday at 5 p.m.

Coke dates, for which the rushee must receive an invitation, will begin Monday. Rushees will receive invitations by mail. Answers to the invitations must be returned to the dormitory that houses the sorority before noon the following day.

Krutter Cited By U.S. Navy

Dr. Harry Krutter, former assistant professor of petroleum and natural gas engineering and fencing coach, has been presented the Navy's highest civilian award.

Dr. Krutter was singularly recognized for directing a group of scientists in the development of radar and other electronic equipment incorporated in the Navy's Airborne Early Warning aircraft. The award, which was presented at the Pentagon, consisted of a citation signed by the Secretary of the Navy and a check for $300.

Dr. Krutter is presently physicist and chief scientist at the Naval Air Development Center at Johnsville. He resigned from his position at the University in 1942.

HomeEc College To Hold Grad Day

A Graduate Day at the College of Home Economics, sponsored by the University, the Drexel Institute of Technology, and Temple University, will be held Oct. 20.

The program is planned to help qualified junior and senior students in colleges in Pennsylvania and adjoining areas understand what is involved in graduate work and what it can mean to them.

A morning panel on "Shall We Consider Graduate Work," with Dr. Ruth W. Ayres, head of the department of clothing and textiles, as moderator, will present information to help the student to consider graduate work at some time in his life, if not immediately after college.

Tickets on Sale For Two Shows

Tickets for the Players' production "My 3 Angels" and the Thespian original musical revue "Hat in the Ring" are now available at the Hetzel Union desk.

Price of the tickets for "My 3 Angels" is $1. Tickets for the Thespian show are $1 for Thursday's performance and $1.25 for the Friday and Saturday shows.

Home Economics Council

The Home Economics Student Council will meet at 7 tonight in the Home Economics living center.

Gilbert to Meet With Hat Group On Flash Cards

Representatives of the Hat Society Council are to meet with Harold R. Gilbert, assistant director of athletics and business manager, today to seek approval of the flash-card system.

Hat Society Council last week unanimously voted to support a flash-card system for home football games. If the system is approved by Gilbert, it is expected to go into effect for the Homecoming game.

The council plans to use 304 freshman volunteers for the performances. They will be seated in the middle of the freshman section.

Student to Hold Card

Each student will hold a card. It will be navy on one side and white on the other. The directions for each trick will be printed on one side of the card.

Representatives from each Hat Society will meet at 8:15 tonight in 223 Sparks to discuss final working plans.

Freshman volunteers will meet at 6:45 Thursday in 121 Sparks. At that time a Hat Society member will explain the system, and a practice will be held. The final practice will be held prior to game time on Saturday.

HomeEc Names 38 Students To Dean's List

Thirty-eight students have been named to the dean's list of the College of Home Economics for the spring semester.

MARKING ON THE CURVE... AND WHAT TO DO ABOUT IT

Twonkey Crimscott was a professor. Choate Sigafos was a sophomore. Twonkey Crimscott was keen, cold, brilliant. Choate Sigafos was loose, vague, adenoidal. Twonkey Crimscott believed in diligence, discipline, and marking on the curve. Choate Sigafos believed in elves, Jayne Mansfield, and thirteen hours sleep each night.

Yet there came a time when Twonkey Crimscott—mentor, sage, and savant—was thoroughly out-thought, out-foxed, out-manuevered, out-ployed, and out-witted by Choate Sigafos, sophomore.

It happened one day when Choate was at the library studying for one of Mr. Crimscott's exams in sociology. Mr. Crimscott's exams were murder—plain, flat murder. They consisted of one hundred questions, each question having four possible answers—A, B, C, and D. The trouble was that the four choices were so subtly shaded, so intricately worded, that students more clever by far than Choate Sigafos were often set to gibbering.

So on this day Choate sat in the library poring over his sociology text, his tiny brow furrowed with concentration, while all around him sat the other members of the sociology class, every one studying like crazy. "What a waste!" he thought. "All this youth, this verve, this bounce, chained to dusty books in a dusty library! We should be out singing and dancing and smooching—and cutting didoes on the greensward!"

Then, suddenly, an absolute gasser of an idea hit Choate. "Listen!" he shouted to his classmates. "Tomorrow when we take the exam, let's all—every one of us—check Choice 'A' on every question—every one of them."

"Huh?" said his classmates.

"Mr. Crimscott marks on the curve. If we all check the same answers, then we all get the same score, and everybody in the class gets a 'C'."

"Hmm," said his classmates.

"Let's get out of here and have a ball!" said Choate.

So they all ran out and lit Philip Morris and had a ball, as, indeed, you will too when you light a Philip Morris, for if there ever was a cigarette to lift the spirit and gladden the heart, it is today's new Philip Morris—firm and pure and fragrant and filled with true, natural, golden tobacco, lip end to tip end.

Well sir, the next morning the whole class did what Choate said and, sure enough, they all got "C's," and they picked Choate up and carried him on their shoulders and sang "For He's a Jolly Good Fellow" and plied him with sweetmeats and Philip Morris and girls and put on buttons which said "I DOTE ON CHOATE."

But they were celebrating too soon. Because the next time shrewd old Mr. Crimscott gave them a test, he gave them only one question—to wit: write a 30,000 word essay on "Crime Does Not Pay."

"You and your ideas," they said to Choate and tore off his epaulets and broke his sword and drummed him out of the school. Today, a broken man, he earns a meager living as a camshaft in Toledo.
