

ANN LUTZ, Homecoming Queen, receives flowers after her presentation Thursday night from Warren Moyer, her escort.

Enthusiasm Highlights Rally; 1200 Students Participate

By LYNN WARD

Approximately 1200 enthusiastic students gathered around a bonfire last night at the Holy Cross-Penn State pep rally. The Penn State Blue Band led an open convertible motorcade of students, cheerleaders and members of Cwens, sophomore women's hat society, from Recreation Hall down Pollock road to the bonfire site behind the Nittany area.

Students Asked To Follow Plan

Robert Bahrenburg, All-University president, reminded students last night that if they "section hop" at today's game, the Athletic Association will probably enforce a more rigid seating arrangement. Students need not sit in the specific section, row, and seat listed on their tickets, but must sit in a section to their class. Seniors may sit in sections EK, EJ, EH, and EG, which extend from the goal line to the 50-yard line in the east stands; juniors may sit in sections NK, NL, and NM, which are situated in the end zone; sophomores, sections NB, NC, ND, NE, end zone; and freshmen, NF, NG, NH, and NJ, end zone.

Freshmen Needed For Flash Cards

More freshmen are needed to participate in the flash card section for the West Virginia game, Oct. 27, according to a Hat Society Council spokesman. One hundred-fifty students attended a meeting of volunteers Thursday night. Three hundred-four participants are required for the execution of the tricks. The volunteers will meet with a member from the Hat Society Council, sponsor of the system, at 6:45 p.m. Oct. 25. Practice will be held at the meeting. Final practice will take place before game time.

Engineer Staff to Meet

The coed circulation staff of the Penn State Engineer will meet at 7 p.m. tomorrow in 209 Hetzel Union.

Students, shouting "Let's go Penn State," "Beat Holy Cross!" followed the motorcade through campus to the pep rally. Blue Band played down Pollock road and as the motorcade arrived at the bonfire students circled around the bonfire, which was about 40 feet in diameter.

Sam Walcott, head cheerleader, told the crowd that members of the football team had been asked to speak at the rally, but were unable to because of a meeting with coaches. Walcott thanked member of Blue Key, junior men's hat society, for building the bonfire, and members of Cwens, for their work on the rally.

He also spoke about the flash card system which the Hat Society Council and the cheerleaders hope to have in operation by the West Virginia-Penn State game. Freshman were urged to appear at the next meeting for instructions on use of the flash cards.

The pep rally bonfire, which was scheduled to stimulate enthusiasm for the Homecoming game with Holy Cross, was concluded with the Alma Mater and the "Short Yell State."

Prior to the rally, hatwomen entered the dormitories and rounded up freshman women to attend the rally. The hat societies are taking turns sponsoring the pre-game rallies.

WSGA Sets Interviews To Screen Applicants

Upperclasswomen who applied for Women's Student Government Association committees will be screened tomorrow in 203 Hetzel Union.

Screening time will be posted on dormitory main bulletin boards.

Ratio Goes Down; Girls Each Lose .03 Man in Year

The saying "for every man there's a woman" just isn't so at the University.

However, the coeds won't have quite as many more men apiece as they did last year. They'll each be losing .03 of a man.

Last year there were 3.28 men to each woman, and this year the ratio has dropped to 3.25 to one.

Enrollment figures show 10,936 men and 3,111 women are studying on the main campus this semester as compared with the 9,697 men and 2,956 women enrolled during the fall semester of last year.

Pollock Council Allots Dorms $20

Pollock Council has allotted each dorm in Pollock Circle $20 for the fall semester.

The $20 will be used to pay for dorm social activities and for the registration of athletic teams.

Donald Gurland and Darrell Major have been nominated for Pollock's one representative-at-large to the Board of Governors of the Association of Independent Men. Further nominations and election will take place at the next meeting.

Elections Committee to Meet

The All-University Elections Committee will meet at 6:30 p.m. tomorrow in 121 Sparks.

Duff Hits Corruption In Leader Regime

Senator James H. Duff termed the Leader administration "the rottenest which has ever been in Pennsylvania in my knowledge" at a press conference in Bellefonte last night.

He said that the state is shot through with corruption and cited cases in Bucks and Beaver counties to uphold his contentions. The press conference preceded a Republican dinner and rally held in the Centre county court house.

Employees in Beaver county mills, Duff said, have been getting salaries from the state while working at their regular jobs and doing no work of any kind for the state.

As a further example of alleged corruption Duff referred to the much-publicized Darcy murder case in Doylestown in which a tavern-keeper was shot and killed during an attempted holdup.

The case will have a definite bearing on the Bucks county vote, Duff said. He did not comment on whether or not the possible discontent with the State Parole Board's ruling to commute the death sentence.

Duff, who was governor at the time of the slaying called the ruling, "one of the foulest blows against the due process of law that was ever struck."

"It only goes to show," he added, "that if you have enough money and political pull you can get away with murder in Pennsylvania."

Duff, strangely enough, had little to say about his rival for the senatorial post, Joseph Clark, former mayor of Philadelphia.

However, he did repeat former charges that Clark was the hand-picked choice of Governor Leader and Matthew McCloskey, a Philadelphia real estate man and one of the powers of the state Democratic party.

William J. Greene Jr., Philadelphia congressman, was the choice of 51 of the 52 ward chairmen in Philadelphia for the senatorial nomination, Duff said.

However, he said that Leader and McCloskey stepped in and hammered the others into line thus leaving Clark with no opposition.

Duff had a word for college students when he repeated his backing of the bill to change the voting age to 18. He said, "If the boy can risk his life on the battlefield then he should be able to voice his opinion on the issues; and the only way he can do this is by voting."

He added that President Eisenhower also supported the measure but that it did not pass Congress.

Review

Comedy 'My 3 Angels' Opens

By BECKY ZAHM
Collegian Copy Editor

Three angelic convicts who take it upon themselves to straighten out the dire predicament of an appealing, but impractical shopkeeper provide the core of the comedy "My Three Angels" which opened at Center Stage last night.

The action is set in a French penal colony over the Christmas season. It takes place in the Ducotel family's living room, back of their general store.

The Players' presentation of the Broadway hit can be likened to a tri-legged stool. The action was supported primarily by the three Gallic rascals who stole everything—including the audiences' hearts. The convicts were deftly portrayed by George Cavey, Jack Timmis and Ronald Weitz.

Cavey, as Joseph, carried his role of the rollicking rascally pro-motor with professional skill. His two roguish cohorts delivered their roles with equal polish, although in several places Weitz's leg on the stool wobbled.

As the hapless, impractical shopkeeper and head of the household William Warthing does a more than competent job. Joyce Andruzak's portrayal of his patient wife is done with understanding and skill.

Uncle Henri Portrayed Well
Mark Wallace, as Uncle Henri, the unscrupulous swindler who brings the consternation into the household, delivered a high caliber performance. He was simultaneously arrogant, rude, and vicious. He earned his well deserved end.

Patricia Rubin's performance as the ingenue daughter of the household was somewhat disappointing. She was many times expressionless and unconvincing.

The audience was distracted by the fact that she never did seem able to make up her mind whether to deliver her lines in a French or English accent.

Dennis Castelli, as Paul, the nephew of Henri and Marie Louise's lover was indistinguishable. (Continued on page five)

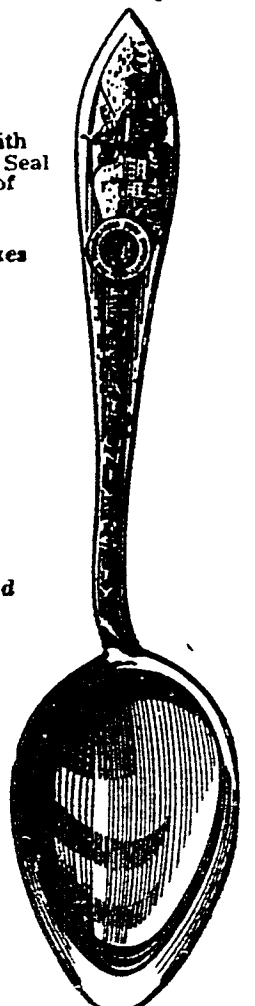

A Special Something to Remember this Homecoming by . . .

Sterling Silver Teaspoons

delicately inspired with University Seal and view of Old Main.

A set makes the perfect gift.

4.95
Tax Included

No Charge for Gift Wrapping

RINGS

ALUMNI:

This is a fine time to get that class ring you have always wanted . . . write us if you can't find time to drop in.

SENIORS:

You will soon be alumni and with your CLASS RING by BALFOUR you will be recognized as a Penn Stater wherever you go.

See and Order the Official Ring at

L. G. BALFOUR CO.

Office in the Athletic Store

Represented at Penn State by CRUM JENKINS for 29 years

AIM - LEONIDES

PRESENTS

AUTUMN BALL

Sat., Oct. 13 HUB Ballroom

9-12 P.M.

Semi-Formal

Music by AIM Band
J. Ressler Conducting

TICKETS ON SALE IN HUB — $2.00 per couple