Gilbert Says Seating Plan Will Continue

Harold R. Gilbert, assistant director and business manager of athletics, said yesterday that the present Beaver Field seating plan would be continued, based on the student's conduct throughout the season.

He said that student behavior at Saturday's game was fine from what he had observed.

Cabinet Proposed System

Las March, All-University Cabinet proposed the system now in use. When Ernest B. McCoy, dean of the College of Physical Education and director of athletics, agreed to the plan, he stipulated that he would revert to the reserve seat system if student behavior made it necessary.

Edward M. Czekaj, assistant business manager of athletics, said that although the senior section was overcrowded Saturday, students behaved fairly well.

Future Action Will Decide

The amount of section-hopping and scalping done in the future will affect the permanent use of this year's plan. Previously, students were required to sit in specific sections. Under this system, section-hopping could be spotted and scalping prevented.

The present plan allows students to occupy seats in their class section on a first-come basis and gives them the opportunity to sit in groups with classmates.
