

State Education Lacking Needed Attention—Hays

State Senator Jo Hays (D-Centre and Clearfield Counties) said last night that Pennsylvania education is not receiving the attention it needs from the state government.

The senator, speaking to the Intercollegiate Conference on Government, clarified his statement by explaining that most people in the government are interested in building up a party.

Since education is not influenced by the "spoils system" there is not a great amount of interest in legislation pertaining to education, Senator Hays said.

The senator spoke to the group on "The Adventures of a Freshman Senator in Harrisburg." About 25 ICG members heard his talk.

Interested In Education

Senator Hays declared that his prime interest is to get educational legislation passed. He cited several bills which he called progress toward his goal. For example:

A new retirement system for teachers in public schools.
Salary raises for teachers.
Opportunities for building more schools.

A "good program" for handicapped children.

Amends Budget Bill

The senator was influential in increasing the amount allotted for education in the governor's budget, it was brought out. A compromise amendment raising the grant for education was passed by the legislature.

Senator Hays said the three main responsibilities of a member of the legislature are:

1. Finding out what the people he represents want done.
2. Carrying out his responsibility to his party and its platform.
3. Carrying out his responsibility to himself.

Legislature Faces Problem

According to the senator, the most important problem facing the incoming legislature is where to get the money which will be needed.

He advised young voters to make sure that the representatives they elect will represent the general public, not a small select group.

Next Tuesday, Joseph O'Brien, professor of public speaking, will speak to ICG on "Adventures in Parliamentary Procedure."

Committee to Study Plan For Trophies

A proposal to award a trophy for special events conducted after the four-day solicitations campaign from Nov. 12 to 16 is being investigated by the Campus Chest executive committee.

The committee last night voted to award solicitations trophies to the sorority and fraternity and individual solicitor who collect the greatest amount of money per capita during the drive.

Members Seek Opinions

The question of establishing a trophy for money collected from special events held after the Nov. drive was left undecided until committeemen can poll students on the matter.

Edward Long, tabulations chairman, announced that $29.87 was collected from the canisters that were placed in fraternity houses and sorority suites for alumni contributions during the Homecoming weekend.

Uncomplete Tabulations

Long told the group that the total would probably be higher when complete tabulations were recorded. Contributions have been collected from 38 fraternities and 12 sororities.

Robert Gellman, Campus Chest chairman, said that winners of the poster contest will receive credit toward the fraternity and sorority trophies and the individual solicitor's trophy. Any group may enter unlimited number of posters to the Hetzel Union desk until Nov. 2.

Service Fraternity to Assist

Alpha Phi Omega, national service fraternity, will have complete charge of the "Mall of Dimes," and the treasure chest that will be held on the Mall during the solicitations campaign.

Two mass meetings will be held Nov. 7 and 8 in the Hetzel Union assembly room to inform solicitors about Campus Chest and to instruct them in approaching prospective contributors.

Britannica Prints Christ-Janer Story

An article on drawing, written by Dr. Albert Christ-Janer, director of the School of the Arts, will be included in the next printing of the Encyclopedia Britannica.

A series of illustrations, including some of the greatest drawings of all ages, which were selected from the Metropolitan Museum, the Morgan Library, and the Museum of Modern Art, will be included with the article.

This is the sixth article done by Dr. Christ-Janer for the Encyclopedia Britannica.

Robert Beverly Hale, of the Metropolitan Museum of Art, wrote the concluding section of the article.

Flash Cards Found Hidden In Rec Hall

The flash cards which were reportedly lost have been found. It seems that they have not been lost at all, but have been hidden in Rec Hall for years.

Because the cards have been found, a meeting for freshman volunteers will be held at 6:45 tomorrow at Beaver Field for a practice session, instead of next Thursday as previously announced.

At a meeting held for the volunteers last week, only 150 freshmen attended. Three hundred-four participants are needed to put the system into effect.

The card system will be used, as planned, for the West Virginia game, October 27. The performance will take place before game time in the middle of the freshman section, directly behind the goal posts.

The cards, which are navy on one side and white on the other, will have the directions printed on one side. They will be very simple to understand. The directions for each trick consist of only one sentence. An example of this is: "Trick one—navy up."

The representatives, four from each Hat Society, will also attend the practice tomorrow.

Cheerleaders will lead the individual tricks.

Honesty System—

the cadet division commander, Roy Walker and his two wing commanders. At this time he is given a scheduled hearing where he has every opportunity to present evidence in his own behalf.

If the cadet is found to be guilty he is then referred to Riva, who decides the appropriate action to be taken.

Riva said that no cases of cheating went through the whole process of disciplinary action last year under the experimental honor system, and added that one student caught cheating in the AFROTC program prior to the initiation of the system said that he would not have cheated if there had been an honor system.

Under the experimental system honesty was also evidenced in the reporting of lateness and absence from AFROTC classes, where no roll is taken.

Both Riva and Swain predicted the continued success of the program, and said that there was a possibility of including juniors in the honor system in the future.

Queen Candidates' Interviews Begin

Interviewing of the Junior Prom Queen candidates will begin at 7:30 p.m. Thursday in 213 Hetzel Union.

Candidates will be judged on a point system on the basis of beauty, posture, and personality.

The five finalists will be selected by the Junior Prom Screening Board, which includes the three class officers and Prom committee members.

Candidates have been asked to wear suits or dresses, hose and heels to the interviews.

World Ag Society To Hear Egyptian

A. A. Moursi, economic attache of the Egyptian embassy in Washington, will address the World Agriculture Service Society at 7 tonight in 209 Hetzel Union.

He will discuss the disparity between high consumer demands and low production of foodstuffs in Egypt.

Students may join the society at tonight's meeting, president Glen Elder said.
