Mock Registration Asked for Frosh; Later Phone, Weekend Hours Sought

Proposals for a mock registration procedure for freshmen and the release of a bulletin every night during registration containing the names of closed sections and courses are part of the Campus party platform approved Sunday night by the All-University Elections Committee.

The platform also includes a recommendation to transfer the responsibility of the flash-card system to the freshman and sophomore class officers and their advisory boards. At the present time the system is sponsored by the hat societies.

Registration Outlined
The plank calling for preliminary explanation of registration also suggests a complete outline of registration by the orientation week counselors. The release of closed sections and courses is one possibility of immediate coverage of the day's results.

To improve the orientation program, the platform states, counselors should be educated during the previous semester in the purpose and means of counseling. It also recommends a revamping of the counseling plan of men's hat societies to compare with the more effective system used by women.

Rigid Customs
Campus party will also carry in its platform proposals for more rigid enforcement of Freshman Customs and the appointment of an All-University Committee on Public Relations.

The party advocates improved intra-class and inter-class relations implemented by class competition and intra-class activities. In accordance with this, it suggests that all dinks be worn at home football games.

The Committee on Public Relations, Campus party believes, will inform students and make them aware of student government.

Eleven Receive Eng Awards

Eleven students in mechanical engineering, industrial engineering, and metallurgy have been awarded Foundry Educational Scholarships.

They are Joseph Bernhardt, Michael Eleftherion, Robert Grozier, Edward Jerdonek, William Kilpatrick, Herbert Knappenberger, Philip Reese, Jerome Schmitt, John Taylor, LeRoy Toddes, and Wayne Watson.

The awards were made available by the foundry industry through the nationwide educational program of the Foundry Educational Foundation and are awarded on the basis of scholastic standing, interest in the foundry as a career, and personal need.

The awards amount to $175 for the fall semester and if the student continues to meet the required standards, he may qualify for renewal of the award for the spring semester.

IFC Open Houses Prove Successful

Sunday's fraternity open houses for freshmen and new students were "very well attended," according to Hugh Moore, Interfraternity Council rushing chairman.

Some houses had as high a turnout as 50 per cent over last year, he said. All the fraternities were open from 2 to 5 p.m.

A similar open house program will be conducted from 2 to 5 p.m. Sunday, Nov. 11.

Moore said about 1000 of the 1800 freshman men on campus have filled out rushing registration cards. The cards will be compiled into a master list which will be distributed to all fraternities.

General education will be the subject to be discussed at tomorrow night's meeting and the discussion will be conducted by a panel composed of faculty members who have participated in discussions of this subject at other institutions.

The panel members are: Dr. Ernest W. Callenbach, professor and head of the department of poultry husbandry; Dr. Paul M. Althouse, professor of agricultural and biological chemistry; Dr. Ralph W. Condee, associate professor of English literature; and Dr. Howard A. Cutler, professor and head of the department of economics.

Members of the faculty may attend the meeting during which there will be an opportunity to address questions to members of the panel.

PhysEd Council to Meet

Discussion on the University skating rink is to be continued.

Extensions of dormitory phone hours and freshman women's weekend hours, and a plea for a permanent half-holiday were approved by All-University Elections Committee Sunday as part of Lion party's platform for the coming fall elections.

Included in the platform was a plank supporting Supreme Court. Dealing with the proposed extension of phone hours, the platform said an extensive survey showed the phone hour problem attracts the most attention of any student problem. Upperclass women, it said, do not have to return to the dorms until 10:00 p.m., leaving no time for these women to receive calls.

Too Few Phones
Other reasons cited for the change were the lack of phone facilities for freshman women and the difficulty of reaching the dorms from downtown phones. The latter problem, the platform added, affects mostly fraternity men.

The platform calls for one o'clock permissions Friday and Saturday for freshman women because:

1. In modern times, an 11 o'clock permission on a date is hardly a sensible or reasonable hour.

2. An 11 o'clock cuts the night short and hinders sociability.

3. Frosh women should be treated as young women, not young girls.

Half-Holiday

Claiming that the denial of one half-holiday a year "injures the attitude of the student body toward Penn State," the platform asked for a permanent half-holiday because it (the holiday) would help the growth of school spirit. The holiday, according to the platform, would be included in the school calendar with the date to be decided by All-University Cabinet each spring semester for the following fall semester.

Retain Court

Turning to support of the Supreme Court, the platform said the court gives student government a three-fold check and balance system, and thus should be retained to have judicial review over all legislative acts of Cabinet.

A report from this year's student encampment recommended that the court be abolished. All-University Cabinet voted to abolish the court, 13-11, Thursday night. A two-thirds majority is needed for abolishment when the third and final vote is taken.

Six to Present Student Recital
