

Behind the Parking Ban

Borough to Aid Hardship Cases

Third of a Series

The borough will "make every effort" to assist persons who cannot find overnight parking because of the 2 to 6 a.m. parking ban which went into effect in the fraternity area this morning, Burgess David R. Mackey said yesterday.

He also said the borough will re-evaluate the situation at the end of the time allotted by the University for temporary parking on the campus, and will make temporary arrangements where "a legitimate need still exists."

This will be done by establishing certain "parking blocks" where overnight parking would be permitted until more permanent arrangements could be made, according to Mackey.

The University has approved temporary parking on the old vegetable gardens behind the Agricultural Engineering building, beginning today and extending until the Thanksgiving vacation.

Report to Campus Patrol

The temporary parking is open to all students who cannot find a place to park overnight downtown. Students must report to the Campus Patrol office to apply for a special permit for the area within two days after they have moved their cars to the plots.

Each student applying for a permit will fill out a questionnaire, copies of which will be sent to the Association of Independent Men or the Interfraternity Council, and to the borough manager's office.

To Seek Off-Street Parking

Through answers on the questionnaire of where the student would normally want to park, the borough hopes to arrange off-street facilities within a reasonable distance, Mackey said.

He said he is sorry for the inconvenience this method may cause some people, but that it is the only way to get an accurate picture of the deficiency of parking spaces.

Supported Alternatives

Mackey said there are two alternatives to the parking ban which he favors. As long as two and one-half years ago, he supported a plan for alternating one-side parking, and he has also previously proposed that the borough build and maintain municipal lots in the outlying sections of the town. Neither of these proposals was passed by the borough council.

Attempts to Create Demand

The other solution to the parking problem, he said, is the ban, which attempts to create a demand which will result in the development of private parking.

The borough is trying to maintain a constructive attitude and not to place impossibly restrictive rules on anyone, and will "try to help on an individual basis every so-called 'hardship case,'" he said.

Lion Party to Meet

The Lion party campaign and publicity committee will meet at 7 tonight in 217 Willard.

WSGA Airs Co-op Plan For Campus

A plan that would provide on-campus living quarters for women students in need of financial aid was presented to the Women's Student Government Association Senate last night.

Sandra Shogren, former Freshman Senator, spoke of the project as one similar to a co-op.

She said other universities such as the University of Delaware and the University of Maryland have this plan and it has worked successfully.

She proposed the use of Elm Cottage for the project. Women would be able to keep costs down by doing their own house cleaning and by working in the dormitory cafeterias, she said.

Daisy Zimmerman, WSGA president, asked Miss Shogren to head a committee to look into the possibilities of such a project.

Miss Zimmerman announced that Virginia Leary will replace Jo Fulton for the next eight weeks as Judicial chairman. Miss Fulton will be student teaching.

The new Freshman Senators, Janet Thompson and Nancy T. Simpson, were installed in a short ceremony.

Tickets Available For Thesis Play

Tickets are available in the Green Room of Schwab Auditorium for the thesis production, "Giles Corey, Yeoman."

Admission is free.

The production, an early American realistic tragedy by Mary E. Wilkins Freeman, will be presented at 8 tonight in the Little Theatre in Old Main.

Walter Vail, graduate student in theatre arts from Upper Darby is directing the play. He will be graded on his directing ability for his masters degree.

18 Fined $83 Total By Traffic Court

Traffic Court levied fines totaling $83 Monday night.

Eighteen students appeared before the court. Six of these students were fined $5 each for not registering their cars with the Campus Patrol office.

Traffic and parking violation fines totaled $16.

Eight students failed to report to the court. They were fined a total of $37.

The court suspended $37 in fines for first offenders. These students will not have to pay the fines unless they commit a second offense.

NSA Committee to Study Student Insurance Plan

By PAT EVANS

The Student Affairs Commission of the National Student Association this semester will make a study of the possible establishment of a health service and insurance program for students.

The project was named in a report of the plans and activities which the four committees of NSA have scheduled for the semester, as announced by Lawrence McCabe, acting NSA campus coordinator.

The student affairs group, headed by Robert Heck, also is obtaining information on leadership training programs in other schools.

University Will Benefit

This information will be used to benefit the program offered by the University.

Another project of the group is writing to other schools about their policies on final examinations for eighth semester seniors. Results of these inquiries will be turned over to the Senior Class Advisory Board.

The commission will also look into the possibility of setting up a student book store, and will consider ways of improving relations with book stores in the borough.

PJ Committee Studied

The Student Government Commission, under Edward Long, will gather information on setting up a public relations committee for All-University Cabinet.

The committee also is making a study of the feasibility of an activity placement service for students desiring to participate in extra-curricular activities.

The International Commission, with Doona Cowder as chairman, aided in planning the United Nations program at the University last week.

An Educational Affairs Commission has not yet been established, McCabe said. However, he said such a group would be formed, and announced the following program:

The Committee will seek ways of improving relations between students and the faculty, will conduct course evaluations, and will plan the University's part in "Academic Freedom Week."

Fund Drive Will Begin Wednesday

The first phase of this year's Campus Chest program will begin Wednesday when a "Mall of Dimes" will be conducted by members of Alpha Phi Omega, national service fraternity.

The idea of the gimmick is to collect dimes along the Mall from Pollock Rd. to the Main Gate on College Ave.

Money Placed in Chest

A strip of paper will be placed along the Mall between these two places and for each dime that a person contributes a foot will be marked off.

The money will be placed in a treasure chest. Dennis McArver, special events chairman, said that although dimes have been requested, any money denomination will be accepted.

The slogan for the special event is, "A Dime Will Buy a Foot," McArver said.

Solicitors to Meet

Alpha Phi Omega will guard the Mall of Dimes and the treasure chest from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Wednesday.

A solicitors meeting will be held at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday in Schwab Auditorium in preparation for the solicitations campaign from Nov. 12-Nov. 16.

The deadline for the poster contest has been extended from Friday until Monday. Posters may be submitted by any sorority, fraternity, or independent group to the Hetzel Union desk.

Presidents Discuss Space Utilization

The presidents of Pennsylvania colleges and universities in their closing meeting at the University yesterday turned to the problem of utilization of space.

Dr. John Dale Russell, chancellor and executive secretary of the New Mexico Board of Educational Finance, discussed some of the work he is doing in the field of space utilization.

He said the study is especially important at this time when colleges are faced with more and more young men and women seeking to enroll.

Dr. Russell is currently preparing a manual which will assist college officials to conduct studies of their space requirements and by this attain more efficient use of their facilities.
