

Hungary Resists Red Onslaught

VIENNA, Austria, Nov. 6 (AP)—Hungarians fought on tonight in a brave but hopeless struggle against the onslaught of Russian tanks and troops launched against Budapest and the nation at dawn Sunday.

Although Budapest radio attempted to cover the grim events in the capital with a disarming program of light opera and jazz music, reliable reports showed that the uneven fight continued in Budapest and other parts of Hungary.

CAIRO, Wednesday, Nov. 7 (AP)—The hour set by Britain and France for a cease-fire on the Suez Canal passed early today without official word that Egypt had accepted.

Egyptian officials told newsmen there was no sign of a statement. Nor would they say whether Egyptian forces in the field had stopped fighting.

Senate, House Appear In Hands of Democrats

The control of the U.S. Senate and of the House of Representatives appeared to be in the hands of the Democrats as The Daily Collegian went to press today.

The latest returns, as reported by the Associated Press, appeared to give the Senate to the Democrats by the narrow edge of 49-47, which is the present lineup.

The Senate contests were marked by a number of upsets and by a change of party in several states, including Idaho, New York, Ohio, and Kentucky.

Robert F. Wagner, Democratic mayor of New York City, conceded the race for the Senate seat once held by his late father to Republican state attorney general Jacob K. Javits.

Upset in Idaho In Idaho, Democrat Frank Church upset Republican incumbent Herman Welker, despite a sweep of the state's four electoral votes by President Dwight D. Eisenhower.

Ohio's Democratic Governor Frank Lausche appeared to be pulling into a lead over Republican incumbent George H. Bender.

Cooper Seen Victor Former Senator John Sherman Cooper, seemed assured of returning to the Kentucky seat he lost to the late Alben W. Barkley in 1952. Cooper, a Republican and former ambassador to India, appeared to have defeated former Governor Lawrence W. Wetherby for the four-year term.

The outcome of the state's other senatorial race, between incumbent Democrat Earle C. Clements, Senate majority whip, and Republican Thurston Morton, was still in doubt.

In Colorado, former Republican governor Dan Thornton trailed in a close race with Democrat John A. Carorll. They are vying for the seat from which Republican Eugene D. Milikin retired this year.

WE wonder why political parties squander millions to promote the virtues of their candidate when the voters could much more easily and honestly make their choice by observing the contestants in a face to face debate.

BUT, unfortunately, a phenomena such as this would destroy the axiom, "it's not what you know, but etc. . . ." We'd probably end up with brainy, foresighted men in office but completely lacking in the main virtue of leadership, mainly personality.

CAN you just visualize the broadcasting of a debate emanating from politicians of the lowest echelon and up.

OF course this is hardly feasible. A trend as revolutionary as this could easily upset the country economically as well as morally. And we wouldn't want that, especially in State College!

JUST returned from a weekend in N.Y.C. where restaurants are restaurants.
