

Ed Council Joins Groups Seeking Yule Extension

The Education Student Council last night joined the ever-growing list of groups asking for an extension of the Christmas vacation.

The council proposed that the recess be extended one day, from Jan. 1 to Jan. 2.

This is the same proposal All-University President Robert Bahrenburg said he will make before the University Senate next month.

Court Fines Hit $138; Year's High

This week's Traffic Court assessment of $138 in fines topped the amounts of all previous sessions of the court this year.

The previous high this semester was $117, levied in October. That was the only other time this year that the fines totaled more than $100.

Two years ago students appearing before the court were fined a total of more than $170. This occurred before automatic fines were levied on students who failed to appear before the court.

$88 In Automatic Fines
Automatic fines amounted to $88 of the total assessed by the court.

Thirteen students failed to appear. They lost their right to appeal and were automatically fined a total of $88.

Twenty-three students appeared before the court and were fined a total of $50.

Parking violators were fined a total of $27. Four students were fined $5 each for failing to display vehicle registration stickers on their cars.

$1 Fines Given

One-dollar fines were given to three students for failing to report to the campus patrol office within 24 hours after they were issued tickets.

Twenty-seven dollars in fines were suspended. Suspended fines do not have to be paid unless another violation is incurred. Six cases were dismissed.

HUB to Show Poor's Works For 2 Weeks

An exhibition of paintings and ceramic work by Henry Varnum Poor, contemporary American artist, will open Nov. 22 in the Hetzel Union Building and continue until December 8.

Poor is the artist who painted the University's famous Land-Grant Murals in Old Main.

Poor completed the first section of the Old Main murals, using the fresco technique in 1940. This portion was the gift of the class of 1932.

He was commissioned to do the remaining sections in 1947 after a successful student fund-raising effort was conducted. The frescos were completed in 1949.

A native of Chapman, Kansas, Poor was graduated from Stanford University, where he was a member of Phi Beta Kappa.

He studied art at the Slade School, London, the Julian Academy, Paris, and worked with Walter Slickert, famous British artist.

At present he is preparing for a show of his paintings at the Rehn Gallery in New York. A former art professor at Columbia University, he now is president of the Skowhegan School of Painting and Sculpture, Skowhegan, Maine.

'Chips Off the Old Crop' Unsatisfactory to Experts

The potato chip, one of America's favorite "snacks," is being subjected to the scientific scrutiny of experts from the College of Agriculture.

In an effort to maintain the quality of its product, the Wise Potato Chip Company has offered a grant of $2500 a year to the College of Agriculture to help research in this field.

The grant will provide for a graduate assistantship beginning next July 1, and will be under the direction of Dr. W. R. Mills, professor of plant pathology.

Dr. Mills, who has been working closely with horticulturists from the Wise Company for the past three years, is trying to develop new varieties of potatoes that will make good potato chips.

Dr. Mills says "most of the varieties of potatoes used by growers do not make good chips" since "most of them develop a dark color when chipped."

He further said that "if a potato is genetically not suited to chipping, there is nothing you can do.

Thus efforts must be centered on developing new varieties of potatoes."

Dr. Mills has been working at developing new varieties of potatoes for 15 years.

He has employed certain blight-resistant potatoes he discovered on two trips to Mexico.

Tickets for Military Ball Will Go on Sale Today

Tickets for the Military Ball to be held Dec. 7 in Recreation Hall go on sale today for junior and senior Reserve Officers' Training Corps cadets. Price is $5.

Tickets may be purchased on the second floor of Engineering E for Navy students, in the Armory for Air Force students and in the basement of Carnegie for Army students.

Judith Hance, president, proposed the suggestion, saying that she had already talked with Dr. John R. Rackley, dean of the college, and that he had offered to take any council suggestion regarding the matter to University Senate.

Discuss Course Revision
Miss Hance also called for discussion on a program for course revision, and asked that council members write out any suggestions of their own and present them at the end of the meeting.

The council also discussed plans for handling a course evaluation sheet to be used throughout the education college. The sheet would be filled out by students at the end of the semester.

Some of the members felt that a system should be worked out so that the professor would not be able to see the evaluation sheet until after he had made out the grades. They explained this would eliminate bias toward any student who found fault with his teaching.

Noyes Gives Views
William G. Noyes, faculty adviser, said that he felt that the teachers should be allowed to see the course evaluations after he had turned in his grades.

He said that he felt the evaluations should be filled out outside of class so the students could take more time to answer them completely and so that valuable time would not be taken from one of the last class periods before the final examination.

Myrna Paynter, junior from Kennett Square and co-chairman of coffee hours, said that the next two coffee hours would be held Nov. 28 and Dec. 20 from 4 to 5 p.m. in dining room A of the Hetzel Union.

NSA Ideas Presented
Katherine Dickson, vice president and council representative to the National Student Association Convention, brought five suggestions from the convention which she said were applicable to the council. The suggestions will be discussed at a later date.

The suggestions were:
Summer camps for the purpose of discussing and revising the curriculum with the faculty.

A big sister and brother system with upperclassmen in the college writing to in-coming freshmen the summer before they entered college.

Scholarships Could Be Offered
Presentation of scholarships to students who could not afford to come to college under any other circumstance.

An enrollment stimulus program whereby students in various schools and departments would travel to high schools and speak to interested students.

An active sponsorship of a lecture forum, which provided interesting speakers.
