

AAUP Secretary Fuchs Will Address Faculty

Dr. Ralph F. Fuchs, general secretary of the American Association of University Professors, will speak at the annual faculty-trustee dinner sponsored by the University chapter of the Association at the Nittany Lion Inn at 5 p.m. Dec. 7.

Dr. Fuchs will speak on "The Opportunities and Responsibilities of Academic Faculties."

Indie Women To Sponsor Talent Show

A talent show will be featured at a mass meeting of Leonides at 6:45 Monday in the Mineral Science auditorium, the council decided last night.

A council business meeting will be held at 6:45 p.m. previous to the talent show. Independent men and women may attend.

Rod Perry to Sing
Rod Perry and Judith Heller will sing, Andrea Norman will do a Spanish dance, and Ruby Seaman will lead group singing. Other talent will be scheduled during the week. Refreshments will be served.

Lorraine Jablonski, sophomore in home economics from West Nanticoke, was named National Independent Association representative by Rosetta Kearney, Leonides president.

Duty of Representative
The duty of the NISA representative is to correspond with independent organizations in other schools for suggestions.

A discussion was held at the meeting to discover what could be done to make independent students more interested in their organization.

Assign Projects
It was decided that more interest could be fostered among the women if they were assigned to projects instead of council members.

It was also mentioned that these projects could be done at the weekly unit meetings which would encourage attendance by women. Generally the meeting consists of a report from the Leonides council members about the council meeting.

Prof Will Visit South America

Dr. Charles F. LeeDecker, executive secretary of the Institute of Local Government at the University, has left for a three-week tour of four South American countries.

Dr. LeeDecker has been appointed secretary to the Committee on Metropolitan Government of the American Municipal Association by President Robert F. Wagner, mayor of New York.

Judicial Opposes Lateness Revision

By JOAN MILLER

Women's Judicial has come out in opposition to the revision of the coed lateness rule proposed by the House Representatives of the Women's Student Government Association.

Judicial members said they feel that although there is something to be said in favor of the revision, the technicalities involved in initiating such a plan would make it infeasible.

As the proposal stands at the present time, it would replace the 3-minute grace period now in effect and substitute 20 late minutes a semester, excluding traveling lateness. This would be applicable to 9:15, 10, 11, 12, 1, and 2-o'clock permissions. Any lateness after this 20 minutes would be dealt with by Judicial.

The only feature which speaks in favor of the proposal, Judicial feels, is that the coeds deserve the 20 minutes. If a girl is late four times (three minutes each) her late minute total would be 12 minutes and she would be penalized. Under the new system, she would still have eight minutes for further emergency use.

Opposition to the proposal centered around three principal points. They are that excuses are now given for traveling, traffic jams, and weather conditions, that checkers would have to remain on duty 20 minutes longer every night, and that coeds would have to be very precise in signing in, for every minute counts.

Furthermore, Judicial and housemothers would be obliged to take a girl's word that her excuse was a legitimate one. In other words, some women students might be tempted to take advantage of the new ruling, the body believes.

Also, Judicial feels that on big weekends, girls should be aware of the usual traffic conditions and should arrange their time according to meet the sign-in deadline.

After a lengthy discussion upon Judicial's suggestions, the House formed a committee to work on the proposal's technical imperfections as outlined by Judicial. Roberta Armstrong, junior in home economics from Pittsburgh, was appointed chairman of this committee.

The date of the House's annual clothing drive was set for Dec. 5 to Dec. 22. Clothing collected will be turned over to the Society of Friends of State College who will ship it to Hungary. Collection boxes will be kept in dorm unit offices starting on Dec. 5.

'No City Temptations'

Centre County was chosen as the site of the Pennsylvania State University because "its very isolation was desirable as removing the students from the distractions and temptations incident to city life."
