IFC Will Decide Monday On '100% FMA' Proposal; Two-Thirds Vote Needed

The Interfraternity Council will vote Monday on a constitutional amendment which would require all IFC members to join the Fraternity Marketing Association.

To pass the amendment, two-thirds of the council's 54 members—36—must vote in favor of it, regardless of how many fraternities are not represented at the meeting or abstain from the balloting.

The amendment, which was introduced Nov. 26, also calls for a review of the FMA and gives IFC enforcement power over the program.

The amendment was introduced shortly after the council went on record by a 39-3 vote as favoring "in general" a cooperative buying program. IFC also approved of the present FMA program in an 18-15 straw vote, with 13 abstentions.

16 Willing to Join

A survey by a council committee disclosed that 16 fraternities—non-members of FMA—were willing to join the organization for at least a semester if all other houses would do the same. Only four of the 49 fraternities contacted indicated that they would not join the association under any circumstances.

The amendment to be voted on Monday reads:

"In view of the fact fraternity joint-buying programs are a vital and integral part of fraternity systems at other major institutions, and that the Penn State FMA program, sponsored by IFC-AFC during the past four years, has proven the value of such a program for fraternities on this campus:

'Official Buying Agency'

"The IFC, which is the parent organization, now declares the FMA to be the official buying agent for all fraternities affiliated with IFC and that fraternity membership in IFC automatically includes membership in FMA; the constitution of FMA be reviewed in consultation with the executive committee of IFC in order to incorporate the necessary changes in organizational structure arising from this action; IFC shall exercise the same power to enforce fraternity participation in the joint-buying program as it does to enforce all its other decisions relative to Penn State fraternity welfare."

Opponents' Views

Opponents of the amendment have said they believe their fraternities can get better savings outside the association. A list of seven reasons why houses had not joined the organization as it exists now was included in the IFC survey.

Proponents of the amendment have contended that 100 per cent fraternity participation in FMA would open the way to savings far beyond the discounts and refunds now given members.

Crash Victim Released By Hospital

John Gingrich, sophomore in electrical engineering from Reading, was released yesterday from the University Hospital after x-rays of injuries received in a car accident proved negative.

Gingrich was treated for cuts and bruises of the collarbone and left ankle and leg.

Gingrich was knocked off his motorcycle Monday at the intersection of N. Atherton Street and Pollock Road by a car operated by Donald L. Bailey, junior in arts and letters, from New Kensington.

Police said Bailey apparently didn't see Gingrich when he pulled out from N. Pollock Road and hit Gingrich proceeding north.

Gingrich was brought to the infirmary by Bailey. Police arrested Bailey for failing to yield a right of way. No date has been set for the hearing.

Total damages were estimated at $20.

In another accident Donald R. Carr, 12, of State College received a bruised hip Wednesday when he was knocked off his bicycle at the intersection of Beaver Avenue and Pugh Street by a car operated by James H. Wolfe, graduate student in business administration.

No arrest was made.

Trout Slaughter Stumps Officials

How the ammonia got into the Spring Creek last weekend and killed 200,000 trout is still puzzling state authorities and a University chemist.

"Nothing seems to make any sense," the chemist said.

One of the biggest puzzles in the case to him is the lack of odor of ammonia in the stream and surrounding area.

However, if the ammonia was in the form of salt, no odor would be present, he said.

Another big problem is what percentage of ammonia is needed to kill a trout, and especially to kill 200,000 fish.

The kill is the worst in the state's history.

New Hours for Creamery

The sales room of the University Creamery will be open from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. Sundays starting Dec. 16.

Lion Expects Cold Weather; Gathers Fuel

The Nittany Lion may be seen carrying load after load of logs into his den this morning in preparation for the cold front slowly making its way eastward through Ohio which is expected to enter central Pennsylvania sometime this morning.

Acutely aware of the flexibility of University Park weather, the Lion wants to be prepared for anything that may happen.

Seemingly to justify his worst fears, a disturbance in Missouri is predicted to move into Pennsylvania late today.

Tonight and tomorrow are expected to be cooler with intermittent precipitation to continue through tomorrow morning.

Most of the precipitation will be rain but may turn to snow by tonight.

Chaplain to Speak On 'Using Bible'

The Rev. Luther H. Harshbarger, University chaplain, will speak at the chapel service to be held at 10:55 a.m. tomorrow in Schwab Auditorium.

His subject will be "On Using the Bible."

For the program, the Chapel Choir, directed by Willa C. Taylor, will sing, "O Thou, the Central Orb" by Gibbons.

As the prelude, George E. Ceiga, University organist, will play "Sleepers Awake" by Bach, and as the postlude, "Postlude on Divinium Mysterium" by Miles Martin.

Kinnier Crowned Queen of Mil Ball

Barbara Kinnier was crowned Queen of the Military Ball by orchestra leader Skitch Henderson last night before some 350 couples in Recreation Hall.

Miss Kinnier, a junior in elementary education from Dansboro, was sponsored by Leonard Rosenbaum, AFROTC.

Finalists were Elizabeth Corman, freshman in physical education from State College, sponsored by James Rossi, NROTC; Patricia Finley, freshman in medical technology from Pittsburgh, sponsored by William Liggett, AROTC.

Other finalists were Dorothy Lentz, sophomore in elementary education from Media, sponsored by Lee McVey, AFROTC; and Jane Mahoney, student at the Notre Dame Academy for Girls, from Philadelphia, sponsored by Jesse Brewster, NROTC.

The queen was selected by Lt. W. C. Haskell, Navy; Capt. Erwin F. Albrecht, Army; and Capt. Rick Hickson, Air Force.

The queen and her court—made up of the four finalists—were escorted to the bandstand through a cordon formed by members of Pershing Rifles, national military honor society, and an arch of sabres formed by the sabre team of Scabbard and Blade, national honorary group.

The queen was crowned with a coronet of white roses by Henderson and presented a silver trophy and a bouquet of red roses by Gilbert Freedman, master of ceremonies and chairman of the Mil Ball Committee.

Members of the court also received bouquets of roses and silver trophies.

The finalists were chosen from 20 entries by the 1959 class of the United States Air Force Academy, Denver, Colo.

Heads and representatives of the three different Reserve Officers Training Corp divisions formed a receiving line to greet the guests before the dance.

Mil Ball is sponsored annually by Scabbard and Blade, Pershing Rifles, Arnold Air Society, national air force honorary society; and Quarterdeck, national navy honor group.

State Plans Facelifting Of Route 22

The State Highways Department has announced a $78,692,864 construction project on U.S. Route 22 from Harrisburg to the western Pennsylvania border under a 3-year program.

The project will cover nearly 100 miles of the route in eight counties. Westmoreland and Washington counties will be included in the project when they submit preliminary reports on work needed and estimated costs.

The project was announced by Robert A. Farley, department acting chief engineer, Thursday at a meeting with a 25-man delegation representing most of the counties involved in the planned project.

Farley said the aim of the project was "to bring the highway to a 50-mile-an-hour speed standard." Improvements would include widening the roadway, elimination of sharp curves, and strengthening and replacement of existing bridges.

The delegation was headed by State Sen. George N. Wade (R-Cumberland), chairman of the Senate Highways Committee.

Wade termed the route as "Pennsylvania's main street." More people inside the state use this highway than use the turnpike.

The biggest part of the total estimated expenditure will be spent in Allegheny County, where U.S. 22 is part of the Penn-Lincoln Parkway. That part of the project will cost $63,039,361.

Farley said he could not pinpoint any date for starting the project, but said he hoped it could be inaugurated in the construction season next year.

He said all plans must be checked and double-checked, then approved by the U.S. Bureau of Roads.

Ag College Sets Two Interviews

The College of Agriculture has announced two interviews scheduled for next week.

Ralph Horst of the Pennsylvania Farm Bureau Cooperative Association will interview seniors who will graduate in January from 7 a.m. to 10 p.m. Monday in 108 Tyson and from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Tuesday in 117 Tyson.

Graduating seniors interested in seeking employment with the Grange League Federation should meet with two representatives of the G.L.F. from 7 to 10 p.m. Tuesday in 108 Tyson. Other interviews are scheduled from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Wednesday and Thursday in 117 Tyson.

Board to Discuss Exam Exemptions

The Senior Class Advisory Board will meet at 9 p.m. Monday in 202 Willard to discuss final exam exemptions for eighth semester students.

Members should bring their reports from the deans of the colleges to the meeting, according to Joseph Hartnett, class president. Hartnett will recommend an exemptions ruling to All-University Cabinet Thursday night.

Philippines Wins Contested UN Seat

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y., Dec. 7 (AP)—Eastern Europe lost its seat on the Security Council today to the Philippines, backed by the United States in the latest East-West row of the General Assembly. The Soviet Union protested vehemently.

The Philippines polled 51 of the 74 valid ballots cast during the secret voting. The Soviet candidate, Czechoslovakia, received 20 votes, Afghanistan, Spain and Yugoslavia one each and one country abstained. Four members were absent. This gave the Philippines one more than the two-thirds vote required for election. Yugoslavia, which resigned from the Council in accord with a deal breaking a 35-ballot deadlock with the Philippines last year, will give up its seat Dec. 31 and the Philippines will serve the remainder of the normal two-year term.

It will be the first time since the Council was organized in 1946 that a country from Eastern Europe has not occupied one of the six nonpermanent seats. The Soviet Union is one of the five permanent members.

U.S. Using UN

Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Vassily V. Kuznetsov charged the election was a clear discrimination against Eastern Europe and a "crude violation" of the Charter provision for geographical distribution of the nonpermanent seats on the Council. He said the United States was using the UN for its own purposes and was violating the London gentlemen's agreement of 1946 giving Eastern Europe a seat on the Council.

The United States, whose chief delegate, Henry Cabot Lodge Jr. waged a campaign for Manila from the very start last year.

Kuznetsov threatened, if Czechoslovakia lest, to block attempts to expand the Council by amending the Charter and giving it two more seats.

Wants to Enlarge Council

After the election, Jose Vicente Trujillo of Ecuador, told the Assembly a resolution would be submitted soon to enlarge the Council. It was reported one seat would be for Asia and one for Europe. The others would remain as set up in the 1946 agreement in London. This gave Eastern Europe, the Middle East, the British Commonwealth and Western Europe one each and Latin America two seats.
