

Wisconsin Student Makes $30,000 on $5000 Deal

MADISON, Wis., Dec. 14 (AP)—The University of Wisconsin told today how a student from Hampton, Va., parlayed $5000 into $30,000 while earning a degree he pointed for when he enrolled four years ago.

The student, David Falk, came here with $5000 and ambitions for a degree in dairy husbandry. His dad had given him

Paint Work On Stadium Completed

A project to paint the underside of the Beaver Field stands which began in June after graduation is completed, according to Charles A. Lamm, head of the building maintenance and operations division of the Department of Physical Plant.

The underside of the stands was coated with a light grey metal-compound paint. When the program is completed, it will end a program started in 1955 to paint the entire stands and press box.

Atherton Rooms Painted

A project to paint the 145 dormitory rooms in Atherton Hall is nearing completion, Lamm said. Rooms facing north and east will be painted light-grey and rooms facing south and west will be painted bluish-green.

The project is part of a continuing dormitory painting program. Women's Building will be painted next.

A roof for a coal bin in the Nittany-Pollock area will be complete within three weeks, Lamm said. The roof will prevent snow melting and later freezing on the coal.

Plaster Painting
A project to paint minor plaster repair work in the Nittany area using low odor paint is making good progress, Lamm said. Similar projects are complete in West Halls and girls' dormitories.

Lamm also said workmen have completed painting Elm, Pine, and Spruce Cottages and 35 East View Terrace houses.

Trustees Offer Foreign Grants

Seven additional University scholarships for foreign students have been provided by the executive committee of the Board of Trustees.

The scholarships, which remit all fees but do not provide for other expenses, are open to any foreign student who meets two requirements: The student must be sponsored by some recognized agency which will take responsibility for all other expenses; and the student must meet the University's entrance requirements.

The University scholarships for foreign students are not new, a spokesman said. They were created in June, 1950, by the Board of Trustees, which established "not more than 15" and eventually funded eight.

The additional seven have now been funded and are available on the prescribed terms, the spokesman said.

Plant Group Initiates 7

Seven pledges have been initiated into Pi Alpha Xi, floriculture society.

Initiated were David Seyler, Russel Beatty, Frank Moore, Stephen Raleigh, Edward Schwar, Frederick Sullivan, and Alan Batticchi.

the money to handle as he saw fit, providing that it covered expenses for the four-year stretch.

Pays Down Payment

Young Falk plunged. He paid the full amount as a down payment on a men's rooming house near the campus. It prospered and provided Falk's living quarters.

During the summer months he repaired and remodeled the house to improve the property. His income went up. He bought 47 acres of oak woods near Madison, divided this into sections and sold the land.

"Two of the pieces brought me more than I paid for the whole 47," he recalls.

Bought Another House

He bought another rooming house. He repaired it and soon it was filled to capacity. He topped his achievement with a trade—the first house for another and a cash profit.

During these transactions and management of properties, Falk studied, took part in student government and activities of his fraternity and went out for crew. And he married a pretty sociology student from Milwaukee, Arlene Plotkin.

Now in Senior Year

Now 21 and in his senior year, the dairy husbandry major is liquidating his holdings and finds that he has approximately $30,000 to buy the kind of farm he wants. College degrees are just around the corner for himself and his wife.

Falk had average grades. All except in a real estate course. He got a D, which is poor.

Players Schedule Premiere Tryouts

Tryouts for the world premiere production of "One's a Crowd" by Eugene Raskin will be held at 7 p.m. tomorrow and Monday in the Little Theatre in Old Main.

Copies of the comedy are available for reading in the Greenroom of Schwab Auditorium.

The play will open Feb. 22 at Center Stage.

Raskin will attend the final tryouts on Tuesday and will also visit the campus several times during rehearsals of the play to make any necessary script changes.

The director, Robert Reifsnider, associate professor of theatre arts, has announced that a 12-year old boy is needed for one of the roles.

Weather Bad, Ratio Good

ALTHOUGH IT'S WET, this student shouldn't be complaining—with a coed on each arm. The weather may be bad, but the ratio's good. Puddle-jumping was a common thing on campus yesterday, and, according to the weatherman, it should be today too.

Want a Concrete Namesake? Become a Penn State Prof

By LIL JUNAS

If you would like a University building named after you, be a professor and you'll have the best chance of being honored in this way.

Fifteen of the 44 named buildings on the campus are called after professors—six of whom were heads of departments.

These buildings were given names to prevent confusion, to follow the custom of other universities, and to preserve and honor persons who had contributed constructively to the University.

Simmons, Waring, Willard, Weaver and Armsby Halls were named after professors who headed their respective departments.

Bear Professors' Names
The nine other buildings named for professors are the Harriet McElwain Hall, John Hamilton Hall, James Y. McKee Hall, Dr. William Frear Laboratory, Fred Lewis Pattee Library, Dr. William A. Buckhout Laboratory, Howard J. Whitmore Laboratory, Amy G. Gardner Hall and Anna E. Redifer Hall.

Eighteen buildings were named for women who were associated with the University. Only eight of these—Simmons and McElwain Halls, Atherton Hall, Eisenhower Chapel, White Hall, Beecher House, Benedict House, and Dock House—are now in use.

The rest, under construction on west campus and expected to be ready for use next year, are Cooper, Stephens, Haller, Hoyt, Hibbs, Ewing, Cross, Lyons and Redifer Halls.

Trustees Represented
The Board of Trustees is well represented by six buildings. The trustees honored in this way are Hugh N. McAllister, Moses Thompson, Judge Frederick Watts, Francis Jordan, Dr. Hannah M. Lyons, all for whom the respective halls were named, and William H. Walker, in whose honor Walker Laboratory was named.

Five students for whom buildings are named are Florence Benedict, first woman to receive a home economics degree; John Moffat, an athlete who was killed in World War II; Garfield Thomas, first alumnus killed in World War II; and Rebecca Ewing and Ellen Cross, the first two women students.

Six persons who were not professors or trustees but aided greatly in the growth of the University are now in use.

ICCB Hears Lump Sum Funds Plan

The Intercollegiate Council Board Thursday night heard the announcement that the funds for the student councils may be given to ICCB to distribute.

Leonard Richards, All-University secretary-treasurer, told the presidents of the nine councils that the $900 divided in the past among the councils could be given in one "lump sum" to ICCB.

Patterson Sets Up Committee

Donald Patterson, ICCB president, set up a committee to investigate the budgets of the councils and to determine if a more effective distribution of funds could be had if ICCB were to receive the money from All-University Cabinet.

After the committee has made its report, Peterson said, ICCB may decide to ask Cabinet for the money.

Open Houses Planned

In other business, Patterson recommended to the presidents of councils which are planning open houses in the spring that all be held on the same date.

The Colleges of Education, Mineral Industries, and Chemistry and Physics have scheduled the open houses.

It was announced at the meeting that two councils have donated money to Lantern, the student literary magazine, which will be published for the first time this year on Jan. 7.

Councils Donate $300

Engineering and Architecture Student Council has given $100, and the Physical Education Student Council $200.

At the last ICCB meeting, Robert Nurock, business manager of Lantern, asked the council presidents to recommend to their groups that financial aid be given to the magazine.

Players Announce Change in Shows

"The Mad Women of Chaillot," a comedy by Jean Giraudoux, will be presented instead of the originally scheduled production, "Idiot's Delight" by Robert Sherwood, Players has announced.

The play, which will be presented March 7, 8 and 9 in Schwab Auditorium, will be directed by Warren Smith, associate professor of theatre arts.

Tryouts will be held at 7 p.m. Jan. 6 and 7 in Schwab Auditorium.

Counselors Dance Set

The annual residence counselors dance will be held from 8:30 to 11:30 tonight in Waring Lounge. The dance is an annual event sponsored by the counselors for the administration, faculty and their guests.
