

Concert Group to Hold Lympany Piano Recital

Moura Lympany, acclaimed during World War II as one of England's most outstanding pianists, will present a piano concert at 8:30 p.m. Thursday in Schwab.

The concert is the fourth in the series sponsored by the State College Concert Association. The fifth and final concert, which will be given by the Westminster Choir, has been rescheduled for March 13.

Grant Forms Are Available At HUB Desk

Application forms for the scholarships awarded by the Penn State Student Scholarship Fund are still available at the Hetzel Union desk.

Forms may be returned to the desk until the Friday deadline.

Herbert R. Kinley, administrative accounting executive, said that this year six $100 scholarships will be presented.

2.5 Average Needed
To be eligible for one of the scholarships, a student must be enrolled in a regular four-year course, must have been a campus student for one academic year, and must have a minimum All-University average of 2.5.

He must also be a needy student of good character who is required to work part time to continue his education, and must have made some contribution to student activities.

Winners of the scholarships will receive their checks so they can use them to pay for their spring semester fees.

Announced in March
Before this year, the names of the scholarship recipients were announced in March.

The fund was established in 1951 and is the only scholarship controlled by the University which is supported solely by funds donated by students.

Miss Lympany, who now maintains a permanent residence in the United States, made her first concert appearance in this country in 1948. At that time she presented a concert in Town Hall, New York City. Since then she has given concerts and appeared as soloist with major symphony orchestras in most of the 48 states.

Studied in Europe
Although born in England, Miss Lympany spent most of her childhood studying music in Europe. She began studying at the age of six in Belgium, and later enrolled at the Liege Conservatory. When she was 12 she made her debut as a pianist playing the Mendelssohn G-minor Concerto under the direction of Basil Cameron. A year later she won the Ada Lewis Scholarship to the Royal Academy of Music.

Before World War II, Miss Lympany made concert tours of Italy, France, Belgium, and Holland. The outbreak of the war curtailed tours on the continent, so she returned to England to continue her concert work.

Chosen as Soloist
In 1943 and 1944 she was chosen as soloist for the opening nights of the Promenade Concerts in England. Her performances in these concerts established her reputation as one of Britain's greatest pianists.

In 1945 she and Sir Adrian Boult were the first English artists to play in Paris after the liberation. The next year she was invited to represent England and English music at the Prague Music Festival.
