

Prof Says Political Ideas Must Fail

By DAVE FINEMAN
Dr. Stanley H. Rosen, instructor in philosophy, proposed last night that both political ideas, liberalism and conservatism, must be intrinsically unsuccessful.

And by holding these two systems to be, after all, the only known systems, he further proposed that any given political system must be unsuccessful.

In his speech before the Philosophy Club, he presented an argument that, on this basis, it is "impossible to solve political problems by employing any systematic theoretical position."

He held that neither liberalism nor conservatism can ever be permanent.

Liberalism, he said, permitting the vigorous and free expression of ideas, any of which is equal in value to another, must fail because of its very principals. That is, too close scrutiny of principals would make inevitable new ideas incompatible with the basic ideas of liberalism itself.

Conservatism, on the other hand, is equally unlikely of permanent success. This form of politics, when it stratifies society, must end up with two classes—the managers and the managed.

Now, since conservatism strives to "conserve" its system, it must fail. For either the managers will strive, in their ambition, to restrict further their own ranks, or the managed will attempt, in their dissatisfaction, to replace the managers.

He reasoned then that since neither liberalism nor conservatism could be permanent, then they could not be considered systems. Therefore, he said, there is little value in applying systematic theoretical positions to political problems, such as is done by social science.

An interesting example used by Dr. Rosen was that of communism considered as a conservative idea of government. Keenly analyzed by him, communism becomes not the liberal ideal it claims, but merely a disguised centralized conservatism.

While changes seem to be effected in Russia, he explained, these changes are merely meaningless vehicles.

After the talk, open discussion was held. Members and guests of the club then had the chance to challenge Dr. Rosen's arguments.

The advocates of social science were eloquent in the discussion, and Dr. Rosen was obliged to defend his conviction on the "worthlessness" of the social sciences.

Police to Enforce Sign Regulations

State College police have announced that they will begin giving tickets for violations of the new stop sign at Beaver Ave. and S. Pugh St.

Warnings only have been issued thus far for violations at the intersection, but police believe that everyone should now be aware of the new sign.

This corner has always been one of the most dangerous in the borough.

Group to Air Middle East

The Middle East will be discussed at 8 p.m. tomorrow in the Memorial Lounge of the Helen Eisenhower Chapel's Program Center.

Dr. Frederick R. Matson, professor of archaeology, will begin the discussion with the Middle East's history and anthropology. The Arabian viewpoint will be given by Dr. Eugene Myers, associate professor of economics. Israel's side will be given by Rabbi Benjamin Kahn, director of B'nai B'rith Hillel Foundation. Dr. Luther Harshbarger, University chaplain, will act as chairman and point out recent Middle East developments.

The University Christian Association and the League of Women Voters of State College will sponsor the discussion, which the public may attend.

Sweet, smooth and sassy—that's Chevrolet all over. Above, you're looking at the Bel Air Sport Coupe.

Clings to the road like a stripe of paint!

The '57 Chevy can give lessons on taking curves and holding the road to just about any car going. Few cars at any price are so beautifully balanced and so smooth, sure and solid in action.

A car has to have a special kind of build and balance to keep curves under control. And nobody outdoes Chevrolet in that department! It "corners" with all the solid assurance of an honest-to-goodness sports car. Chevy doesn't throw its weight around on turns because it carries its pounds in the right places.

And if the road should turn upward, Chevy can take care of that nicely, too—with up to 245 h.p.*

Come on in and take a turn at the wheel of a new Chevrolet.
