

Kadis Drive Grows

Ice Rink Donations Add To Stricken Athletic Fund

Thirty-eight dollars was added to the Dick Kadis fund last night as a result of the second day operation of the University ice skating rink by the Varsity "S" Club, co-sponsors of the fund-raising campaign.

The money added to the previous day's collection increased the fund total to $163. Forty dollars was collected at the rink Tuesday night while the rest of the money has come from individual contributions.

The rink will be open again tonight from 7-10 with all proceeds going to the campaign. The admission price is 50 cents but larger donations are being accepted.

Sixty-seven persons turned out at the rink last night, 22 more than had enjoyed the skating facilities the day before.

A larger crowd is expected tonight since all high schools in the state will be closed tomorrow in celebration of Washington's birthday.

Mrs. Marlyn Tammen, 1947 California and United States skating champion, did not perform her planned four-minute skating exhibition last night because of an illness in the family.

But Mrs. Tammen, who put on her brief act before Tuesday night's skating enthusiasts, is expected to return tonight.

The campaign for the injured Geneva College athlete officially began Tuesday. Besides the profits received from the skating rink, the Varsity Club and its co-sponsor, the Collegian, have been granted permission to solicit the University sororities.

Individual donations are also being accepted. Any one wishing to contribute to the fund should leave the money at the Collegian office in care of Sports Editor Fran Fanucci. Checks should be made out to the Varsity "S" club.

The Penn State campaign is only one of many now occurring throughout the country to aid the fallen athlete. He has been in a Cleveland hospital since Sept. 29 and only once has come out of a coma.

Hospital bills now total $13,000 and Kadis' father is going into debt to raise money for his stricken son. He has secured $3000 thus far but it is not nearly enough to pay the expense.

Many organizations have answered the call for help, besides the Penn State Varsity club. The latest response came from the John Carroll and Baldwin-Wallace basketball teams of Ohio who agreed to play a benefit game sometime this month.

Cornell Matmen Seek To End 9-year Jinx

Cornell will be seeking double vengeance against the Nittany wrestling team tomorrow night when the twice-beaten New Yorkers host the Lions at Ithaca, N.Y.

Their foremost goal will be to avenge a 20-6 loss to the Lions last year and their secondary purpose will be to break a nine-year jinx that Coach Charley Speidel's matmen hold over them.

Not since 1947 when the Big Red took a 21-9 decision have they been able to defeat the Penn State grapplers. In the overall series record, Cornell has won only seven and lost 35. Two meets have ended in a draw.

If Cornell's season record is any indication of their strength this year then the Lion nine-year spell may be broken tomorrow. In nine meets, the Big Red have won seven and lost two, including a 17-9 victory over Lehigh.

Losses to Pitt, 22-8, and Syracuse, 14-11, mar an otherwise perfect season for Cornell. Besides the win over the Engineers, the New York grapplers own victories over Colgate, 22-5, Yale, 19-8, Penn, 25-8, Harvard, 19-8, Brown, 20-6, and Franklin and Marshall, 19-10.

Three seniors, two juniors, and three sophomores dot the Cornell starting lineup, including four lettermen. Two of the Cornell men are unbeaten.

Junior Dick Vincent has a nine-match winning streak going in the 157-pound division while his teammate, sophomore Steve Friedman, is undefeated in four outings at 167.

Five other Cornell men own better than average records. Junior Carmen Molino has a 7-2 record at 123 and George Willis, a 130-pound sophomore owns a 5-3-1 mark. Senior co-captain Chuck Gratto—brother of Lehigh's captain Joe Gratto—has a 5-4 card at 137.

In the heavier weights Cornell is fairly strong with senior Steve Smethurst, the other co-captain, wrestling with a 4-3-2 slate at 177 and sophomore Dave Dunlop, 6-1-2, in the heavy-weight spot.

The remaining Cornell starting position at 147 is handled by senior Glen Wise who has an anemic 2-6 record to date.

Vincent, who last season lost a 7-4 decision to Penn State's John Pepe, has ruled supreme in his weight class. He has only one fall to show but most of his decisions have been one-sided.

In the season opener with Lehigh, Vincent handed the aforementioned Joe Gratto his first loss in collegiate dual competition, 9-6.

Friedman has been injured for part of the season and has seen only limited action. But in that time he has carved out victories over foes from Lehigh.

Colgate, Harvard, and F & M.

Molino's and Dunlop's records are not spotless but they still shine out from the crowd. One of Molino's defeats was a 3-2 decision to Pitt's Bill Hulings and the other came against Penn when weight trouble caused him to forfeit.

Dunlop's only loss this year and the only one of his career was to Pitt's Ron Schirf, 6-2. His two ties have been with Doug Werner of Colgate and Syracuse's Chuck Dinkelmeyer. Last year, as a freshman, Dunlop was unbeaten in six matches.

Frosh Matmen Change Lineup For Big Red

A revamped Penn State freshman wrestling lineup will face the Cornell frosh matmen Friday night in an attempt to win its second match of the year.

Under the coaching of Don Watkins, the Lions have defeated the Lock Haven State Teachers College junior varsity while dropping a narrow 16-15 decision to Lehigh. Cornell's grapplers downed Syracuse, 26-3, and Lehigh, 20-4.

At 123 pounds the Nittanians will send Gordon Danks, a New Jersey prep school champ, into action while holding down the 130 pound slot will be a newcomer, Bob Costaglio, a PIAA District and Regional champion at 120 pounds.

Appearing for the first time in a Penn State uniform will be Duane Foresman at 137 pounds and at 147 pounds will be Sam Minor of Mapletown, who compiled a 51-8 high school record. A Greensburg native, Bob Faris, will wrestle at 157 pounds for the Lions.

Dan Mangle of Shamokin is expected to get the nod at 167 pounds and Al Lasko, with a one match experience, will start at 177 pounds. The heavyweight contender will be a New Jersey all-state football product, Sam Stellatella, wrestling for the first time.

Rip Engle has yet to experience a losing season in seven years at the Penn State football coaching helm.

1957 Eastern Gymnastic Championship To Be Decided at Army-Lion Meet

The 1957 Eastern Gymnastics championship goes to the winner of the Cadet-Lion meet this Saturday, conceded Army Gymnastics Coach Tom Maloney.

Lion Chieftain Gene Wettstone agreed to the importance of the meet, for a whole year of hopes depend on this meet.

If Wettstone's team comes through, it will be his eighth Eastern title in 18 years as head coach and will near the Army record of 9 championships.

The 1956 defending EIGL champs hold a 15-7 lead over the Lions in a dual-meet series dating back to 1932.

Both teams sport undefeated 3-0 cards in league competition this year. Army has defeated two mutual opponents of the Lions, both by lower scores than Wettstone and company.

The Cadets finished off Temple, 67-29, while Wettstone's charges scored a 70½-25½ victory. Syracuse forced the men from West Point to go all out before bowing 62-34 while the Lions widened the breach to 67-29 against the Orangemen.

Maloney, 1952 Olympic Gymnastics coach, said, "The meet with Penn State on February 23 will definitely determine the team champion for 1957."

"In my opinion Penn State has probably the finest gym team in the country and also one of the best coaches in Gene Wettstone."

"I feel that Army's chances of beating Penn State are very slim and we will have to get EVERY break to win."

Maloney apparently is not going to take any chances on the breaks going against him. His 17-man crew of specialists are expected on campus today in order to work out and become familiar with the Recreation Hall surroundings.

One of the biggest things that Wettstone fears is the 17 "specialists" that Maloney utilizes. According to the Lion mentor, the men from the Hudson usually compete in only one event and they become "so terrific in that one thing, they're very hard to beat."

"I would like to be able to do that myself," Wettstone concluded.

The only gymnast on the squad who does not specialize in one event is probably the most dangerous man on the team, Garland O'Quinn.

O'Quinn is undefeated on both the side horse and the parallel bar. He was a runner-up in the Easterns last year.

Besides O'Quinn, the Cadets depend on the scoring of Captain Bill Thomson on the horizontal bar and Paul Dean in the rope climb. Thomson and Dean are defending Eastern champions and the meet may go to the final event, the rope climb, before the 1957 Eastern championship is won.

Six Fraternities Grab Victories In IM Bowling

All the intramural bowling action at Recreation Hall Tuesday night was supplied by fraternity teams, as Tau Kappa Epsilon, Theta Delta Chi, Alpha Tau Omega, Kappa Delta Rho, Tau Phi Delta, and Theta Xi garnered victories.

TKE downed Phi Sigma Delta, 3-1, as Bob Campbell took both one and three-game scoring honors for the TKE team.

Theta Delta Chi defeated Phi Gamma Delta, 4-0, paced by John Fracaciessi who rolled a 493 three-game total.

ATO whipped Delta Upsilon, 4-0, behind Tony Dorrell who bowled a one-game score of 191.

KDR won over Alpha Zeta, 4-0, as Jim Barron led the way with a one-game 206 score and a three-game total of 530.

Tau Phi Delta took a close one from Sigma Alpha Mu, 2037-1992, as they registered a 3-1 win. Arnie Machles rolled a 201 score for a one-game high for SAM; and the SAM one game team total was 709.

Theta Xi topped Phi Delta Theta, 3-1, as George Hawk led in both one and three-game scoring.
