2 Violate Drinking Code

Two other freshmen received a recommendation for judicial probation for violating the frosh drinking code at a joint party of Sigma Alpha Mu and Kappa Sigma fraternities. They were caught by IFC checkers.

The two fraternities were placed on five weeks social probation and rushing privileges of the students were suspended for a year by action of the IFC Board of Control.

Both students signed names at the door before entering the party but one of the students was not stamped. They said they drank soda first but then took some beer.

The judicial board said the IFC decision was not considered in making its decision.

First Beer Case

In its first case, the AIM group recommended judicial probation and a letter to the parents of two freshmen who brought beer into Irving Hall from a downtown tavern.

The students, both 18 years old, reported that another student, who was over 21 years of age, bought the beer after the trio attended a downtown movie. They said the third person whom they would not identify did not know they were going to take the beer into the dorm.

The counselor, who caught the students after the beer was consumed, said it was the first time the students were involved in any trouble. The judicial board said

Ike Wants--

The President held a conference with congressional leaders this morning on the grave Mideast situation. After that meeting reports spread that he was considering some kind of "moral sanctions" against Israel, though their nature was not defined.

He said it was "the general feeling" at his meeting with the congressional leaders that the whole problem should be laid before the American people.

Eisenhower said in his talk tonight that the UN "has made considerable progress" in trying to solve Middle East problems. But he said Israel's refusal to obey UN resolutions calling for withdrawal poses "a fateful moment."
