

Big Red Ties Matmen, 12-12 Cagers Edge Colgate, 75-74

Lions Win First Four, Lose Rest

By LOU PRATO
Penn State's season-long weakness in the upperweights, once again proved disastrous to the Lion matmen when Cornell rallied from a 12-0 deficit, last night at Ithaca, N.Y., to deadlock the Nittanies, 12-12.

It was the first draw of the season for both teams and the third in the 49-meet series between the two schools.

The Lions now own a 5-2-1 record while Cornell's mark is at 7-2-1.

As has been the case throughout the campaign, defeats in the upperweights led to the Lion downfall.

Coach Charley Speidel's aggregation started out with a 12-0 lead on the basis of decisions by Sid Nodland, Johnny Johnston, John Pepe, and Dave Adams. But they couldn't go any further as Earl Poust, Bruce Gilmore, Les Walters, and Sam Markle fell victim to Big Red foes in the last four matches.

LION CO-CAPTAIN Dave Adams remained unbeaten at Ithaca N.Y., last night when he decisioned Cornell's Glenn Wise, 10-0. The senior stalwart almost pinned Wise in the third period but time ran out.

Despite the team result, three Lions and one Cornell grappler kept their individual unbeaten streaks intact. Johnston won his eighth, Nodland, his seventh, and Adams his sixth for the Nittanies while Cornell's 157-pound ace, Dick Vincent, ran his winning string to ten.

Nodland repeated his 1956 effort against Carmen Molino when he handed the Cornell 123-pounder a 11-7 loss. Last year, the Nittany co-captain squeezed by Molino, 3-2.

Johnston limited George Willis to a two-point reverse in the last 15 seconds of his 130-pound scrap to win, 5-2. Johnston scored his points on a first period takedown, a second period reverse, and time advantage.

Pepe won his seventh match in eight starts at 137 by stopping Cornell's co-captain Chuck Gratto, 6-1. Pepe scored a takedown in the first period, rode out the second, gained an escape and takedown in the third, and picked up time advantage for his win.

Adams came within seconds of scoring the only fall of the night when he whitewashed Glenn Wise, 10-0. The Lion senior had Wise in a cradle hold in the third period but the buzzer went off before Wise's shoulder blades touched the mats.

From here or in it was all Cornell. Vincent rolled to an easy win over Poust, picking up points on three takedowns, two escapes, a predicament, and time advantage. Poust's two points came on a third period reverse.

Steve Friedman scored a takedown on Gilmore in the first period and that was all he needed for a 2-1 victory over the Lion 167-pounder. Gilmore escaped in the second for his point.

Walters lost his third match in three starts when a two-point penalty in the third period cost him a 5-3 decision to Steve Smethurst. The Lion junior saw a 3-3 tie go out the window when the referee penalized him for crawling off the mat.

In the final match of the night, Sam Markle lost a 4-0 decision to Dave Dunlop. All of Dunlop's points came in the final period.

Late Rally Wins Game; Syracuse Host Nittanies

By VINCE CAROCCI
Penn State's on-again, off-again basketball team took the first step towards breaking a 15-year old basketball jinx when it edged Colgate's scrappy quintet, 75-74, last night at Hamilton, N.Y.

If the Lions can defeat Syracuse tonight at Syracuse, it will be the first time since 1942 that the cagers have beaten both the Orange and the Raiders away in one season.

Some top clutch shooting by Dick Schwendeman, Ron Rainey, and Steve Baidy, plus a mental lapse on the part of the Raider's Bill Allen, gave the Lions the victory.

In the final three minutes of play, Schwendeman scored two field goals with his deadly set shot, Rainey hit on a jump, and Baidy scored his only four points of the game to grab a victory from the fateful hands of defeat.

Allen, playing one of his better games of the year, won the "Goat of the Night" award when he lost his temper during the tension-filled final minutes to send Baidy to the foul line with the game-clinching points.

Here's the way the scoring went in the final three minutes:

With the score 67-65, Colgate, Schwendeman hit with another of his sets to tie the score. Rainey followed with a jump shot and the Lions were ahead momentarily, 69-67.

However, the Raiders were far from dead. Three foul conversions, one by Phil Bisselle and two by Jack Nichols, put the Raiders back into the lead, 70-69. It was the last Colgate lead of the game.

Schwendeman hit with his second consecutive set shot to regain the lead, 71-70. It was then that the tension mounted and tempers flared.

In the midst of a scramble for the ball, Allen lost his self-composure and started to throw some fists. The only punch that hurt was one that missed its mark.

Baidy was sent to the foul line with two free throws and, after going scoreless for the first 38 minutes, converted on both to give the Lions a three-point bulge.

Forced into a full-court press, the over-anxious Raiders again fouled Baidy, who immediately converted another two points for the final Lion tallies. Not even two last-minute Raider scores could save the game.

Colgate opened the game with two quick goals, but the Lions came back to take an 8-5 lead on a basket and two fouls by Captain Bob Leisher, two fouls by Rainey, and a goal by Bob Edwards.

The remainder of the half saw the Lions maintaining their four-point lead with Colgate trying to stage a sustained scoring drive. The Raider almost succeeded when they outscored the Lions in the final two and a half minutes, 8-6, to leave the floor at half-time only two points behind, 37-35.

Rainey led the Lion scorers with 22 points. Edwards and Schwendeman were next with 16 points apiece. They were the only Lions to break into the double-scoring column.

Oddly enough, Colgate had five men in double figures. Nichols led the losers with 17 points, Allen, Burke and Bisselle each had 14, and Russ Brummer had 10.

Coach John Egli had only one comment after the contest. "We played a determined game," he said. With Syracuse on tap tonight, determination may again play an important part in the outcome.

Kadis Fund Grows; Total Rises to $418

By FRAN FANUCCI
Contributions for the "Dick Kadis Fund" continued to pour in yesterday when $110.80 was collected, bringing the total for the week to $418.34.

Six fraternities donated $85.80 while the Daily Collegian gave a check for $25 to push the fund over the $400 mark.

Sigma Chi contributed $30, which is the largest fraternity sum collected. Lambda Chi Alpha contributed $19 to place second in the fraternity race.

No sororities have contributed to the fund, but rushing, which dominated most of the week, could probably be labeled as the deterrent to sorority collections.

It is expected that the major part of the sorority money will be collected early next week. Only seven fraternities have contributed, but an increase here is also expected sometime next week.

President Paul Roberts, of the Varsity "S" Club, co-sponsor of the drive along with the Daily Collegian, has urged fraternities to leave the money at The Daily Collegian or at Delta Upsilon fraternity.

He said the drive will definitely end late next week or until most of the fraternities and sororities have responded with donations.

The major part of the money collected this week came from profits received at the University Ice Skating Rink. In the three days and nights the "S" Club had control of the rink, students, faculty, and townspeople donated over $200.

Other top donations were $50 from an anonymous student and $35 from the "S" Club.

Kadis is the Geneva College football player who was injured in the football game with Waynesburg Sept. 29.

He suffered a cerebral hemorrhage and has been in a coma over four and one-half months. His medical bills total over $13,000.
