

Ambulance To Arrive In 8 Weeks

The ambulance to be presented by the 1956 class has been chosen and is scheduled to arrive May 1.

Dr. Herbert R. Glenn, Director of Health Service, said that the buying committee has been deliberate in selecting the ambulance, since they wanted "to be sure of making the right choice."

To Cost $9,000-$10,000

The ambulance will be a Hess-Eisenhardt body mounted on a Cadillac chassis. Cost of the ambulance, Dr. Glenn said, is between $9,000 and $10,000.

The new ambulance will be two-toned, having a light blue body and a sand-colored top.

It will have a capacity of three patients, with one permanent bed and two utility stretchers.

Dr. Glenn said that a plan has not yet been formulated for the use of the ambulance, but that it will probably be stationed at all large functions, such as football games.

Restrictions on Use

There will be regulations set up as to who may call for the ambulance, in order to restrict its use.

Dr. Glenn said that an added feature of having the ambulance will be to eliminate the necessity of hiring private ambulances for long trips as was done in the past.

Long Trips Facilitated

He explained that the community ambulance would not make trips in excess of 50 miles, so that if a patient had to be taken to a large city hospital, it was necessary to hire an ambulance from one of the funeral homes in the area.

The ambulance will be housed in the hospital garage.

Other details, such as the drivers for the ambulance are still to be worked out.

An inscribed plaque with the name of the donor—the 1956 class—will be mounted on the ambulance.

Salk Vaccine Given to 1160

University students have received 1160 Salk polio vaccine shots since the injection program began last month.

Supplies of the vaccine will be available indefinitely at the Infirmary, according to Dr. Herbert R. Glenn, director of the Health Service.

Because of the 8-month time lapse involved in the series of three injections, only two shots will be offered in the spring semester. The third shot must be administered by the family physician during the summer.

Any student in good health may receive the vaccine at $1 a shot. Letters of permission for students under 21 must be mailed by the parents directly to the Health Service.

Students who have already received one or two shots should bring with them a slip signed by the doctor who administered the injections.

Elections Committee to View Campus, Lion Planks Tonight

The All-University Elections Committee tonight will review the two political party platforms for the spring elections.

The committee will meet at 7 in 217 Hetzel Union.

Chairman William Johnson yesterday said the group must approve the platforms at least four days before campaigning may begin.

Under the All-University Elections Code, the committee may delete or change any part of a platform submitted to it by one of the political parties.

The platform will be presented by the clique chairmen, John Bott, for Campus party and John Godayte, for Lion party.

Godayte's Position

Referring to his platform, Godayte last night said: "For the past two years Lion Party has consistently represented the basic interest of Penn State students, feeling this is the only reason for the existence of the political party. And for the past two years we have been forced into the background, unable to act as many of these problems have been ignored due to the administration's domination of student government, specifically cabinet."

"This Spring the Lion party will present the issues it feels are of prime importance to the average Penn State Student rather than to the select few in student government. Campus party has held the All-University Presidency for the past two years and in that time has initiated no real political issues. This spring with the help of the student body, Lion party will see that these issues no longer go unneeded." (Continued on page two)

Abba Eban to Hold New Talks With Dag Hammarskjold at UN

WASHINGTON, Feb. 26 (AP)—Secretary of State Dulles and Israeli Ambassador Abba Eban, seeking a way out of the troops-in-Sinai deadlock, agreed today that Eban should hold new talks with Dag Hammarskjold at the United Nations.

Eban rushed back to Washington this morning to confer with Dulles after meeting yesterday in New York City with Hammarskjold, the UN secretary general. The hastily scheduled Dulles-Eban meeting lasted an hour and a half.

No Formula

There was no word on whether Dulles and Eban talked about a possible U.S.-sponsored formula in the UN for winning an Israeli withdrawal.

At the UN, American delegation sources said work was going forward on a U.S. proposal to get such a withdrawal without imposing sanctions against Israel. No details were available, but it was understood Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge likely would introduce a U.S. resolution tomorrow.

Eban's Return

The decision that Eban should return to New York came after the ambassador was reported to have told Dulles that:

1. Eban found Hammarskjold unmoved by his arguments on behalf of a formula agreed to last Sunday by Dulles and Eban for withdrawing Israeli troops from two disputed areas without UN sanctions.

2. Negotiations with Hammarskjold so far offer little

Borough Stores Refuse to Try Discount Plan

By GINNY PHILIPS

The merchants in State College have practically eliminated any possibility of establishing a student discount service by refusing to try the plan, according to Jacob Timbers, head of the National Student Association committee on student affairs.

Most of the merchants feel that their periodic sales on merchandise eliminate the need of a student discount. Also, Timbers said, some stores already provide discounts, such as the Music Room which gives a free record with every ten bought.

Quality Would Suffer

If a discount is given to the students, merchants said they would be forced to reduce the quality of the merchandise in order to make a profit. They said this is because of the high overhead of operating a business in State College. Also a discount would probably start violent price fluctuations in the borough, they said.

The merchants were afraid that a large enough increase in turnover would not result from a discount service. They said they do not have sufficient sales from townspeople to make up for this since 80 per cent of their sales come from students. They felt that the service would work in a larger city where student sales comprise only a minority of total sales.

To Compare Prices

Timbers is now planning to work with Eugene Fulmer, head of the Chamber of Commerce, to promote a better understanding between the merchants and students. They will attempt to show price comparisons in State College in relation to other college towns.

Previously, students in fraternities and dormitories were given questionnaires asking if they would be in favor of a discount service. The majority of students questioned did not feel that the prices in State College compared favorably with those in their hometowns. The students said that if a discount service were in effect they would do more of their shopping in State College.

Would Benefit Stores

A 10 to 15 per cent discount was called for in the plan, according to Timbers. He felt that it would benefit the merchants by increasing their turnover and would help the student by allowing him to buy merchandise at a reduced rate. The service would persuade many students to buy merchandise who otherwise would not do so because of the price. (Continued on page two)

Eng Student Placed On Probation

The College of Engineering and Architecture's committee on academic discipline has placed one student on disciplinary probation and placed a record in the office of the dean of the college concerning a second student, both for cases of academic dishonesty.

An eighth-semester industrial engineering student has been placed on probation until the fall semester of 1957 for using crib notes during a final examination, Dean of Men Frank J. Simes, said. The cheating occurred in a Mechanics 14 final.

Although the student is in his eighth semester, he does not plan to graduate until February 1957.

The second case decided by the committee involved a second-semester student in engineering architecture. The student was found guilty of looking on another paper during a lab quiz.

The committee will have a probationary memorandum concerning the student's case placed in the office of the dean of the college, as well as in the office of the dean of men and the student's adviser.

The probationary memorandum is common procedure in a first offense when a student is found guilty of unpremeditated cheating, Simes said.

Rains to End; Clouds Remain

The Nittany Lion was out prowling around the den today despite the damp ground and gray skies.

A flash flood hit the Lion's den during the night, carrying away, among other things, the manuscript of the Lion's memoirs. The manuscript, rumored to be an expose of campus life, supposedly treats everything from Cabinet's inability to act decisively on any key issues to why Froth editors continually mistake the product of warped minds for humor.

The book, if it is found, is expected to hit the bookstores in the spring. The rain of the past few days is expected to end. Skies will remain cloudy with the mercury reaching a high of 45.
