

Lion Cagers Test Lehigh 13 Nittanies to Enter Tonight at Recreation Hall IC4-A's Saturday

By VINCE CAROCCI

Penn State's inconsistent basketball team begins its final week of regularly-scheduled play at 8 tonight when it tests Lehigh's Engineers at Recreation Hall. The Lions are 14-9 on the season.

After the Engineer contest, only Pitt remains. The Lions play Pitt Saturday night at Rec Hall.

Anxious to avenge a mid-season Engineer upset, 72-67, in a single overtime contest, Coach John Egli will go with his recently-formed starting crew.

Ron Rainey and Tom Hancock will man the forward posts. Bob Edwards will be at center, and Steve Baidy and either Captain Bob Leisher or Greg Schwendeman will play guard. Egli is expected to name his second guard shortly before game time.

Both Baidy and Leisher are plagued by troublesome scoring slumps, Leisher's extending from the first Pittsburgh game. Since that time, the Lion captain has broken double figures only twice—he hit for 12 in the first Engineer game and scored 13 against Penn.

Baidy's slump, on the other hand, is of a recent nature. He has not hit twin figures since his 18-point output against West Virginia, Feb. 16.

Egli admits that both Baidy and Leisher's inability to find the scoring range has hurt the cagers in their last three games.

Of Leisher, he said: "He's going in for shots, but just isn't making them." He conceded that Leisher was not one of the best shots on the team.

Egli said that tough defensive play may account for Baidy's slump. "They're (the opposition) afraid of him and put one of their best defensive men on him," he said. "They're playing him real tight."

Engineer Coach Tony Packer is expected to go with the same starting lineup that he used in the first Lion tilt. Dan Nolan and Bob Roepke are expected to open at forward, Arnis Balgalvis at center, and Bill LeClere and Tom Healy at guard.

Roepke with 23 points, Healy with 19, and Balgalvis with 13, were the big Lehigh scorers in the first Lion game. Healy hit for seven points and Balgalvis for five in the overtime period.

Of Lehigh, Egli said, "They're a pretty decent ball club. They have a pretty good big man in Bulgalvis, a big, strong kid who moves well in the pivot."

Lehigh plays a moderate-speed ballgame, seldom using a fast break, Egli said. The Engineers will probably use a man-to-man defense.

An added highlight on tonight's game could be the contest for individual Lion scoring honors: being waged by Ron Rainey and Bob Edwards. Rainey, the season-long leader, holds a slight edge over Edwards, 345-313. Edwards, however, did not break into the starting lineup until the Christmas Tournament at Richmond.

Frosh Cagers Meet Altoona

The Lion frosh basketball team may better the .500 mark for the first time this season when they encounter the Altoona Center cagers tonight at Recreation Hall.

Wally Colender, the Lion cubs' top scorer with 85 points in four tests, leads the Penn State quintet into the Altoona tilt. Colender has been the Lions' most valuable player, providing a strong board game in addition to his point-producing ability.

Either Larry Freedman or Mel Ramey will complete the Lion starting five. Freedman, a set shot artist, turned in his best game of the year against the Bisons.

WRA Sports Day

The Women's Recreation Association will play host to five colleges in its annual winter sports day at White Hall Saturday.

Colleges participating in the sports day will be Dickinson, Bucknell, Juniata, Lock Haven and Lycoming.

'S' Club to Hold Initiation Meeting

The Varsity "S" Club will hold an initiation meeting at 10 tonight in Delta Upsilon fraternity. All prospective members are asked to be there on time.

The Club will also discuss the "Dick Kadis Fund," which it is sponsoring along with The Daily Collegian. President Paul Roberts said that every fraternity should try and get their money to the Club at tonight's meeting.

The Club will also discuss the buying of jackets for the new members.

Penn State will host the Eastern intercollegiate wrestling championships, at University Park, Pa., March 15-16.

Varsity track coach Chick Werner will send a 13-man squad into the IC-4A Indoor Championships Saturday in New York's Madison Square Garden.

Last year the Lions finished fourth behind Manhattan, Villanova and LaSalle in the varsity competition and placed second in the freshman sprint medley.

Rod Perry and Dick Winston will give Penn State a solid entry in the 60-yard high hurdles. The Nittany captain is defending champion in the event and placed second to Manhattan's Charlie Pratt two years ago as a sophomore.

Winston who was unable to compete in last year's meet because of a pulled muscle, will also compete in the broad jump.

Cross country captain Don Woodrow is in for a rough time in the mile. All four men who finished ahead of him last year will be back again this year.

Cross country captain-elect Fred Kerr will be the Lion's entry in the two-mile run against a strong field, including defending IC-4A outdoor champion Alex Breckenridge of Villanova.

Unbeaten Ed Moran and senior Ron Lewis both may place high in the 1000-yard run. The field in this event is devoid of well-known runners. The event was won last year by Pitt's Olympic star, Arnie Sowell.

Jim Norton will be the Nittany entry in the 600-yard run against a field including Olympic 400-meter champion Charlie Jenkins of Villanova.

Junior Ogier Norris and senior Harry Fuehrer will compete in the pole vault against Olympic vaulter Don Bragg, the defending champion. Norris tied for third last year.

Dick Hambright, Jim O'Conner, Cornelius Sharpe and Dick Englebrink have an excellent chance to take the freshman sprint medley title.

Hambright, fifth-ranked high school quarter miler in the nation last year, will run the 880 leg.

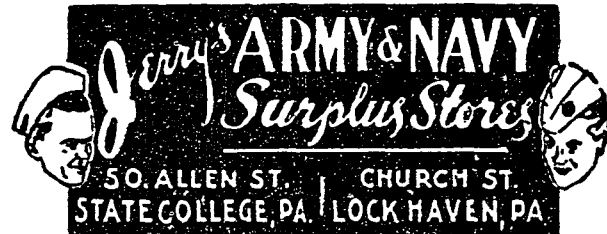

Hambright ran a strong 1:13.6 600 against the Army Plebes last month and has constantly been under two minutes in the 880 in practice over the Recreation Hall boards.

Anchoring the relay will be Glenside's Dick Engelbrink. The towering miler could be the deciding factor in the Lions' quest for the title.

Against Army last month Engelbrink won the mile in 4:23.4, the first race of his track career.
