

Carnival Will Count 40% Of Spring Week Points

The Spring Week Committee has decided that 40 per cent of the overall Spring Week points be given for the carnival.

Other points will be distributed so that 25 per cent will be given for the Mad Hatter's Parade, 15 per cent for the coronation of Miss Penn State, 15 per cent for the He-Man Contest and five per cent for the new coed event, The Tournament of the Queen of Hearts. Members of the committee thought the carnival and the Mad Hatter's Parade should be weighed most heavily because participation of more students is involved in these events.

The committee, besides setting up a plan for the overall Spring Week points also set up a ratio for the delegation of points within each event.

Carnival Judging
Judging for the carnival will be based on four criteria: good taste, adherence to theme, originality and number of tickets—one point for every five tickets.

A winner will be selected for each of the three carnival categories. The winner in each category will be selected on a 1000-point basis with a maximum of 250 points to be given for each of the four judging criteria.

The three first place winners will each receive 40 Spring Week points. The second place winners will receive 27 points and the third place winners will receive 18 points.

Points for Mad Hatters
There will also be three winners for the Mad Hatter's Parade. Each of these will receive 25 Spring Week points. The three second place winners will each receive 16 points and the third place winners 10 points.

Eight points will be given for each unit hat entered and three points for each individual hat. A ratio will be used to equalize the various sizes of the organizations entering individual hats.

The criteria for judging the Mad-Hatter's Parade are ease of recognition, adherence to category, originality and quality of workmanship.

15 Points to He-Man
The group sponsoring the He-Man winner will receive 15 points. Ten points will be awarded to the second place winner, seven points to the third place winner, and the other seven finalists will each receive two points.

Past winners of the He-Man contest will not be eligible for this year's event. Also varsity athletes in track and cross-country and members of these teams will be ineligible.

The group sponsoring the winner in the new coed event, The Tournament of the Queen of Hearts will receive five Spring Week points. The two girls on the winning team will be crowned Tweedle Dum and Tweedle Dee.

Coronation Event
A total of 15 Spring Week points will be awarded to the group that sponsors Miss Penn State and eight points to each of the four groups sponsoring the attendants. The five finalists will be chosen on a 10 point basis. They will be judged on poise, speech, carriage, personality, attractiveness and grooming. To be eligible for the coronation event, the contestant must be a junior.

Cabinet Members Debate Pros and Cons of NSA

(Another in a series of stories explaining and clarifying the NSA issue)

By PAT EVANS

To some All-University Cabinet members NSA seems to stand for "No Special Aid," while to others it means "Necessary Special Assistance."

To all members, NSA means National Student Association, the perennial issue before Cabinet: To be or not to be a member?

Joseph Hartnett, senior class president, fell in the group that feels NSA means "No Special Aid."

At last week's Cabinet meeting Hartnett slammed the Student Government Information Service of NSA.

The purpose of this service is to file information on various phases and problems of student government which have confronted schools. This material is sent upon request to colleges with the same problems.

Request Unanswered
Hartnett said he asked for but did not receive material on exemption of students from final examinations. The national office contained no information of this sort.

In an interview, Hartnett said NSA has "nothing to work with. You might as well do it on your own." He said the senior class had no occasion to use NSA for anything else.

Lawrence McCabe, campus NSA coordinator, said it is quite possible that other schools haven't had the problem of exemptions from finals. In that case there would be no material on the situation filed in the information service.

Claims 'Generalization'
He said Hartnett based his "broad generalization" on only a "narrow sampling" of NSA's potential aid to student government.

NSA could have been used more by student groups at the University, McCabe commented.

Student leaders who have used the facilities of the organization's information service include Martha Fleming, secretary of Women's Student Government Association; Joseph Eberly, head of the committee to set up a new supreme court; Susan Hill, co-chairman of a committee to investigate the student bookstore situation; Leonard Richards, All-University secretary-treasurer; and Lash Howes, Association of Independent Men president.

Aid Not Sought
WSGA, according to Miss Fleming, did not seek much help from the NSA service because it belongs to a national association of women student governments from which it can get desired information.

Eberly said his committee received copies of other colleges' constitutions through NSA. He is president of the Chemistry and Physics Student Council, which has received suggestions for council elections from NSA.

Miss Hill, whose committee was aided by NSA in compiling information on a student bookstore, is president of the Home Economics Student Council.

She said the information service (Continued on page eight)

Electrical Installations Progressing

Many large items of equipment have already been installed in changing the campus electrical distribution system from 2400 volts to 4160 volts, and the work is progressing on schedule, according to Harold E. Byers, assistant in the division of utilities.

The project is expected to be completed during the summer.

To Begin in June
The actual changeover to the new system will be started in June, and as the changeover is made, there will be interruptions in electrical service to all parts of the campus.

Tentatively, this period of interruptions is to begin June 12 and continue for about a week. Some areas will have prolonged interruptions and others intermittent ones. A detailed schedule will be published at a later date showing which areas will have the prolonged interruptions.

Started One Year Ago
Construction of the new electrical system was started a year ago to help meet the growing demands for electricity on the campus. The electrical load has increased not only because of new building construction, but also because of growing demands in all buildings for electricity to provide more adequate lighting and for the operation of new equipment.
