Donovan told Cabinet that he thought a fulltime manager could handle summertime operations alone, with student assistance for the "rush period" during the first few days of each session.

Cabinet approved a recommendation from the committee that the former Council Administration's 60-day book list ruling be enforced in a manner that the Council of Academic Deans sees desirable to meet the needs of students, bookstores and professors.

The present University ruling states that official book lists are to be returned to book stores 60 days prior to the beginning of each semester.

In the past, the University has turned in book lists to downtown bookstores on approximately Aug. 1, prior to the fall registration.

Downtown bookstores have had problems with circulation because of inadequate handling of book lists for courses. Because of late or absent lists, the stores have had many cases of overstocking or not ordering books at all.

Miss Hill said that the three downtown bookstores contacted for the study feel that at the present time, they will be able to take care of the increased needs of students caused by rising enrollment.

303 Votes Cast

A total of 303 votes were cast, 20 per cent of the independent women. Miss Jablonski attributes the low figure to the fact that the polls were open only at the lunch and dinner hours. Voting was held in all the women's residence halls.

Miss Jablonski said, "I'm looking forward to a good year. Rosetta Kearney as president of Leonides set a good many precedents which Leonides Council will try to carry on and add to in the future."

Constitution to Be Revised

Miss Jablonski said that work will be started on the Leonides Constitution before the end of the semester to revise the requirements for president and vice president. Two amendments will be made: third-semester students will be eligible to run, and the Leonides president must have a 2.5 average.

This will be consistent with a proposed amendment to the All-University constitution which would require all members of All-University Cabinet to maintain a minimum 2.4 All-University average.

Acres of Diamonds??

With apologies to Dr. Conwell for a slight case of plagiarism and exaggeration, for we really don't have "Acres of Diamonds." All we have is the largest selection we've ever had at our store, and we'll be the first to admit—it's a pretty big one. A couple of times a year we purchase diamonds, our most recent purchase has just arrived and it is big. We bought heavy in anticipation of a rising market—and the market acted just as we had anticipated. Rough diamonds have advanced in price. It'll take a while before the price of cut diamonds goes up, but it's inevitable. So we suggest you act now.
