

Campus Party Victory Strongest in 3 Years

By BOB FRANKLIN

Campus party has emerged from its sweeping victory in the spring elections as a stronger political force than at any time during the three years of its existence.

An analysis of Thursday's election returns reveals that not one of the party's nominees for the three All-University offices won less than 60 per cent of the vote.

Every Campus party All-University nominee carried each of the four classes.

The total sweep of the All-University and senior and junior offices by an established political party has never been equaled in the annals of student politics at the University.

Offset Lion's Fall Gain

Campus party dominated the spring elections for the third straight year, completely offsetting the gains made last fall by Lion party, which won five of the six freshman and sophomore class offices at that time.

The final voting figures for the 3-day election were about 2 per cent below those for last year. What will be the result of this and the amount of "ticket-splitting," which was relatively small compared with last year's balloting, is a subject of much conjecture among campus politicians and would-be politicians.

In a victory statement made last night, Ronald Ross, Campus party vice clique chairman, attributed the surprising showing to a combination of deserving candidates and smooth-running organization.

Praises Party Workers

He said the party's nominees had a good background for the offices they won and gave the platform strong support. The party workers, he said, were "extremely adept and did an outstanding job."

John Godayte, Lion party clique chairman, last night declined to attribute his party's defeat to any single cause. But, he said, the Lion party nominees "did as much as they possibly could," to bring victory.

Concerning the party's future, Godayte said, "First I think we'll have to find out if there is a Lion party." He expressed concern at the possibility of a one-party political system.

Lauds Collegian Coverage

Godayte also praised The Daily Collegian for its coverage of the election and the campaign. He said:

"I would like to congratulate The Daily Collegian on what I consider a very sincere and successful attempt at giving the election an unbiased coverage."

The Campus party ticket was led to its victory by Robert Steele, the All-University president-elect, who polled 1937 votes to 947 for his opponent, James Schry.

Steele Polled 67.2%

Steele's 67.2 per cent showing was topped in only one class by one other nominee, Bruce Walsh, the junior class vice president-elect, drew 629 votes, compared to Steele's 605 in the sophomore class balloting. Walsh defeated David West, who drew 274 votes.

The Lion party leader in the voting was its nominee for All-University secretary treasurer, Tyson Moyer, who won a total of 1131 votes, but was easily defeated by Joseph Boerhet, with 1737.

The closest race between the parties and the area where most of the ticket-splitting occurred was in the senior class elections.

Senior Class Voting

Thomas Hollander, Campus party, defeated Robert Yeager, Lion party, 375-322. Yeager ran ahead of every other Lion party nominee except Sally Stauffer, the candidate for senior class secretary-treasurer. She lost to Jane Carson by a narrow 15-vote edge, 355-340.

The Lion party nominee for junior class president, Robert Roth, also ran well ahead of the party ticket, but was defeated by George Sellers, 494-375.

The Campus party for the second time in three years took all nine offices in the spring elections. During the first year of its existence, 1955, it defeated both Lion and State parties to elect a full slate.

1955 Victory Cited

However, at that time the Campus party nominees did not poll more than 50 per cent of the vote, and most of the winners were elected with 40 per cent of the votes cast.

Whether Campus party can maintain its power at the peak it hit this spring, or whether it will be whittled away by a rejuvenated Lion party can only be a matter of conjecture for the campus conjecturers and the "man on the mall."

Who knows? Perhaps a third party will emerge again to become a power in student politics, just as Campus party did three years ago.

WH Will Hold Dinner Program 'Gifted' Meeting

"Student Government—Managed or Managed?" will be the topic at a dinner discussion program sponsored by West Halls Council at 6 p.m. Monday in Waring Hall for approximately 50 students and eight faculty guests.

The dinner will be served in the south dining room of Waring Hall, and a discussion will follow in McKee lounge. Refreshments will be served following the discussion.

Faculty guests will include Wilmer E. Kenworthy, executive assistant to the president and director of student affairs; Frank J. Simes, dean of men; William B. Crafts, assistant to the dean of men; George L. Donovan, director of associated student activities; Gladys P. Gummerson, Thompson Hall hostess; and Richard C. Maloney, assistant dean of the College of the Liberal Arts.

Three members of the Department of Romance Languages will participate next Saturday in the program of the eighth annual conference of the Pennsylvania Association for the Study and Education of the Mentally Gifted.

Dr. Franklin B. Krauss, head of the department, will be the chairman of the foreign language division of the conference at the secondary school and college level. Dr. Simon Belasco, assistant professor of Romance languages, and Nicholas M. Brentin, assistant professor of Romance languages, will discuss the content, procedures and techniques of instruction in French and Spanish for the mentally gifted student at these levels.

The conference will be held at the Altoona Senior High School.

Soc Prof Will Speak In UCA Europe Series

The second in a series of meetings on the theme "Destination—Europe" will be held at 8 p.m. tomorrow in the memorial lounge of the Helen Eakin Eisenhower Memorial Chapel.

Dr. Margaret Matson, assistant professor of sociology, will speak on "What You Need to Know About America."

Dr. Paul Norton, associate professor of the history of art and architecture, will speak on "Cultural Trends and Patterns."

Visitors to Study TV Class System

Two professors and an engineer from Michigan State University will visit campus Tuesday to study the University's instructional research program's television system.

Michigan State is planning to expand its own system.

An engineer from Purdue University, which is beginning a television system similar to that at the University, will arrive here Monday for a look at the TV facilities.

Spring Week Booth Plans Will Be Judged Monday

Preliminary judging of booth applications for the Spring Week Carnival will take place Monday night, according to John Valentine, chairman of the Carnival committee.

Those applications not approved may be revised and returned to the committee for further consideration. Those not approved after the second judging will not be permitted to enter the Carnival, Valentine said.

Final approval will be given the week of March 27 by committee members and the 1956-57 and 1957-58 All-University Cabinet.

Has 'Disneyland' Theme

The theme of Spring Week and of the Carnival is "Disneyland." The three categories of the carnival which will be held at the Golf Course again this year, are Fantasyland, Tomorrowland and Frontierland.

Fantasyland will depict an imaginative type show, Tomorrowland an event of the future, such as a science fiction story, and Frontierland the story of the Alamo or anything having to do with the "Wild West."

The winner in each of the categories will receive 40 Spring Week points. Second place winner will receive 27 points and third place winners will receive 18 points. The total number of possible points in Spring Week is 100.

Criteria for Judging

Judging and the awarding of points for the carnival will be based on four criteria—good taste, adherence to theme, originality and tickets. No credit will be given for ticket points for anything over 1250 tickets.

In order to determine the winner of the carnival, a maximum total of 1000 points will be given. A maximum of 250 points will be awarded in each of the four criteria.

Nine trophies will be awarded for Carnival—a first, second and third place in each of the categories. Judges will be officials from the Pennsylvania State Fair Association.
