

Group Revises Elections Code

The All-University Elections, Committee Sunday afternoon adopted five major changes and revisions in the Elections Code, including the reviewing of party platforms after the candidates have been chosen.

All changes will be brought before All-University Cabinet for final approval.

The reviewing of platforms will now come the Wednesday following the final nominations of party candidates. This, according to William Johnson, committee chairman, will give the candidates a chance to help draw up the platform on which they will run.

Previously they had been drawn up and reviewed before the candidates were elected.

Week Given for Plans

Platforms which are not approved at the first meeting may then be reviewed again the following Sunday. Campaigning would start Monday, giving the candidates one week between the time of their selection and campaigning.

Another major change deals with penalization of votes. The new revision states that a candidate may be docked an unlimited number of votes for violations of the Elections Code. Previously the code allowed docking of not less than 10 (or more) than 100 votes.

Vote Docking Unlimited

Johnson said that since the docking of votes is in the power of the committee there should be no restrictions on the number.

The committee feels that if it knows a candidate received 200 votes illegally it should not be restricted to penalizing a maximum of 100 votes. Also, if it is discovered that a candidate only received five votes illegally there is no reason why he should be penalized 10.

Third Revision

The third revision in the code states that appeals to the elections committee must be made at the meeting directly following the closing of the polls. The reason behind this change, Johnson said, was that in last year's spring election an appeal was made after the votes had been counted, bringing about confusion.

A new article was added to the code providing that the All-University Cabinet shall select by ballot the winning candidate in case of a tie.

The last revision, which has already been adopted by Cabinet, states that all candidates must have at least a 2.4 All-University average. Previously it had been a 2.4 for the All-University Presidential candidate and a 2.0 for all other candidates.

Walker to Discuss Budget With House-Senate Group

President Eric A. Walker is scheduled to appear before a joint Senate and House Appropriations Committee in Harrisburg this morning to discuss the University's proposed $27.7 million appropriation.

A University spokesman said Dr. Walker was invited by the committee to answer questions on the appropriation.

Dr. Walker has left no doubt that he feels Gov. George M. Leader's $27.7 million request falls short of the University's need.

University faculty members especially will be watching the deliberations of the committee, which has the power to amend a bill to raise the University's appropriation.

The size of faculty wage increase depends largely on the amount of money the state gives the University for the next biennium.

The University is believed to have asked Leader for approximately $35 million.

Leader told students and faculty members in his speech at Career Day that he cut the University's appropriation request before submitting it to the General Assembly to enable him to "go in with a tight budget."

Hoped to Avoid Fight

Leader said he decided to submit a "tight budget" in order to avoid a possible fight with the Assembly and noted that he had carried on a "17-month fight" on the budget two years ago.

He said he decided to give a "flat 10 per cent increase" to all state-supported higher education schools.

$175 Million Cut

Leader said he cut a total of $175 million from requests before submitting his $2 billion-plus budget to the Assembly.

The process for having the appropriation request accepted includes initial approval by the Governor to include it in his budget message, approval by the General Assembly and final approval by the Governor in signing it into law.

Budget Affects Enrollment

Dr. Walker said Feb. 27 that "if the money needed to operate the institution under frugal management is not forthcoming it will be necessary to stabilize our enrollment at or near its present figure."

The University is also confronted with the need for adjusting salaries, he said. About one-third of $1 million would be required to raise faculty salaries one per cent, Dr. Walker said last semester.

Greeks Plan Coed Meals For Tonight

Greek Week exchange dinners will be held beginning at 5:10 p.m. today with 46 fraternities and all 23 sororities participating, according to Bruce Huffman and Phyllis Hodges, exchange dinners chairmen.

Huffman said that approximately 300 men and 300 women will be participating in the exchange dinners, which will be held in the fraternity houses and in the dining halls of Simmons, McElwain and Atherton.

Men Call for Coeds

Fraternity men will call for the women at 5 p.m. in the lounges of Simmons, McElwain or Atherton. There will be about seven men from each of the 46 fraternities that are participating in the exchange dinners, eating in the women's dining halls.

Huffman said that from six to 22 women from each sorority will be eating at the fraternity houses.

No Substitutes Allowed

In an effort to relieve some of the confusion which has arisen over the exchange dinners in past years, the committee chairmen have asked all sorority women who signed information sheets for the exchange dinners, to appear in person rather than send a substitute.

They said that the reason for this is because the fraternities have been sent the names of those who are signed up for the individual fraternities.

Encampment Blanks Due

Applications for interviews for students wishing to attend the sixth annual Student Encampment Sept. 4 to 7 at Mont Alto Forest School must be returned to the Hetzel Union desk by 5 p.m. tomorrow.

RAKING LEAVES and collecting and stacking wood at the State College park was the work project of these six Greeks Saturday afternoon. Fraternities Told To Sell Themselves

Arthur M. Wellington, professor of counselor education, said last night that fraternities should use figures—such as a four to one graduation percentage over independents—to sell freshmen on fraternity life.

Wellington spoke at the Outstanding Pledge Banquet in the Hetzel Union Building.

He said that fraternities and sororities should give more factual information about the merits of Greek organizations to rushees.

One of the strong points of these organizations lies in the field of scholarship, he said. Statistics, he said, reveal that the percentage of graduation among fraternity men is four times higher than among independent men, and that the sorority percentage is three and one half times higher than independents.

Wellington said a survey of freshmen shows that prospective rushees consider scholarship second in importance only to friendship as a consideration in rushing a fraternity or sorority.

Wellington criticized some of the rushing policies of Greek organizations, and said that a survey of this year's freshman class showed many more incoming students expressed interest in joining a fraternity or sorority than have been pledged so far.

He asked if "Panhel couldn't find a better system than window shopping" for their rushing program. However, he added, sororities should be complimented on the maximum information that they provide rushees to help them choose a sorority, and fraternities could benefit by their example.

Parking, Traffic Survey Aerial Photos Completed

Aerial photographs of the campus were taken at six different times yesterday as part of the University's comprehensive parking and traffic survey.

The weather remained clear throughout most of the day but overcast skies during the late afternoon forced the cancellation of photography scheduled for 6 p.m.

The photographs will be enlarged and pieced together to form a large map showing the exact number and location of cars on campus roads and parking lots at the time each photograph was taken.

The pictures were taken at 8, 9 and 11 a.m. and at 1:15, 2:30 and 5:15 p.m.

Officers Take Photos

Sgt. Thomas P. O'Connor, of the Air Force Reserve Officers Training Corps detachment, and Sgt. Claude Horton, of the Army ROTC detachment, took the photographs.

The use of the airplane and the services of its pilot, Allan E. McNally, were donated to the University by Haller, Raymond and Brown, Inc., where McNally works as an engineer.

Sgt. O'Connor, who did the photography work at all the times except 5:15, said the pictures were taken at altitudes ranging from about 4000 to 8000 feet.

Photography Completed

He said the actual photography was completed with yesterday's flights. Another photography expedition had been attempted last Monday, but was discontinued at noon because of stormy weather.

The aerial photography is part of a comprehensive parking and traffic survey hoped to bring about alleviation of the University's problems in these areas within two years.

Iranian Premier May Quit Over Death of Americans

TEHRAN, Iran, April 1 (P)—Informed sources said today Premier Hussein Ala will resign Wednesday because of the murder of three Americans in a desert bandits' ambush.

Troops and police pursued into mountain country close to the Pakistan border a legendary bandit leader and his men, sought as the killers.

The exact number of men with bandit leader Dadshah was not known, but they were reported being whittled down in runaway fights with pursuers. A price of $10,000 was put on the head of each bandit, dead or alive.

Couple Were Victims

The American victims of the ambush in the desert of southern Baluchistan province a week ago Sunday were Mr. and Mrs. Kevin Carroll and Brewster Wilson. Carroll, 37, was a U.S. Point Four program official; and Mrs. Carroll, 35, worked as his secretary.

Wilson, 35, was a development specialist for the Near East Foundation.

Informants said the Cabinet shakeup was intended to give the government a stronger hand in dealing with banditry and tribal defiance.

These sources said Ala, 74-year-old veteran politician, would announce his resignation after the departure of West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer, now visiting in Tehran.

Ala was delaying the announcement in order not to embarrass Adenauer, the informants added.

Physician Called Successor

The informants said Dr. Manouchehr Eghbal, 49-year-old energetic politician, physician and educator, would be suggested as Ala's successor. Eghbal is court minister to Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlavi and rector of Tehran University.
