

Five Alumni Named To 'Outstanding' Roll

Five alumni have been selected by the Board of Trustees to be entered on the 1957 roll of Distinguished Alumni.

Named by the Trustees because their "personal life, professional achievement and community service best exemplify the objectives of Penn State" are:

Samuel F. Hinkle, Columbia, who last July was named to the newly-created position of president of the Hershey Chocolate Corp.

Harvey B. Jordan, Pittsburgh, who rose from the ranks to become vice president in charge of operations for U.S. Steel Corp.

John R. Richards, Scranton, who advanced in education to become Chancellor of Oregon State System of Higher Education.

Fred M. Waring, Tyrone, who has attained international fame as an orchestra leader and choral director.

Oliver G. Willits, Camden, N.J., who rose from the ranks to become Chairman of the Board of Campbell Soup Co.

President Eric A. Walker, in announcing the awards on behalf of the Trustees, said this marks the seventh straight year the University has paid tribute to outstanding alumni.

The principal purpose of these awards, which were founded upon the suggestion of former President Milton S. Eisenhower, is to recognize and salute the achievements of outstanding graduates.

The recipients were selected from a panel of candidates recommended by Dr. Walker. Bronze medallions will be presented to the alumni at exercises to be held on campus during the annual reunion assembly Saturday June 15.

Parking Survey—

(Continued from page one) said he believes it may lead to the formulation of a permanent solution to the parking problem within five years.

The survey is being conducted by nine civil engineering and architecture faculty members under the direction of Calvin G.

Reen, professor of civil engineering. Reen is a member of the University's 6-man parking and traffic committee, which made the overall plans for the survey.

How you can build a career in ADVERTISING on a McGraw-Hill Magazine

AT MCGRAW-HILL—third largest publishing house in the world—we're looking right now for men interested in advertising to start with us on graduation.

An advertising sales career with McGraw-Hill puts you in close association with the men who direct the advertising and sales programs of American industry. You can be an important part of the business world . . . and be certain of substantial rewards, both financially and in terms of personal accomplishment.

Quick Answers to Some of Your Questions

What experience should I have? Summer selling jobs, courses in marketing, selling, advertising—all are useful background. But you will be given complete basic training within the organization, then assigned to a junior sales job where you will receive actual "on-the-job" experience, either in New York or in one of our District Offices.

How about advancement? After completion of this training (average 18 months), you will be assigned to a specific publication among the 33 we publish, and will be given responsibility for an already-producing sales territory. 96% of our company management has come up "through the ranks." During your training period, you will be paid straight salary . . . receive salary plus commission on the volume of advertising you sell after assignment to a specific magazine.

What about military service? We prefer men who have their service behind them, but will and do hire graduates who are facing this prospect.

Are We Looking for YOU?

The answer may very well be "yes." We're looking for college graduates—an engineering degree is NOT essential, but could be an asset. If you have an alert, imaginative mind plus strong drive and energy, you meet our primary qualifications. A vocabulary sufficient to express yourself well orally and in writing is a "must", since ours is a business dealing with words. You should have tact, diplomacy and a liking for meeting people of all ages and levels.

See your Placement Director today for a copy of "Successful Careers In Publishing at McGraw-Hill"—the detailed descriptive booklet telling of the many rewarding opportunities with McGraw-Hill for college men like yourself. And make an appointment with him to see our Representative when he visits your campus.
