

'Post' Editor Will Speak At Matrix Table Monday

Marione Nickles, associate editor of the Saturday Evening Post, will speak at the Matrix Table at 8 p.m. Monday in the Hetzel Union ballroom.

The Table is sponsored by Theta Sigma Phi, women's professional honorary fraternity, to honor outstanding women on campus.

AAUP Will Demonstrate TV Methods

The American Association of University Professors will sponsor a demonstration on television instruction at 8 p.m. Tuesday in Sparks.

The program, which will include a demonstration of methods and a panel discussion, will originate in Room 20, and will be seen on television screens in Rooms 1, 11, 12 and 19.

TV Teaches 4200

With 4200 students in 19 courses learning through the medium of television, the demonstration is expected to be of interest to many members of the faculty.

The advance of television as a medium of learning is shown by the addition of credit courses on open broadcast television by the University of Houston. Also, 22 noncommercial educational television stations have invested $40 million in this medium and their programs reach an area with a population of 48 million people.

Panel Named

Francis A. Babione, associate professor of marketing, will serve as moderator for the program.

Demonstrators will include C. R. Carpenter, professor and head of the Department of Psychology and director of the Instructional Research Program; Leslie P. Greenhill, associate director of the Instructional Research Program; William G. Mather, professor and head of the Department of Sociology; G. Kenneth Nelson, associate professor of accounting; Hans Neuberger, professor and head of the Meteorology Department; and Arthur H. Reede, professor of economics.

The panel discussion will be conducted by Dr. Mather, Nelson, Neuberger, Reede and Charles G. Hass, Jr., assistant professor of chemistry.

Review—

(Continued from page five) buffalo" Nicely-Nicely Johnson who, when he managed to stop munching on sandwiches and celery, sang "Sit Down You're Rockin' the Boat" and "Fugue for Tinnorns" with a vibrance that matched his bright red-plaid coat and tie.

In the role of Benny Southstreet, Alfred Klimcke tried "too hard" to be the simpleton of the mob, often to the loss of the rest of the scene. However, his duet "Guys and Dolls" with Nicely-Nicely was one of the show-stoppers.

Anthony Rotell as the froggy-voiced midget, Harry the Horse, caused the audience to laugh every time he opened his mouth. His short lines had a spark and style all their own but he often got lost in his longer speeches.

An "off-key" note was added to the entire performance by the orchestra which sounded out of tune and out of practice. The singers, whose voices were on the whole weak, were hindered, not helped by the musicians.

Choreography by Phoebe English, is the best ever seen in a Thespian show. Special credit goes to John Wenner and Rena Gorn for the "professional touch" they added to the dances.

From the audience's laughter and the general sense of enjoyment which prevailed throughout the auditorium, an empty seat at any of the performances would indeed be a crime.

Miss Nickles is in charge of the humor section of the Saturday Evening Post. She has been with the magazine for 25 years.

First Job With Post

Her work with the Post began immediately after she was graduated from Linden Hall Seminary and Junior College of Lititz, Pa. She started as a clerk, became a secretary, a reader and then associate editor.

Miss Nickles has compiled several humor books.

The subject of her speech will be "The Saturday Evening Post."

IFC-Panhel Ball--

Thompson and Grace Antes, new Panhellenic Council president, are in charge of arrangements for the ball.

The IFC several weeks ago voted that no corsages or flowers should be worn at the dance.

A Greek theme was chosen for the decorations this year. The theme will be carried out with a motif of "Greek statues" and a "Greek temple." The programs for the dance are designed with a gold statue silhouetted against a black background on the cover.

WSGA Names Two To Edit Handbook

Sandra Gusky, sophomore in journalism from Pittsburgh, and Lillian Cordero, sophomore in journalism from Wayne, have been approved by the Women's Student Government Association Senate as co-editors of a new handbook for women students.

The purpose of the handbook is to present WSGA as a united working unit to the women students. Miss Cordero said the committee feels that more coeds would participate in WSGA activities if they had a concentrated source of information on student government.

The idea for the handbook originated in the Senate Student Implementations Committee, which is also working on the proposed honor code. The staff has named the handbook "Cicerone," which means guide or leader. The booklet will be designed after the Ohio State ABC handbook for coeds.

The 30-page booklet will include several sections—each one pertaining to a phase of women's life on campus. The book will give a description of the activities and will explain how a woman may join them.

The sections and their editors are WSGA, Helen Skade, freshman in home economics from Maplewood, N.J.; Leonides, Linda Segar, sophomore in education from Sayre; Panhellenic Council, Elizabeth Savidge, junior in home economics from Falls Church, Va.; and Women's Recreation Association, Judith McFarland, sophomore in home economics from Wayne.
