ICCB Gets OK Of Senate Unit For Constitution

The Senate Committee on Student Affairs has approved a constitution for the Intercollegiate Council Board.

The constitution was also approved by a two-thirds vote of All-University Cabinet March 28. The constitution gives ICCB the power to distribute Cabinet-budgeted funds to the college student councils. The board is composed of the presidents of the nine college student councils.

Joseph Eberly, former president of the Chemistry and Physics Student Council, who presented the constitution to Cabinet, said ICCB needed a constitution to distribute the $1800 it is allotted under the budget for next year, the first time the board will have such a power.

The constitution provides for distribution of $100 to each council and an additional $40 compensation to the president of each council.

The rest of the money will be distributed as the board sees fit. The constitution also provides for the election of a chairman and a secretary. The officers will be elected at the board's next meeting.

Lion Predicts Clouds Today

The Nittany Lion Meteorology Department today issued a forecast for increasing cloudiness and warmer temperatures.

The Lion, after receiving the upsetting news yesterday that a rival band is trying to take control of the campus before his forces move in, was feverishly reorganizing his plans this morning.

Latest rumors say that the Lion is going to attempt, by such means as promised abolition of the draft, to bring the freshman and sophomore ROTC forces over to his side for the proposed revolution.

Today's forecast calls for cloudy and warmer with probable showers by evening. Temperatures should rise to between 45 and 50 degrees today.

Ike Terms Criticism Good Thing

WASHINGTON, April 10 (AP)—President Dwight D. Eisenhower took a be-kind-to-everybody stance today and turned the other cheek to critics of his budget, highway speed and helicopters.

The chief executive was in an amiable mood in telling his news conference he doesn't believe that "criticism that is honest and fair hurts anyone"—himself included. He said "criticism of public figures is a good thing" and that clashes over his legislative program are only natural.

Unhurt by Criticism

Furthermore, Eisenhower said he doesn't think criticism has hurt his health. He ignores the personal variety, he said, respects the type based on honest differences of opinion and conviction and just goes on trying to do his duty.

He did say that sometimes people probably get more heated than is necessary, and he believes that in these times "we cannot use the governmental processes or limit ourselves to the governmental processes that were applicable in 1890."

Budget Question

That was as close as he came to cracking back at Sen. Goldwater (R-Ariz.) for calling his 72-billion-dollar budget a "betrayal" of public trust.

Eisenhower also said the United States cannot "by any manner of means assume that we are not going to get satisfactory arrangements" in direct negotiations with Egypt for concessions in operations of the Suez Canal.

Blood Drive Nets 380 Pint Total

One hundred ninety-one pints of blood were donated yesterday in the second day of the annual Red Cross blood drive, bringing the total collected to 380, 220 pints short of the 600 pint goal.

Theta Chi fraternity with 60 per cent and Sigma Sigma Sorority with 20 per cent of their members donating blood won the trophy cups awarded by Alpha Zeta, sponsoring fraternity.

Nittany 21 and McElwain Unit II won the independents award of $10, donated by the Association of Independent Men.

Improvement Noted In Ugly Man Voting

Penny voting yesterday in the Ugly Man contest was reported to be "quite good, much better than yesterday."

The increase in voting was attributed to Tuesday night's parade, which was entered by 22 of the 37 contestants. No tabulation of votes was available last night.

Voting will end at 5:30 p.m. today. The seven ugly men having the highest number of votes will participate in the finals tomorrow night. The time of the finals has been moved from 6:30 p.m. to 6 p.m. Each finalist will be expected to present a skit lasting not more than six minutes. He may be supported by any number of his fraternity brothers and coeds.

Points Awarded

Four fraternities have already acquired extra points by virtue of Tuesday's parade. Phi Sigma Delta and Alpha Gamma Rho were awarded 1000 points each for their parade entries. Phi Kappa Sigma and Phi Kappa Tau won 500 points each. Each point is the equivalent of a one-penny vote.

Voting is taking place on the sidewalk by the Armory. Each contestant is identified with a picture.

Breon Favors Bill For Budget Hike

Centre County Representative Robert H. Breon Jr. Tuesday urged passage of the $33,849,000 appropriation bill for the University's 1957-59 budget.

Speaking for passage of the bill, he said it is the state's "duty" to assure educators a salary "somewhere near the national average paid by other comparable state-aided universities."

He said it is also the state's duty "to restore the faith we have in higher education by unanimously passing this bill."

Frosh Favor 'Some' Fraternity Drinking

Almost three fourths of the freshman men at the University say they prefer a fraternity in which there is "some" drinking rather than one that is dry or one where members drink "a lot." According to a survey conducted by Arthur M. Wellington, professor of counselor education, 73 per cent of the freshmen polled were in favor of a moderately drinking house. Ninety-six per cent of the frosh were included in the survey. The drinking question was the main topic of the questionnaire which was distributed two weeks before formal pledging began.

Only six per cent of the students indicated they preferred a fraternity where members drank a lot. Twenty-one per cent said they would rather belong to a dry house.

The freshmen were split 50-50 on the question of whether dry parties are more or less enjoyable than those where alcoholic beverages are served.

"A promise of congenial friendship" is considered the most important asset of a fraternity, the frosh indicated in the survey. Above average scholarship and reasonable house fees ranked second and third among the students. The first three considerations in joining a fraternity were very close in rank with only 143 votes separating first from third.

Having many BMOC's in the house was placed as one of the mural sports and a good house-mother.

Wellington's report criticized fraternities for not taking advantage of the number of freshmen interested in pledging. Sixty-six per cent of the frosh indicated they hoped to receive a fraternity bid while 21 per cent were disinterested and 13 per cent gave no answer to this question. Only one fourth of the freshmen have been pledged thus far.

A third of the freshmen questioned did not give an opinion on the best three fraternities at the University. Three-sevenths named only one when asked for the best three.

Wellington concluded that the survey shows that many last considerations of the freshmen, behind an attractive house, participation in intra-freshmen still do not know much about fraternities and that Greeks should do more to sell themselves to prospective members.

Another important point was the prominence of on-campus houses in the students' opinions. No on-campus house ranked below 13th in the "three best" category.

The report added that "off-campus houses need to be known and to go prospecting."

Wellington was assisted in the survey by dormitory counselors, who distributed and collected the forms used. The forms were coded by an IBM machine and Wellington did the analysis and wrote a report on the results.
