

Eight Tentative Chairmen Selected for Encampment

Eight workshop chairmen for the sixth annual Student Encampment have tentatively been named in a preliminary report which will be presented to All-University Cabinet tonight.

Cabinet will meet at 7 p.m. in 203 Hetzel Union.

Encampment will be held Sept. 4 to 7 at the Mont Alto

Cabinet To Air Changes In Vote Code

Five major revisions in the All-University Elections Code will be presented to All-University Cabinet at its meeting at 7 tonight in 203 Hetzel Union.

The revisions, which will be presented by William Johnson, chairman of the All-University Elections Committee include:

- Unlimited vote docking instead of limiting docking to from 10 to 200 votes;
- Review of the platforms by Elections Committee after, instead of before, the selection of party nominees.
- Appeals to the committee to be made immediately after the polls close.
- Cabinet selection of the election winner in case of a tie.
- Nominees to have a minimum 2.4 All-University average, instead of a minimum 2.0.

Thomas Hollander, senior class president, will present to Cabinet a complimentary ticket list for the Senior Ball.

The rules for the Spring Week Carnival will be announced.

John Morgan, president of the Association of Independent Men, and John Johnston, president of the Athletic Association, will be installed as members of Cabinet.

John Rhodes, All-University vice president, will be appointed Cabinet parliamentarian. Joseph Butler, junior in hotel administration from Carmichaels, and Sylvia Dori, junior in arts and letters from Stowe will be appointed to the Cabinet secretariate.

Lowenfeld to Keynote Florida Art Convention

Viktor Lowenfeld, professor and head of the Department of Art Education, has been selected to give the keynote address at the National Art Education Association convention Tuesday through Friday in Los Angeles.

For the first time the keynote speaker was selected by a poll. Lowenfeld was selected by 39 states.

Hort Club to Hear Prof

New Posts Given to 2 Eng Profs

Earl B. Stavely, assistant dean of the College of Engineering and Architecture, has been named associate dean while Lawrence Perez, professor of civil engineering, has been named assistant dean of the college.

Both appointments will become effective July 1.

On Faculty Since 1918

Stavely, who also serves as professor of electrical engineering, has been on the faculty since 1918 when he was named instructor in electrical engineering. He has been assistant dean of the college since 1948.

He received his B.S. degree in electrical engineering in 1912 and the professional degree of electrical engineering in 1915 at the University. He was an instructor at Columbia University prior to his appointment to the University faculty.

Registered as Professional

Perez was named associate professor of civil engineering in 1945. He received his civil engineering degree and a master of civil engineering degree from Brooklyn Polytechnic Institute and is a registered professional engineer.

Last July he was named acting assistant dean of the college and he served in that capacity while Stavely served as acting dean prior to the appointment of Dr. Merritt A. Williamson as dean of the college on Aug. 1. Perez will continue to serve as professor of civil engineering.

Closed-Circuit TV Report Available

A progress report has been issued on work done this year in the University's instructional research program for closed-circuit television.

The report includes a description of courses using television, results of experiments conducted last semester, a list of this semester's experiments and a description of new equipment for the TV project.

Copies of the report may be obtained without charge in 307 Burrows.

'Keep-Off-the-Grass' Signs Hit Campus

Even one hip-swinging, guitar-playing song stylist got his cuts in as the "keep-off-the-grass" campaign of Alpha Phi Omega, national service fraternity, and the landscape division got under way yesterday.

The campaign, an annual project, consists of placing "keep off" signs at points of common abuse of the young spring grass.

One sign shows a very human-looking blade of grass, complete with double-jointed hips, playing a guitar and singing, "Don't Be Cruel."

Another, blocking a well-worn path over the lawn beside Willard Hall, cries to would-be violators, "Stop! Worm Crossing."

An expression possible only in our atomic age guards one side of the Mall. The sign says, "Radioactive Grass—Keep Off."

On the lawn behind the Armory, two tender young blades are in a rather tender embrace, evidently very intimate, saying, "We can't fight it—you're bigger than both of us."

A half-legendary character created recently is warned in another sign. The sign says, "Stop! Don't be a G.G.G. (Green Grass Grinder)."

The campaign should be successful if previous years are any criteria. Last year the campaign was termed "99 per cent" successful by Walter W. Trainer, head of the landscape division.

He said then that most of the students heeded the warning signs around campus and kept off the grass.

The signs were made by Alpha Phi Omega and placed around campus by men from the landscape division.

All of the signs have not been put up.

Junior Advisory Board Applications Available

Applications for the Junior Class Advisory Board may be submitted at the Hetzel Union desk until noon Saturday. Only sophomores may apply.

Applications should include the student's name, address, activities, All-University average and the reason he would like to be a member.

AAUW to Hear Coed Debaters

Four members of the women's debate team will present a debate at the meeting of the State College branch of the American Association of University Women at 8 tonight in Hout's Auditorium.

Mary Ann Gemmill, sophomore in education from New Cumberland, will chair the program.

The affirmative point of view will be taken by Jean Nigh, freshman in physical education from Chevy Chase, Md., and Carol Frank, freshman in horticulture from Pittsburgh. On the negative side will be Erica Mares, freshman in arts and letters from State College, and Louise White, freshman in home economics from Mercer.
