

Budget May Appear For House Approval In Today's Session

The University may learn the fate of its 1957-58 budget request when 35 appropriation bills, shaved by a total of $100 million in committee, are presented in the House today.

It is likely that the University's budget will be among these, since Norman Wood (R-Lancaster), who is chairman of the Appropriations Committee, said some time ago that it would probably come up around the middle of May.

Although bills must pass Gov. George M. Leader's veto, the powerful Appropriations Committee has much to say on the size of appropriations.

First Presented on Feb. 5

Wood, on April 18, proposed a budget of $33,849,000 for the University. But in the present drive to balance the state's $2 billion-plus budget, some of this amount may fall under the GOP's cutting-knife.

The budget was first presented to the General Assembly by Gov. George M. Leader on Feb. 5. He proposed a $27.7 million outlay—far short of the $38.5 million originally requested by the University.

Requests $35 Million

Dr. Walker went to the Assembly with a request for $35 million and armed with statistics showing low salaries of faculty members.

The Assembly was apparently convinced by Dr. Walker that the $27.7 million figure was "far short" of the University's minimum obligations, but the request was still thought to be a little high.

Result of Conference

As a result of this conference Wood then made his $33,849,000 proposal.

If its 1957-58 budget is presented by the committee today, the University will know whether it will be among those Wood described when he said:

"When you have to reduce appropriation requests by $100 million to balance the budget within present taxes, you are bound to step on some toes and we have stepped on a lot of them."

Collegian To Print 500 Extra Copies

The Daily Collegian will print an additional 500 copies daily beginning next fall.

The decision was made after a study by Stephen Higgins, business manager, showed the paper could probably assume the additional costs.

The Daily Collegian now prints 6000 copies Tuesday through Friday. Only 5000 copies are printed on Saturdays since many students go home for weekends.

Continues Present Policy

The increase continues Collegian's policy of printing one copy for every two students who pay $1.10 a semester in student fees. Costs prohibit printing more.

The decision met the approval of Collegian Inc., publishers of The Daily Collegian, which held its annual meeting Tuesday.

The members of Collegian Inc. also approved the paper's budget for the next year. The income is expected to be $43,700, while expenditures are expected to come to 42,750. This would leave a profit of $1450.

The biggest single expenditure is $35,000 for actual cost of printing the paper. The paper is printed by the Nittany Publishing Co.

The Daily Collegian also made a survey to find out if it could afford to increase its size from eight to 12 pages daily. The paper now averages about six 12-page (Continued on page eight)

Hays Bids to Open Trustees' Meetings

A bill has been introduced in the state Senate which—if passed—would make public the meetings of the University Board of Trustees.

The bill was introduced Tuesday by Sen. Jo Hays (D-Centre-Clearfield), who is a part-time associate professor of education at the University. It would include the boards of all state-supported educational institutions.

Cabinet Will Discuss Hours for Carnival

A recommendation to extend the Spring Week Carnival closing time from 11 p.m. to 12:30 a.m. will be included in the Spring Week report to be presented to All-University Cabinet tonight.

Cabinet will meet at 7 p.m. in 203 Hetzel Union.

The report says that Spring Week profits totaled about $800, which will be given to the Penn State Scholarship Fund. Approximately $5026 was collected during the week. The estimated expenses are $4200.

More Money This Year

The Carnival proceeds amounted to $3958, compared with last year's $3494. Robert Krakoff, chairman, said more money was made and more was spent on Spring Week this year than last.

Paid attendance for the All-Star Service Revue amounted to $1068. The review was not a financial success, according to the report, but it "offered a perfect ending to Spring Week." Krakoff will recommend that the show be continued and combined with the coronation of Miss Penn State.

To Consider Float Parade

He also will ask that next year's committee consider replacing the Mad-Hatters Parade with a float parade. The floats could be judged fairly and accurately, the report says, and would create greater interest on the part of both the University and the Borough.

Among the other recommendations to be made are:

- That the He-Man contest be held on a separate night and developed into a "worthwhile spectator event."
- That a physique contest be held.

The following calendar of events will be proposed for next year's Spring Week:

- Float parade.
- Carnival.
- He-Man contest and tournament of the Queen of Hearts.
- Coronation, -special event (show) and the presentation of awards.

Choir to Present Concert Tonight

The Chapel Choir, directed by Willa C. Taylor, will present its annual spring concert at 8:30 tonight in Schwab Auditorium.

The program will be highlighted by the singing of "Psalm 150," composed especially for the choir by Roy Harris, noted American composer. Harris will direct the choir in the singing of his composition.

The concert is open to the public. The doors for the concert will be opened at 8 p.m. and seats not reserved will be available at 8:15.

2d in Int U Series On Page Two Today

"The Role of Religion in the World Today," by Dr. Luther H. Harshbarger, University chaplain, appears on page two of today's issue of The Daily Collegian.

Dr. Harshbarger's article is the second of a series on "International Understanding" by members of the faculty and administration.

Cabinet to Hear Plea to Name NSA Delegates

All-University Cabinet tonight will be asked to reverse the decision it made last week not to send delegates to the National Student Association congress this summer.

Leonard Richards, former All-University secretary-treasurer and a delegate to last year's congress, and Barbara Hendel, former NSA regional chairman, will attempt to change Cabinet's mind. They will explain the structure of the congress, the philosophy behind the organization and policies which will be discussed at the congress.

Edwin Henrie, campus NSA coordinator, will recommend that last week's vote against sending delegates to the congress be rescinded. This action requires a two-thirds vote of Cabinet.

Henrie said the discussions planned for congress include the following topics which affect University students: communism, restrictive clauses and segregation.

The meetings are now closed and decisions of the trustees are made known only through the Department of Public Information.

The Daily Collegian, Centre Daily Times and other state newspapers have repeatedly attempted to get reporters into the meetings.

Trustees 'Welcome Change'

Hays said he believes the trustees would "welcome this exchange of the cloak of semi-secrecy for the open skies of public observation."

Under the bill, a trustee who attends a closed meeting would be subject to a fine of from $100 to $500.

Such provisions already apply to certain public bodies, including commissions, councils and school boards.

But if the boards of trustees meetings of many educational institutions are closed to the public. Neither the general public nor reporters may attend the University Board's meetings.

Education Institutions

Hays said his plan would cover those segments of the state which "plan and control the program of higher education for the 55,000 college and university students who each year enroll in publicly-supported institutions."

He said, "These institutions handle large numbers—both students and dollars—and will be responsible for many more in the near and far future."

Hays said Gov. George M. Leader's current budget proposal calls for $54 million to go to these institutions and that in the next decade "all of us can guess the funds to be allocated will be much greater" than that.

The bill would also affect the boards of trustees of the 14 state teachers colleges, Temple University, the University of Pennsylvania and the University of Pittsburgh.

Parade, Exhibit Featured For Armed Forces Day

A Military Open House and parade tonight, featuring radar and jet planes, will highlight the Armed Forces Day celebrations this year.

The parade, which is expected to be shorter but more spectacular than in previous years, will move west on College

Ave. from Shortlidge Rd. and then to Burrowes Rd. starting at 7 tonight.

This will be the first year the basic cadets of the Army and Air Force ROTC units will not march in the parade.

A control-reporting post, consisting of radar and radio equipment of the Air National Guard unit in State College, has been located in the parking area south of Grange Memorial Hall. Weather permitting, the post will control the flight of the F-84 jet planes of the 112th Fighter Interceptor Wing, Pennsylvania Air National Guard unit of Pittsburgh, that will fly over the parade route.

Drill Teams to March

The Pershing Rifles, Navy, and Air Force drill teams will go through routines along the line.

Ossian R. McKenzie, dean of the College of Business Administration, will serve as parade marshal. His staff will include Col. Daniel E. Riva, Col. Arthur W. Kogstad, Capt. Victor B. McCrea, and Josephine Groesbeck.

They will lead the parade and at South Allen St. will join Dr. Eric A. Walker, president of the University; Dr. James F. Shirley, representing Burgess Claude H. Decker of State College; and David H. McKinley, representing veterans organizations, on the reviewing stand.

4 Parade Divisions

There will be four divisions in the parade.

Division I will include the Army ROTC band, Pershing Rifles Drill Team, a unit of Army ROTC cadets and a Scabbard and Blade unit.

The Navy ROTC band, Navy drill team, and a unit of Navy ROTC midshipmen will compose Division II, while Division III will include the Air Force ROTC band, Air Force drill team, Air Force unit of cadets, Angel Flight and the Air Force Drum and Bugle Corps.

The armory of the Pennsylvania Air National Guard unit, located on the University farms, will hold an "open house" tonight.

Eisenhower's Budget Plea Disregarded By Senate

WASHINGTON, May 15(P)—The Senate brushed aside President Eisenhower's appeal for support of his budget tonight and passed a State and Justice Departments money bill slashed $102,564,000 under his request.

It stripped the U.S. Information Agency's request of $144 million down to $90,200,000. It also recommended USIA be put back in the State Department, and that the agency end any overseas activities competing with private American agencies.

Johnson Dominates

Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas, the Democratic leader, dominated the debate, which followed the President's nationwide radio-TV speech last night urging action against big cuts, which he said might endanger security. In this connection, Eisenhower mentioned the importance of overseas information programs.

Only one Democrat, Sen. Richard Neuberger, of Oregon, voted against the USA cut, which was approved on a 61-15 roll call.

Republicans Divided

The Republicans were sharply divided. Fourteen voted with the President against the cut. Twenty-three of them voted for it—including Senate Republican Leader William Knowland, Calif.; Sen. Styles Bridges of New Hampshire, chairman of the Senate GOP Policy Committee; Sen. Everett Dirksen of Illinois, assistant GOP leader; and Sen. Saltonstall of Massachusetts, chairman of the conference of all Senate Republicans.

The bill now must go back to the House for consideration of the Senate changes. The differences probably will have to be worked out in a Senate-House Conference Committee.

Adopts Amendment

The Senate adopted an amendment, recommended by its appropriations committee, giving USIA $90,200,000 to operate the Voice of America and other overseas information programs in the fiscal year starting July 1.

This was $15,900,000 less than the House allocated earlier, and $53,800,000 less than the President had requested.

The amendment was part of a $563,085,293 money bill to finance the State and Justice departments and USIA.
