

Changes in Journ School Approved by LA Faculty

The College of the Liberal Arts faculty has approved the addition of two courses and the dropping of the major field of Community Journalism and two courses in the School of Journalism curriculums.

The courses which were added are Journalism 65, public information methods, and Journalism 72, magazine editing and production.

Employees Get Chance to Pick Retirement Plan

Preference cards on which University employees will signify their vote on the proposed plan to integrate State Employees' Retirement System and Federal Social Security are being distributed.

Employees who are members of the State Employees' Retirement System will receive a card personally from administrative officers of the University, personnel representatives or supervisors.

Witness Must Sign

The employee will vote "yes" or "no" on the proposed plan, sign and date the card and have one witness sign it.

The actual dates of voting required by law are next Sunday, Monday and Tuesday. All the employees have been asked to sign cards, whether they are in favor of the plan or not.

Is First of 2 Ballots

Employees who vote "no" or fail to return a signed card will have no opportunity in the future to accept the integrated plan. The present vote is the first of two ballots, the second of which, on a date as yet unannounced, will be taken of only those voting "yes" on the first ballot.

The integrated plan has been explained to the University employees through numerous meetings, informative booklets and articles.

Council OK's Dance Plans

The West Halls Council approved last-minute plans for its "Bermuda Fling" at its final meeting of the year last night.

The dance will be held from 6:30 to 8:30 tonight on the Recreation Hall parking lot, and entertainment will be provided by the Association of Independent Men's Band. Bermuda shorts will be required.

In case of rain, the dance will be held at the same time on Thursday night.

The Council also discussed the prospects of adding to its bluebook file, and President Carl Smith asked West Halls residents to give their bluebooks to their individual representatives.

Labor Instructor Named To Library Committee

Helmut J. Golatz, instructor in industrial relations and a member of the Labor Education Service in General Extension, has been appointed to the State Advisory Committee on the State Library.

The library is the supply source for all county librarians. The committee will meet twice each year to advise on the status and needs of the library.

University Hosts Group Of Scientists

Twenty-eight Latin American scientists and administrators visited the University yesterday and a similar group is visiting today.

Members of the two groups are among 200 Latin Americans in this country for the Inter-American Symposium on the Peaceful Applications of Nuclear Energy held last week at Brookhaven National Laboratory, Upton, N.Y.

The first group of scientists arrived Sunday night and began its tour yesterday morning. They were accompanied by George F. Mahoney, of the International Cooperation Association, and two interpreters, and were escorted about the campus by Virgil E. Neilly, associate professor of engineering extension.

Nuclear Science Program

Dr. Warren W. Miller, associate professor of chemistry and director of the International Nuclear Science and Engineering Program, outlined the University's nuclear science and engineering education program to the group yesterday.

Forrest J. Remick, research associate in the Nuclear Reactor Project, outlined the research and instruction program of the University's reactor.

Dr. Merritt A. Williamson, dean of the College of Engineering and Architecture, served as chairman of the meeting.

Attended Luncheon With Walker

After a visit to the reactor, the scientists attended a luncheon with President Eric A. Walker, after which they departed for Pittsburgh to continue their tour of Atomic Energy Commission installations.

The group that arrived last night had a similar program scheduled for today.

Kahan to Head Thespian Group

Stuart Kahan, junior in arts and letters from Philadelphia, has been elected president of Thespians.

Other officers are Phyllis Rubinstein, junior in arts and letters from York, vice president; Barbara Kinnier, junior in education from Danboro, secretary; Sam Glick, junior in arts and letters from Mt. Pleasant, treasurer, and James Jimirro, junior in arts and letters from Abingdon, member-at-large.

Five members named for outstanding work in Thespians, who will spend three days observing Broadway shows in New York and reporting. Previously this course was titled News Writing.

Journalism 22, Critical Writing for the Mass Media. Previously this course was titled Newspaper Columns.

Journalism 68, Law of Mass Communication. Previously this course was titled Law of the Press.

Journalism 70, The Community Newspaper, two credits and two lecture hours. Previously this course consisted of three credits and three lecture hours.

Journalism 85, Graphic Production Processes, two credits, one lecture hour and two practice hours. Previously this course was titled The Arts of Printing and Engraving and consisted of three credits, two lecture hours and two practice hours.

Journalism 92, Radio and Television News, three credits, two lecture hours and two practice hours. Previously this course consisted of three lecture hours and no practice hours.

The advertising courses—Journalism 40, 41, 42, 46 and 48—were expanded to cover all of the mass media, not only newspapers and the other printed media.

Klevans, Plaut Split Honors Over Years

By LIANNE CORDERO

Two graduating seniors, after four years of sharing the same room, dividing honors on the men's debate team and generally treading the same path in extracurricular activities, last week tied for first place in an intersquad address reading contest.

Not only that, but they're both engineering students—

Jonathan Plaut, senior in industrial engineering from Rockville Center, N.Y., and Edward Klevans, senior in electrical engineering from Roaring Spring.

Their parallel careers began four years ago when Plaut and Klevans were assigned to the same room in West Halls. Both soon entered into activities and joined the men's debate team.

For the next four years both walked off with numerous first and second prizes in speaking and debating contests. Often they combined their talents, working as debate partners in 25 to 30 contests.

During the first year, Plaut took first place and Klevans second in a freshman intersquad debate. This past year they were a team against Princeton in the Boston University Tournament and both were awarded first place speaker ratings in the North-South Tournament at the University of West Virginia.

Both men are members of Delta Sigma Rho, national debate fraternity, and this year Plaut served as president, Klevans as vice president.

The list of identical activities grew as they both were tapped by Blue Key, junior men's hat society, both were elected to the Engineering and Architecture Student Council, and both joined Alpha Epsilon Pi fraternity. This year Klevans was treasurer and Plaut secretary of the fraternity.

In their four years at the University, however, they have been in only one class together. It was English Literature 26 and both received an A for the course.

All during their college career, they have remained close friends and roommates. But, at last, Plaut says, "We're going to split."

After graduation Klevans will leave for the University of Michigan to study nuclear physics under the Atomic Energy Commission. Plaut will go to Georgetown University to study law.

Chem Professor Named Symposium Chairman

Dr. Joseph Jordan, assistant professor of chemistry, is chairman of a symposium on thermoanalytical titrimetry, organized under the auspices of the Division of Analytical Chemistry of the American Chemical Society.

The symposium is scheduled as a part of the 132d national meeting of the society Sept. 8 to 13 in New York City, and is the first of its kind ever organized.

DON'T PANIC!
