

Blue Band Will Give Spring Performance

The Concert Blue Band, conducted by James W. Dunlop, will present its annual spring concert at 3 p.m. Sunday on the steps of the Pattee Library.

In case of rain, the concert will be held in Schwab Auditorium.

The band, composed of 98 members, 71 men and 27 women, will present a program of music ranging from Sousa to Tschaiakowsky.

Opening with the National Anthem, the Band will afterwards break into a lively march, "Jubilee-Concert March," by George Kenny. It will be followed by "The Oprichnik Overture" by Peter Tschaiakowsky, "Three Chorale Preludes" by William P. Latham and "The Circus Bee March" by Henry Fillmore.

Special Feature Planned

A special feature of the program will be a quartet number of four trombones. David Andre, senior in dairy husbandry from Montrose; Donald Fought, senior in aeronautical engineering from Mechanicsburg; James Lauterbach, freshman in electrical engineering from New Cumberland, and John Bezek, junior in music education from Nanty Glo, will play "Four Leaf Clover" by Erik Leidzen.

The Blue Band will return with "The Presidents March" by Henry Fillmore, "Sea Portrait" by Homer LaGassey, "Tarantula" by Guy E. Holmes, "Andalusian Fresco," written by Paul Durand and arranged by Floyd E. Werle and "Serenata" by Leroy Anderson.

Familiar Tune to Be Played

The familiar "Parade of the Wooden Soldiers" written by Leon Jessel and arranged by John J. Morrissey will precede the last three numbers of the concert: "On the Esplanade" from Bostonia Suite written by Keith Crosby Brown and arranged by Howard E. Akers, "A Tribute to Benny Goodman" arranged by Richard Hayman and the final classic, "The Stars and Stripes Forever" by John Philip Sousa.

Dunlop has been directing the band since 1947 and has made several concert trips with the band to various areas of the state. Until 1947 the Blue Band had been under the baton of Dr. Hummel Fishburn, now professor and head of the departments of music and music education, and before him, from 1914 until 1939 the group was directed by the late Wilfred O. Thompson, a retired Army bandmaster.

BusAd Council Plans Program Of Assemblies

The Business Administration Student Council has voted to expand an experimental program of assemblies for Pennsylvania high schools.

The program, designed to present the problems and advantages of adjusting to college life and attracting promising seniors to the College of Business Administration, will feature talks by council members.

Project Called Successful

A report on the first assembly, at Lower Merion High School was presented Monday by Robert Lapensohn, senior in business administration from Merion and a former council member, who called the project a success.

A nine-hour orientation program to acquaint freshmen and transfer students with the college has been scheduled for Sept. 9. Faculty members will be available for help in scheduling in the morning.

Mixer Plans Made

Plans have been made for a faculty-student mixer to give new students a chance to discuss the courses available with professors in the various fields.

Joseph L. Charies, manager of Keeler's University Book Store, discussed causes and possible solutions to the problem of shortages of some textbooks used in the College of Business Administration.

AIM Suggests Frosh Warning

A freshman charged with threatening a dormitory counselor and taking part in a disturbance in the Pollock area has been recommended for a judicial warning by the Association of Independent Men Judicial Board of review.

The student, a 23-year-old veteran, admitted drinking in the Borough before the incident.

In a second case, charges were dismissed against a freshman seen walking away from a partially filled pitcher of beer found in the West Halls area by a residence hall counselor.

The student told the board he found the pitcher on a stone bench in the quadrangle and picked it up for a souvenir, hiding it near his dormitory before going to a diner with a friend.

The board also released from judicial probation six students who were found gambling earlier this year.
