Judge Orders Little Rock To Integrate Immediately

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Sept. 7 (AP)—A North Dakota federal judge ruled today that Central High School must integrate immediately. The decision left the cold war between Arkansas and federal authority uncompromised.

U.S. Dist. Judge Ronald N. Davies said the brief testimony of Supt. Virgil Blossom was "as anemic as the petition itself." Blossom had asked for an indefinite postponement of racial mixing on grounds that National Guard troops surrounding the high school were interfering with education in many schools. Davis said the plan for gradual integration in Little Rock was "originated and conceived by the citizens of Little Rock through their school directors."

Lion Forecasts Cloudy Skies

The Nittany Lion predicts the weather exclusively for The Daily Collegian.

And his antics are as unpredictable as the weather.

The Lion, a meteorologist extraordinary, took over the daily chore after he found students in the Department of Meteorology were calling it wrong too often to suit him.

However, it is believed that the Lion is stealing the weather forecast from the students and taking credit for it.

The Lion thinks Penn State is a paradise, and the weather here is like no other (and he doesn't mean paradise).

Look for the Nittany Lion's forecast daily in this newspaper. The Lion says the weekend will be mostly cloudy with little change in temperature. There is a chance for showers early today, he said. Temperatures should remain in the high 70's or low 80's.

No Decision Reached

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7 (AP)—President Dwight D. Eisenhower and Atty. Gen. Herbert Brownell conferred today but reached no decision on possible future steps the federal government might take in the Little Rock school integration dispute.

Presidential press secretary James C. Hagerty said there can be no decision here until after Federal Judge Davies decides whether to grant the Little Rock school board's petition to delay enforcement of Davies' order to integrate the Central High School there.

Debate Possible Steps

Hagerty said it would be fair to say that Eisenhower and Brownell, in their 45-minute meeting, discussed possible steps the federal government might take, depending on which way the judge decides.

But, the press secretary said, he wasn't going to disclose what alternatives were considered.

Furthermore, he said, there was no decision on steps that might be taken.

"There was a general discussion of National Guard and the authority the President has that affects the National Guard," Hagerty said.

Eisenhower broke off a vacation at Newport, R.I., to fly here for the conference with Brownell. He also was meeting with other officials later in the day on the Middle East problems and fiscal affairs.

Ike Speeds Up Aid To Mideast Nations

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7 (AP)—President Dwight D. Eisenhower today speeded up U.S. aid to Syria's neighbors and expressed hope that "international communism" would not push Syria into aggression.

Eisenhower's reaction to expressed fears from Syria's Arab neighbors was made known by Secretary of State John Foster Dulles after an urgent two hour White House conference.

Dulles, flanked by Deputy Undersecretary Loy Henderson, read a three-page statement to reporters. He refused to go beyond it. Dulles said Henderson reported to Eisenhower on his 14-day fact-finding trip to the Middle East during which he talked to leaders of the countries bordering on Syria—Turkey, Lebanon, Iraq and Jordan.

Dulles said Henderson reported he found deep concern among these leaders about growing Communist domination and a buildup of Soviet arms beyond defensive needs in Syria.

The Cabinet member said Henderson reported border incidents and subversive activities apparently directed at Syria's neighbors.

Eisenhower's reaction, Dulles said, was to appraise this gloomy report in the light of the U.N. Charter "which denies Syria the right of any use of force except in self defense."

Dulles said Eisenhower recalled that in a message to Congress last Jan. 5 the President cited Russia's long-time ambition to dominate the Middle East and its current activities to rob Syria of its independence.

He said Eisenhower was "determined to carry out our national policy" of opposing such Soviet moves.
