

Glee Club To Present 2 Concerts

The Men's Glee Club, composed of more than 60 voices, presents two concerts each year and makes a spring tour.

Last year the spring tour included concerts at Philipsburg, Tyrone, Westbury, N.Y., East Orange, N.J., Harleysville, Allentown and Waynesboro. Members of the club who have been on two tours are presented with a key at the annual spring banquet.

Included in the Glee Club are two special groups, the Varsity Quartet and the Hi-Los. The Varsity Quartet was organized about 50 years ago. Its first appearance was with a Thespians show to sing parts of the performance, "Russian Honeymoon," and to provide between-acts entertainment.

Specializes in Barbershop
Today the quartet specializes in barbershop numbers. The Hi-Los are a group of about 18 men, which specializes in comedy selections.

Having completed its 54th season last year, the Glee Club dates from 1887, when a student journalist, writing in the Free Lance, student newspaper, suggested the idea.

A Glee Club was organized with George C. Butz, a graduate and horticulturist for the Agricultural Experimental Station, not only directing the group but also singing as a part of the club.

Made European Tour
There were 11 members including Butz, when, in 1888, the club toured within a 40-mile radius of State College. In 1933 the Glee Club made a coast-to-coast tour, and in 1928 went to Europe, singing in London, Oxford, Paris, Brussels, Antwerp and The Hague.

The spring tour tradition began in 1920 when the Glee Club sang in Wilkes-Barre and Binghamton, N. Y.

LA Compiles Reading List

A list of 57 books which the College of the Liberal Arts feels a student should read before he graduates has been compiled by a faculty evaluation committee of the Liberal Arts Students Council, through the cooperation of the Liberal Arts faculty.

The list, which is available in 132 Sparks to all students, includes books covering several fields of knowledge.

Faculty members were requested to submit a list of ten or more books they believe would benefit the students. The list was compiled from these forms.

Dr. Ben Euwema, dean of the college, suggested the survey because he said, there was a lack of a substantial reading program in the College.

TIM Represents 'Borough Boarders'

Town Independent Men, an organization plagued by many difficulties while trying to expand, governs and plans activities for non-fraternity men living in State College.

The group, known as TIM, sets up social, cultural and athletic activities for more than 3000 men boarding in the borough.

TIM is a division of the Association of Independent Men and its president and other town representatives sit on this body. Through AIM, which governs all independent men, TIM is represented on All-University Cabinet.

However, many members of its campus-wide push-cart race. TIM would like to dissolve its association with AIM and obtain its own seat on All-University Cabinet.

Believed Not Ready
Many members of last year's All-University Cabinet felt that TIM was not ready to go on its own and to assume its own Cabinet seat.

This year will probably see renewed efforts by interested town independents in trying to build up TIM in preparation for its own Cabinet seat.

The group has been plagued by one main difficulty in the past. This is the spacing of its membership. Members are spaced over the entire borough of State College, making it a much more difficult job to organize events than if the members all lived in one dormitory or several dormitory units.

Sponsors Several Dances
During the past year TIM sponsored several dances in the Hetzel Union ballroom, as well as athletic tournaments and teams for intramural activities. The council again sponsored

Coal Producers Group Inspects Research Work

Members of the Central Pennsylvania Coal Producers Association visited the University Thursday to inspect research work under way in the coal petrology, mining and preparation departments, coke production and in the Mineral Constitution laboratories.

Proceeds from the entrance fee were donated to Campus Chest. President James Wambold and this year's council hope to provide an even more enthusiastic program in attempt for that Cabinet seat.

A committee has been set up to study the possibilities of establishing a "Club TIM," which would be set up as the town independent men's own student union.

Further plans under consideration include staging an ice skating party, a golf tournament open to all students and increasing participation in TIM intramural athletic leagues.

Turfgrass Course Has Two Grants

Two $100 scholarships have been established to assist students enrolling in the turfgrass management option of the Winter Course program in Agriculture.

The awards were made available by the Golf Course Superintendents Association of America and will become effective this year.

The University's Winter Course program in Agriculture provides training in farm equipment service and sales, turf management, and nursery industry. It consists of two eight-week terms a year for two years, offered from November to March.

Judicial Hears Cases Against WSGA Rules

Judicial Board, one of the five divisions of the Women's Student Government Association, is composed of four juniors and four seniors.

Anne Friedberg, senior in journalism from Taunton, Mass., is the chairman of the group.

Judicial meets once a week to hear cases of infractions of the Women's Student Government Association Senate regulations. The board decides the penalty for all violators.

May Hear Coeds
A coed may appear in front of the board if she feels the decision concerning her needs adjustment or clarification.

Judicial makes recommendations for special late permissions during the year to the Women's Student Government Association Senate, which either approves or rejects them.

Sponsored Tea
Last year Judicial sponsored a tea for dormitory hostesses, an annual event. The hostesses and members of Judicial discussed problems concerning regulations. Members of Judicial must have a minimum 2.5 All-University average, and must not have any major judicial record. Members are self-nominated and chosen by an interview in the spring semester.

AFROTC Student Honored at Camp

Cadet Col. Charles A. Nycum, a senior in animal husbandry from Johnstown, has been named the outstanding Air Force Reserve Officers Training Corp cadet of those receiving training at Ellington AF Base, Texas.

The award was based on his demonstration of leadership qualities and his outstanding ability in all aspects of the AFROTC Summer Training Program.

Nycum has been a member of the AFROTC Drill Team for the past three years and will serve as its commander this coming year. The team puts on special exhibitions at high schools and participates in parades and other activities.
