9143 Complete Registration; 3500 More to Enroll Today

A total of 9143 students completed registration by 5 p.m. yesterday at Recreation Hall according to Dean of Admissions C. O. Williams.

About 1111 more students are registered than at this time last year, and an estimated 3500 more will enroll by 5 p.m. today, Williams said. A total of 13,143 students were enrolled at the University last semester.

Registration opened Wednesday morning and will close with the registration of special students and University employes tomorrow. A total of 4530 students registered Wednesday and 4613 more enrolled yesterday. Today's hours will be from 8 a.m. to 11:15 and 1 p.m. to 4:15 p.m. Tomorrow's registration will be from 8 a.m. to noon.

Early registration, primarily for athletes and students working at registration, was discontinued this fall.

Policy Changed

The system of early registration previously allowed these students to register Wednesday morning before Rec Hall officially opens. Every student now registers according to the alphabetical scheduling.

Williams said that the policy was changed last February because "an increasing number of student groups were asking for the privilege." About 200 students were registering early, he said.

A total of 3348 freshmen have been admitted to the University. Of these, 1175 are coeds and 2173 are men.

Advanced Students

Five hundred nine students will be enrolled with advanced standings and 524 more will transfer from centers. Former students to be readmitted total 175.

An estimated 650 students moved through the lines every hour with an average time of 30 minutes required to complete registration, Williams said.

Williams reported the "cooperation of the students was very good." He said "The students seem to have learned that the present registration system offers the best rapidness."

Williams explained that early registration was started at the request of the Director of Athletics because athletes need practice time and must avoid late afternoon classes.

"Too many groups thought they deserved the same consideration," he continued, so this fall early registration was stopped entirely.

Williams said there were no major delays and that only momentary tie-ups existed due mainly to the slight confusion of some freshmen.

Few senior students had difficulty in fitting in courses required for graduation into their schedules. However, seniors with such problems should consult representatives of the dean's office of their college, who are stationed on the main floor.

Joint Customs Expanded; Planned Every Other Day

Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays during the customs period, scheduled to begin at 7 a.m. Monday, will be the official joint customs days.

On these days upperclass men may call "Curtsy, Frosh" and stop the frosh coeds to question them and have them sing

University songs. Upperclasswomen may in turn see how well acquainted the freshman men are with the customs traditions.

On all other days the upperclasswomen will conduct the coeds customs and the upperclassmen, the freshman men's customs.

The end of customs will come at the discretion of the Freshman Customs Board. Members of the board will wear identification tags during customs so misrepresentation of the board will be avoided.

Heather Lohrenz and Alvin Clemens, co-chairmen of the board, have urged all students to carry matriculation cards during the customs period to serve as a means of identification. (Continued on page ten)

1400 New Students Attend Exposition

Approximately 1400 freshmen and transfers swarmed through the Hetzel Union ballroom yesterday to attend the "highly successful" Activities Exposition.

A constant influx of new students visited the ballroom from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. to obtain firsthand information about the more than 700 activities at the University.

Co-chairmen James Jimirro, of Omicron Delta Kappa, men's leadership honorary society, and Carolyn Johnson, Mortar Board, senior women's honorary society, reported "excellent cooperation" between all participating groups.

Jimirro said he believes the exposition was a great success and should be continued next year.

The first of its kind at the University, the exposition is expected to be made a regular part of Orientation Week, according to George M. Donovan, director of student activities.

Nineteen tables representing the major groupings of activities were placed around the ballroom. Freshmen were handed a 3-page (Continued on page eleven)

Ike's Aides Called For Faubus Talk

NEWPORT, R.I., Sept. 12 (AP) — The White House announced today President Dwight D. Eisenhower has called two top aides here for his Saturday morning conference with Arkansas Gov. Orval Faubus on the Little Rock, Ark., school integration crisis.

Presidential press secretary James C. Hagerty said Atty. Gen. Brownell and chief White House assistant Sherman Adams will fly here from Washington in connection with the Eisenhower-Faubus meeting, which could effect the future of integration in the South.

Hays to Go Along

Word came from Little Rock, meanwhile, that Faubus will be accompanied by Rep. Brooks Hays (D-Ark.), a personal friend of the President.

Hays, who has been praised by the President in the past, though they are of opposing political parties, represents the district which includes Little Rock. It was Hays who let the White House know Faubus would come here Saturday for the conference which the Arkansas governor sought with Eisenhower.

Indications were the President would talk privately at first with Faubus at their 9 a.m. meeting Saturday. Then Brownell and the others were expected to join in the talk, which is aimed at ending the federal-state deadlock over Faubus' use of troops to block school integration.

Hagerty Blasts Report

White House press secretary James C. Hagerty took sharp exception to a broadcast report quoting White House aides as saying Faubus had "thrown in the sponge" in the federal-state deadlock by seeking the appointment with the President and saying he would go as far as he could toward resolving the impasse.

"Completely untrue," Hagerty said.

In Little Rock, Ark., a source close to the governor said Faubus is coming here "to confer, not capitulate."

Daily Issues to Begin

The Daily Collegian will resume regular publication on Tuesday.

Regular issues will be published: daily Tuesday through Saturday mornings.

10,000 Books Reach UBA, 2000 Sold

Between 9000 and 10,000 books were reported turned into the Used Book Agency by closing time yesterday.

Yesterday, the first day for the sale of used books, the agency reported 2000 purchases. Books may be turned in at the UBA until Monday. They will continue to be sold until noon Sept. 21.

Ronald Kolb, UBA manager, said the operation this year was running smoothly and successfully.

New Price System

A new price listing system has been put into effect this year for the benefit of both students and personnel. Prices are marked on the outside binding of the books instead of inside the covers.

Kolb said the new system cuts down on the number of people handling books and makes it easier for the student at a quick glance to find the price rather than a prolonged search. He said a student can now check his price range and then the book's condition thus cutting down on former confusion.

The date for returning books and money by the UBA will be announced at a later date.

Sells 2600 Dinks

The Book Exchange has reported selling 2600 dinks, leaving about 652 in stock. The BX will close at noon Saturday so freshmen will have only one more day to obtain their dinks before customs week begins Monday.

Students have been urged to take advantage of the BX policy of issuing a 50-cent refund on accumulation of a $5 total in receipts.

Humidity, Rain Forecast Today

Today's weather will be humid with possible afternoon and evening showers.

The predicted high will range from 84 to 88 degrees.

The Nittany Lion, however, was oblivious to the weather this morning. On his excursion to Recreation Hall yesterday, he apparently became entangled in the frantic mob and before he escaped, found himself registered in a women's physical education course.

The Lion is expectantly looking forward to Monday when "his" section meets at 8 a.m. "My only regret", he declared, "is that I don't look so good in bloomers."
