

'BUILD A BETTER HYPODERMIC . . .' Students crowd around the University hospital desk yesterday awaiting their turn for Asiatic flu vaccinations. Yesterday was the first day for the vaccinations, which are reported 70 per cent effective. Enough vaccine has been allotted the University for about 7500 inoculations.

Encampment Recommendations

Students Suggest Removal Of Penalties for Cutting Class

Upperclassmen would no longer be penalized for cutting classes if a Student Encampment recommendation were put into effect.

The Academic Atmosphere Workshop recommended that no artificial penalties should be imposed on sophomores, juniors and seniors for unexcused absences from classes.

This suggestion and others made by the eight encampment workshops will be presented to All-University Cabinet and then sent to the proper groups for further study and possible action.

Student Encampment was held Sept. 4 at the University's Mont Alto School of Forestry. The annual pre-Orientation Week conference was begun by Milton Eisenhower six years ago when he became president of the University. Participants included nearly 100 students, selected by position and interviews, members of the faculty and administration and townspeople. The purpose of encampment is to aid in ironing out student problems through informal discussion.

Here are some of the other recommendations made by the Academic Atmosphere workshop:

●That the possibility be studied of sectioning students according to ability in courses where this would be feasible.

●That the present faculty advisory system be strengthened.

●That the individual student councils report subjects commonly described as "snap courses" to the dean of the college concerned.

●That a study be made of the possibility of requiring, as a prerequisite for graduation, a comprehensive subject-matter examination.

Robert Nurock, president of the Liberal Arts Student Council, was chairman of the Academic Atmosphere workshop. Patricia Evans, junior in arts and letters from Lancaster, was secretary.
