

Community Living Suggested As Mean of Social Growth

By PAT EVANS
Third of a Series

The development of a community living program was cited at Student Encampment as a feasible way of realizing the University's responsibility for the social development of its students.

The Academic Policies workshop suggested the Community Living Committee continue its studies leading to the following specific recommendations:

- Maintaining the West Halls area as a co-educational living area.
  - The institution of a graduate living area.
  - The modification of future dormitory construction so community living could be instituted.
- President Eric A. Walker hinted at an Encampment talk that the University may be forced to change the present semester system by 1962 so that regular full-time sessions would be held all year round.
- In view of this, the workshop recommended that:
- "All-University Cabinet investigate the implications of changing to a trimester or quartermaster system upon the University traditions and calendar and the students' finances and social life."
  - Another topic discussed by the Academic Policies workshop was the increasing role of centers in educating University students. Resulting recommendations were:
    - More copies of The Daily Collegian be made available to students at the centers.
    - An orientation program of University traditions and school spirit be instituted at the centers.
    - Cabinet invite representatives of student government groups at the University centers to meet annually in workshop sessions at Encampment.

Registration Of Vehicles Required

Students who intend to operate an automobile or motorbike in or around State College must register the vehicle immediately upon bringing it to the University or face a stiff penalty.

Freshmen may not operate or possess motor vehicles including motorcycles at the University or within Centre County unless commuting from home.

Students who did not register their vehicles at the regular semester registration in Recreation Hall must do so at the Campus Patrol office in 320 Old Main.

Issue Stickers

The sticker must be displayed prominently on the vehicle. Failure to register or display the sticker properly will make a student liable for a $5 fine.

Qualified students may also receive a sticker allowing them to park in a designated University parking area. To qualify, a student must live a minimum distance from campus specified on maps available for inspection at the Campus Patrol office.

Special permits will be issued to physically handicapped students to park in any legal parking area.

All permits must be renewed annually.

Speed Limit is 25

The speed limit on all campus roads is 25 miles per hour or a rate within this limit which provides for the safety of pedestrians. A student, unless physically handicapped, may not drive on Pollock Road between Burrows and Shortlidge Roads between 7:30 a.m. and 5:30 p.m. Monday through Fridays and 7:30 a.m. to noon Saturdays.

Students are subject to penalties for traffic and parking violations as given by the Campus Patrol and Student Traffic Court.

All fines must be paid within 48 hours of Traffic Court action. The dean of men may send a student's car home if a fine is not paid within this time.

AIM Committee To Meet Tonight

The Association of Independent Men Executive Committee will meet at 7 tonight at the AIM office, 203 Hetzel Union.

John Morgan, AIM president, said members of the committee will discuss the effect of the closing of Pollock Halls on the organization, and the reorganization of the board of governors.

Since the election of officers in the dormitory units is not yet completed, the board of governors will not meet until Oct. 2.

Party Planned By Collegian

The Daily Collegian will hold a Coke Party Saturday afternoon for students interested in becoming editorial staff candidates.

The party will be held from 2 to 4 p.m. in the Collegian city room, 8 Carnegie.

Students need not be journalism majors nor must they have had previous newspaper experience to become candidates. Senior Board members will conduct classes in newspaper reporting and editing.

The party will offer students an opportunity to talk with staffers and to ask questions about writing for Collegian.

The first candidate meeting will be held sometime next week. The date will be announced later.

Funny as Grave, Froth Still 'Out'

Students again will be subjected to the "unquenchable humor" of "The Campus Mortuary Magazine," alias "Froth."

The wielders of this merciless weapon seem to have decided that the freshmen have not yet had enough.

Large sales "are expected" today, since the magazine serves other purposes very well, such as frightening away mothers-in-law and bill collectors.

Keep an eye out for this controversial magazine (the controversy being as to whether it is a magazine or not) at the Hetzel Union Building, The Corner, the Mall and Waring Hall. The overcharge is 25 cents a copy.

New Phones Cause System Revisions

A new system for making telephone calls into residence halls has been necessitated this semester due to installation of more telephones in the West Halls and construction of the new women's dormitories.

William F. Diehl, University telephone supervisor, said complications have set in since the West Halls have been changed to a dial system.

There is now one telephone for every four rooms or eight students. Previously one phone accommodated about 24 students.

To call West Halls or members of the University faculty or staff, anyone in the West Halls needs only to dial the extension number. However, students in the halls not on dial system must ask the operator for ADams 8-8441 and then give the extension of the West Halls faculty party they are trying to call.

Dial System Convenient

The dial system is more convenient to West Halls students since they need only to dial the extension number in calling in the area or a faculty or staff member. To place a call to the east and south halls from the dial phones, a person must dial "8" and then give the extension number.

Students calling from off campus to West Halls or to University faculty and staff must dial ADams 8-8441 and give the extension number. To call south and east hall areas from off campus, ADams 8-5051 must be dialed and the extension given to the operator.

Pay Phones Installed

New pay telephones have also been installed in the West Dorms. Diehl said that these are the only places from which calls to State College or long distance calls can be made in these dorms. The pay phone booths have been built into the walls of the halls. Special signs marked "Public Telephone" will be placed on hall light fixtures.

Diehl also said some confusion has resulted from the one and two ring systems in the West Halls and new women's halls.

In the women's halls, extension numbers end in either a "J" or "M." Diehl explained that those with a "J" ending will receive a one-ring sound while those with an "M" will have two rings. Since the phones are arranged in a two-party system, the rings are heard in two rooms and occasionally students answer the wrong ring.

4-Party System Used

In the West Halls, a four-party system is in operation where the number of rings is determined by the hundredth group of the extension. Extensions in the odd hundredth group, as 100, 500, 1300, etc., receive one ring while those in the even grouping, such as 200, 600, 1400, etc., receive two rings.

Special cards listing the extension number, room and number of rings have been placed beside each telephone in the West Halls.

Diehl said students must call by extension numbers. He said a party cannot be reached by giving a room number. The student directory for this semester will include more complete information regarding extension numbers than in previous issues.

HEC Magazine Staff

Staff members and new students interested in becoming candidates for the home economics publication "News and Views" will meet at 6:45 tonight in 14 Home Economics.

Nancy Metzger, first editor of the publication, will speak at the meeting.
