Paterno and Earl Bruce.

Only the tough, evenly matched games will be chosen by this reporter in an effort to make the combatants look silly and keep the game interesting. Also those readers with a discerning and scrutinous eye may detect an attempt at humor on the part of the writer.

All right boys, you have just nine days to polish up on your coin-flipping.

Penn. State's last three games of the 1957 football season will be played on the road against Marquette, Holy Cross and Pitt.
